City Census . . . Major Discrepancies

BY HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

It may be "back to the drawing board" for the Reapportionment Committee of the Common Council which has found some major discrepancies on population figures for the city supplied by the Bureau of Census.

According to Committee Chairman Alderman Donald E. Quick (D-Sixth Ward), Census figures on the city's 11th and 12th Wards "are way off." Census figures show 398 persons living in the 11th Ward and 3,429 living in the 12th. Both figures are off in opposite directions Quick said, "we know there are more than 398 people in the 11th Ward and we know there are not as many as 3,429 in the 12th," he said.

Peter J. Mancuso is alderman of the 12th Ward; he estimates his ward's population at "around 2,300." Edward M. Norton is alderman of the 11th Ward; he estimates his ward's population at "around 1,800."

So, something is definitely wrong, either with the figures or the committee's interpretation of those figures. The figures, as outlined in the Census Bureau's block by block breakdown of the city, divide Kingston into 13 areas, which are assumed to be wards. The sixth division, for instance, is interpreted to mean the Sixth Ward, Quick's ward. He says the figure of 2,164 "is just about right."

So, Quick thinks the committees' interpretation of the figures is right, but that the figures are off. He says he wants to meet with Corporation Counsel Aaron E. Klein for a review of the figures and the map, and if necessary, travel to the Census Bureau in Washington for a clarification.

The census figures Quick now has show a total population in the city of 25,544 persons. Assuming the 13 divisions in the breakdown are wards the First Ward has 2,063, the Second—2,222, the Third—2,032, the Fourth—1,689, the Fifth—2,314, the Sixth—2,164, the Seventh—2,017, the Eighth—2,397, the Ninth—1,352, the Tenth—1,266, the 11th—398, the 12th—3429 and the 13th—2,201. The mean figure for the 13 wards would be 1,950, which according to Census figures (excluding the disputed 11th and 12th Wards) indicates that uptown wards are overpopulated and downtown wards are underpopulated.

Quick said his committee has also "thrown out" (suggested) the idea of reducing the number of aldermen to either 11 or nine. The idea behind that is to keep the number of persons each alderman represents around 2,250, as it's supposed to be now under reapportionment approved in 1968. That reapportionment plan is not considered accurate, however, since it was based on the 1960 census. Since then, more than 4,000 persons have left the city and there has been considerable movement of population within the city itself.

Out in the county, Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago, said the city would lose two of its eight county legislators due to the 1970 census although he says the county does not have a reapportionment plan yet. He said it has not been determined if those six candidates would run at-large within the city as now, or be put into two or more districts.

The two "extra" legislators from the city, Savago said, will be given to areas in the county which showed the most population growth based on the '70 census One of those legislators will go to New Paltz, the other to either Saugerties or the Town of Ulster. Wawarsing, Savago said, will not get an additional legislator, "since its population has remained about the same."

Marcos Clamps Lid On the Philippines

MANILA (UPI) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos followed up his declaration of martial law in the Philippines Saturday night by announcing the mass arrest of Communist conspirators he said were plotting to overthrow the government and proclaiming sweeping national reforms to lessen their hold on poor peasants.

In a nationwide radio and television address to 39 million Filipinos, Marcos imposed a curfew from 12 midnight to 4 a.m. daily and announced controls on local newspapers and radio and foreign correspondents in the Philippines, a ban on travel of Filipinos abroad except those on official missions and control of public utilities.

The president said civil authorities would remain in power and all national and local government officials would continue to function.

"This is not a military takeover," Marcos said.

"I have proclaimed martial law in accordance with the powers vested in the president by the consititution of the Philippines," Marcos said.

"I as your duly elected president use this power which may be implemented by military authorities to protect the Republic of the Philippines and our democracy which is endangered by the peril of violent overthrow of the duly constituted government, insurrection or rebellion.

"Such a danger confronts the Republic of the Philippines today.

"We will eliminate the threat of violent overthrow of government and we must now reform our political, economic and social institutions.

"We are falling back and have fallen back to our last line of defense. The limit has been reached because we have been placed against the wall."

In a telephone call to Philippine Foreign Minister Carlos P. Romulo in New York, Marcos said the situation in Manila was calm and persons arrested Friday night were being held in "protective custody" to protect them from harm at the hands of the National Peoples Army (NPA), an insurgent group.

Romulo told UPI that terrorism and subversion had spread from northern Luzon over the entire Philippines, that the insurgents were spearheaded by the Communist party of the Philippines and the NPA and that they were now capable of undertaking limited offensive operations.

Romulo, citing secret government documents, said the Communist forces had received substantial quantities of war material including highpowered rifles, rockets and rocket launchers.

There was no immediate indication how many Filipinos had been arrested in the government crackdown against suspected Communist subversives. Friends and relatives of those detained said those arrested included at least three senators, several journalists and a number of constitutional convention delegates.

Earlier Saturday in predawn swoops, government troopers closed all radio and television stations and newspaper offices in Greater Manila.

One commercial television station and three radio networks were reopened later Saturday night to broadcast the president's announcement.

The presidential press office said henceforth all foreign news agencies and correspondents of foreign publications and networks must clear their dispatches with the press office before being transmitted.

The president's proclamation of martial law was numbered 1081 signed Sept. 21, 1972, and cleared for implementation at 9 p.m. Sept. 22.

In his address, Marcos also announced the following moves:

—A cleanup of "corrupt and sterile government officials."

—A proclamation of land reform throughout the Philippine archipelago, a move which would enable tenant farmers to own land after living in virtual enslavement for centuries.

—A ban on the carrying of firearms by civilians and unauthorized persons with violation punishable by death.

UN Agrees to Terrorism Debate

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—The United Nations General Assembly agreed to a full debate on international terrorism on a 66-27 vote Saturday night.

Thirty-three countries, including the entire Soviet bloc and many from Africa, abstained from the vote.

The item was included in the agenda after its original wording as proposed by Secretary General Kurt Waldheim was substantially amended to call also for a U.N. study of the underlying causes of terrorism.

The votes defeated determined efforts, led by the Democratic Republic of Yemen, to have the debate deferred to at least next year.

A deferral motion by Democratic Yemen was defeated 57-47, with 22 abstentions.

The 39-vote margin was considered a sizeable boost for the prestige of Waldheim, who put the terrorism item up for assembly consideration after the Security Council failed to act.

Council action was stymied when China and the Soviet Union vetoed mention in an earlier resolution of the Arab terrorist murder of 11 Israeli Olympic team members at Munich last month. The United States then used its veto because the Olympic incident was eliminated.

An amendment offered by Saudi Arabian Ambassador

Israeli Vows More Strikes at Guerrillas
Story on Page 28

Jamil M. Baroody widened the scope of the item as proposed by Waldheim and made it more palatable to many members who feared U.N. action against terrorism would hamper the "national liberation movements" they support, particularly against Israel, Portuguese Africa and South Africa.

Waldheim's original item was titled: "Measures to prevent terrorism which endangers or takes innocent human lives or jeopardizes fundamental freedoms."

An amendment by Jamaica inserted the word "international" before "terrorism," defining more precisely the scope of the discussion which Waldheim had repeatedly explained was not intended to intervene in internal affairs or run contrary to U.N. decisions on colonialism and national liberation movements.

This amendment was largely responsible for winning the lopsided margin in favor of the terrorism debate, diplomats believed.

The assembly, winding up the first week of its 27th annual session with two unusual Saturday meetings, also agreed over Soviet and Chinese opposition to defer debate on Korea and let the North and South Koreans pursue current efforts to settle their own problems.

In a surprise move, without a vote, the assembly also approved inclusion in its agenda of a debate on membership for Bangladesh, the former East Pakistan, whose application was vetoed by China in the Security Council Aug. 25.

Meanwhile, according to the AP, Secretary of State William P. Rogers heads for the United Nations today with plans to call for international action to clamp down on terrorism.

In his two week annual visit to the U.N. General Assembly sessions, Rogers will have side talks with Russia's Andrei Gromyko and scores of other foreign ministers on items ranging from trade to the Middle East.

On Monday, prior to a dinner meeting with Gromyko, Rogers is to deliver the main U.S. speech to the 132-nation General Assembly.

Research Facility Flooded With Calls

Cancer Agent . . . Not the Final Answer

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (UPI)—Callers from around the world besieged the Oak Ridge research facility Saturday, seeking more information on what could be a breakthrough in the fight against cancer.

Scientists began charting a lengthy course of study and tests to see whether a bacterial agent proven effective against the disease in animals would work just as well on humans.

The bacterial agent, called BCG, has been used on humans in limited experiments only. Scientists hope to step up that program in the near future, although Dr. Michael G. Hanna Jr., head of the Immunology Department at Oak Ridge, said such a study could take five years.

"We have been flooded with calls from all over the world," David Sundberg, head of public information at Oak Ridge, said. "Many were from people who have relatives with cancer, whose hopes have been raised by hearing this news."

However, Dr. Howard E. Lessner, director of cancer research at the University of Miami Medical School, said that BCG had been used for a number of years to treat leukemia patients in Europe. He said the treatment was effective only if the cancer cell count was very low.

"I wouldn't want people to start feeling we've finally gotten the answer," he said.

Dr. Amoz Chernoff, director of the University of Tennessee Memorial Research Center, said Saturday, "We now have basic information of what actually happens to the immune system" through the use of a bacterial agent—BCG, a strain of mycobacterium bovis.

This bacteria causes tuberculosis in cattle but not in man, and has been known for a number of years to stimulate the immune system response.

"What we need now," says Chernoff, "is more specific information on the effects in humans. This will be obtained through further research under place using the material at other locations around the nation. Each is taking a slightly different tack. Most notable work is being done at Roswell Park Memorial Institute in Buffalo, N.Y., under Dr. Edmund Klein; the University of California at Los Angeles, and in France where much carefully controlled situations."

Other studies are taking pioneering work has been conducted.

"It has been 100 per cent effective in animals," said Dr. Hanna, "and in humans, in the cases done, it is good enough to say that it is the most encouraging thing to come along in a long time."

Chemical Ban . . . Little Effect Here

By MATT SPIRENG

KINGSTON

A federal government ban on the use of the germ killer hexachlorophene which was announced Friday will apparently have little effect on area hospitals, according to hospital spokesmen.

The ban, which calls for the discontinuance of the use of hexachlorophene except under doctor's prescription, also ordered a recall of baby powders and liquid soaps containing the chemical.

Kingston Hospital Administrator Anthony Triulzi told The Freeman that the chemical is not freely used in the hospital and that the ban apparently will not have an effect on the hospital. Triulzi said hexachlorophene is only used on newborn infants "under very strict guidance." "It is only used for very specific and necessary reasons to control infections," he added.

Triulzi explained that the policy controlling the use of hexachlorophene was one passed by the department of pediatrics and that the chemical is not used elsewhere in the hospital.

Gerard Nocton, assistant to Sister Mary Charles, administrator of Benedictine Hospital, said he had received no official notification of the ban, but that general use of the chemical had been discontinued in the hospital when initial reports of dangers came out several months ago. At present, hexachlorophene is only used as a pre-scrub germicide agent, according to Nocton, and it is not used in the nursery at Benedictine Hospital.

At Ellenville Community Hospital Evald Bors-Koefoed said newborns have not been bathed in the chemical for several years and that it has not been used for hand washing for several months. He said there were several reasons for discontinuing the use of the chemical at the hospital, but that none of them had to do with any directives or bans.

Accordng to Charles Edwards, commissioner of the FDA, recent studies have indicated the public was being "needlessly and massively exposed" to hexachlorophene. He noted that between 30 and 40 babies have died in France because too much of the product was accidentally put into talcum powder.

Under Friday's ruling infant powders with more than 0.75 per cent hexachlorophene must be recalled by the manufacturer. All other products with more than 0.75 per cent of the chemical must be recalled except those in drugstores, which are only to be available on prescription in the future. These are mostly liquid soap, largely the brand PhisoHex.

Products with 0.75 per cent or less of hexachlorophene do not have to be recalled, according to the ruling, but further production must cease. This largely involves bar soaps, mostly the brand Dial.

Dr. Hollis Ingraham, state commissioner of the Department of Health, told The Freeman that he was not in a position to comment on the ban because he had not yet received information on the ruling from the federal government.

Commissioner of the Ulster County Department of Health, Dr. William C. Taylor, said Saturday that he doubted the Health Department would find it necessary to take action on the ban of the chemical. He pointed out that hospitals were already carefully controlling the use of hexachlorphene and that its further use to the public will be controlled by prescription.

Youths Drowning Victims In Lake Near Rhinebeck

RHINEBECK

A New York City teenager and his friend who apparently tried to rescue him drowned in Silver Lake near Rhinebeck shortly after noon on Saturday, according to police reports.

Rhinebeck State Police said five youths, all from East 33rd Street, New York City, were out on the lake rowing a sailboat when two of them decided to go in for a swim. Michael Monahan and Ralph Gonzalez dove into the water and a short time later Gonzalez began calling for help, authorities said.

One of the youths who had remained in the craft jumped into the water and swam to Gonzalez in order to save him, but, police said, Gonzalez grappled and fought with his would-be rescuer, Alvaro Mantilla, and dragged him under the water with him.

Initial police efforts to grapple for the bodies of Gonzalez and Mantilla failed, and almost four hours after the youths disappeared beneath the surface of the water State Police scuba divers located their bodies in 22 feet of water.

A state police spokesman said authorities didn't know why the youths were in the area or where they were staying, but he surmised they had come from the city "to take a boat ride and enjoy themselves."

Both of the drowned youths were 17 years old. Gonzalez lived at 221 East 33rd Street and his companion, Mantilla, lived at 205 East 33rd Street. Their companions in the boat, in addition to Monahan, were Phyllis Sanchez and Helen Peterson, authorities noted.

The sailboat, which police said did not have a sail, was reportedly taken out from shore near the Stanbrook Lodge off Route 9G.

The bodies of the two youths were removed to the White Funeral Home in Rhinebeck, authorities said.

Reports that an older man rowed from shore to rescue Monahan were not confirmed by police.

Freeman Reporter Calling It '30'

Walt Clark...A Remarkable Newspaper Career

KINGSTON

"We're going to miss Walt Clark up here," Kingston Detective John Crespino said upon hearing the news of The Freeman's veteran police reporter's retirement on Sept. 29. "He was a good man. We trusted him."

Clark will retire on Friday after a remarkable 54-year career in journalism, 13½ years of which he served as Freeman police reporter.

Clark, born on Oct. 16, 1898 in Lynn, Mass., the son of the late Walter S. and Margaret A. Clark, like so many reporters, got his start in high school. "I got the exciting end of reporting in my blood at that time and I never got rid of it. I always wanted to chase those sirens."

Clark started out as town correspondent for The Lynn Item in 1917-1918 but after graduation from Saugus High School, went to work for the Chevrolet plant in Boston while attending business school at night. Working as an accountant in Clark's mind just didn't compare with chasing those sirens.

He quit the job with Chevrolet in 1920 and signed on with The Lynn Telegram News, covering the Peabody-Salem District. To say Clark broke in under auspicious circumstances would be understatement: he had four Page One stories his first week, "half a dozen murder stories the first six months."

Clark brought to his chosen profession certain attributes that some reporters never achieve. He was resourceful, tenacious, at times downright devious but most of all, conscientious.

"I can remember a story I did while working in Port Chester about this millionaire, Frank Savin. It seems he had disowned his two children. All we had were rumors, though. Everyone was trying to get a line on that one but Savin wouldn't talk to anyone. I worked on it quite awhile and finally put together a good story."

"But, I needed confirmation, the story might have been libelous. I sent a telegram to Savin, told him I had the story and unless he agreed to call me at 8 o'clock that night, I was going to run it. Savin called at 8:05, had me over to the house and gave me the whole story. We talked for more than three hours. I didn't dare take notes. The story ran Page One. No one else had it."

Police reporting back in the "roaring '20s" could be a dangerous profession as Clark well recalls. "They had this mob in Harrison called the 'Foot and a Half Gang,' named after their leader, Foot and a Half Girondo. There was a big gang war going, some kind of bootleg war, murders all over the place, one a week. All the papers were covering it."

The Foot and a Half Gang assaulted one of the reporters on another paper to the point where the man spent several weeks in the hospital. And, Clark says, they were after him too. "These two guys stopped me on the street and wanted to know if I was a reporter for the ITEM. I told them I was and they wanted to know if I knew anything about a story we ran on Foot and a Half beating up his girl friend. Told them I hadn't even read it (Clark wrote it) and offered to help if they wanted a retraction." After resisting the urgings of the two thugs to step into an alley and discuss the situation, Clark got their names and addresses, "Told them I needed it in case I had to check back with them." A friendly cab driver extricated Clark from the clutches of the hoods after which Clark turned their names into the local police. "They sent four cops out to pick them up. Brought them back to the police station and beat hell out of them. I watched it all from under the chief's desk. They didn't fool around in those days."

Clark's "scoops" weren't all on police work; he was the first reporter to fly in the Sikorsky plane in August of 1926. Two weeks later, on takeoff for a flight to Paris from New York it crashed and burned, killing two men.

Clark met the Prince of Wales, briefly "out of sheer luck," and interviewed Presidents Coolidge and Franklin Roosevelt. Coolidge was kind of a strange guy, kind of standoffish. Roosevelt was more sociable, more friendly."

The Prince, later King Edward VII, ran into Clark during a foxhunt near Boston in 1921. "We were riding behind this stone wall watching a fox hunt when they all rode up and dismounted right in front of us. They all got back on and rode off except the Prince who seemed to be having trouble getting on. I walked over and asked if I could help. 'Cup your hands,' he said. I did; he nodded and galloped off." Another Page One story for Clark.

He witnessed seven executions at Sing Sing Prison. "The first two were the Esposito Brothers, they called them the mad dog killers. They killed two cops in New York. They went on a hunger strike at Sing Sing. Had to wheel them to the chair. I had a nervous breakdown two weeks later. Couldn't get those guys out of my mind."

Clark went to work in Poughkeepsie in 1935 and served as police reporter for 21 years. "They wanted to put me on the city desk. I didn't want to work inside. I quit."

He took a job with a radio station as news director, worked there three years and came to The Freeman in March of 1959.

Clark has been active in the SPCA, the Ulster County Marine Corps League (they honored him at a dinner in 1967) and the Ulster County Cancer Crusade. He has been singled out by the Associated Press for numerous stories. While in Poughkeepsie, he was active in firemanics, serving as president and deputy chief of the Arlington Fire Department. He is a life member of that department.

Clark has no immediate plans for retirement. "I guess I'll just take it easy. I'll miss those NYP plates (New York Press plates). Guess I'll have to turn them in."

And what about those sirens? Will he still be chasing them? "Probably, that's something in the blood."

Clark will be honored at a testimonial dinner at the Gov. Clinton Hotel Nov. 24 by the Kingston Newspaper Guild.

KINGSTON

Two men were indicted for murder and a third for manslaughter by the Ulster County Grand Jury this week which handed up a total of 11 indictments to County Judge Raymond J. Mino. There were three cases dismissed and one sealed indictment.

According to District Attorney Francis J. Vogt, Jack Duane Lewis of New Paltz was indicted on two counts of murder in the alleged beating death of a 17-year-old Kingston girl, Colleen Thurin in New Paltz, Aug. 29.

Miss Thurin is alleged to have been seen with Lewis at Joe's Restaurant in New Paltz. Found beaten nearby, she was taken to Benedictine Hospital in Kingston where she succumbed several days later.

William Edward Hill, 25, of Plattekill and Newburgh was indicted on two counts of murder in the Aug. 15 slaying of Mrs. Alice Upright, 67, in her Cottekill home.

Mrs. Upright's body was found bound hand and feet and the telephone had been ripped from the wall. The house had been ransacked.

Norberto Codero, 36, of RD 1, Kingston, an unemployed laborer and father of five, was indicted on first degree manslaughter and possession of a dangerous weapon in the knife stabbing of Harry Zehnick Jr., a Saugerties father of three outside the Belvedere Inn, on Rte 9W, Town of Ulster, July 22.

According to police, the two men engaged in a heated altercation which led to the stabbing.

Others indicted were:

Michael Christofora of 192 Clinton Avenue who was arrested July 5 at his home and charged with criminal possession of a dangerous drug in the second degree, and the sixth degree.

A similar charge against Diana Mergendahl who was arrested with Christofora on July 5 at his home, was dismissed by the grand jury.

Also indicted were Philip Russo, 20, and Scott Russo, 17, both of Esopus on charges of burglary in the third degree. They were arrested July 1, on charges of allegedly breaking into the Church of the Presentation in Esopus.

Henry Feinberg of Kerhonkson was indicted for criminal possession of stolen property in the first degree (a truck) and illegal possession of a vehicle identification number. He was arrested in January.

Arthur Cyr of Kingston was indicted for grand larceny in the second degree. He is alleged to have embezzled rent receipts while in the employ of the Hillcrest Garden Apartments from January through March of this year.

Martin Wells of Abeel Street, Kingston, was indicted for reckless endangerment in the first degree. It is alleged that on June 3, he pointed a loaded shotgun at two police officers.

David Reid of Philadelphia, Pa. is charged with burglary in the first and second degree, attempt to commit a crime, two counts, and assault, second degree, two counts. Reid is alleged to have broken into two homes in Kerbonkson and attacked two women, stabbing one and that women's husband on Aug. 19. Certified insane, he is presently in Matteawan State Hospital.

John Richard Lennon, 19 of 84 Kingston Avenue, Floral Park, is charged with attempted arson in the second degree. He is alleged to have set fires at the Rocking Horse Ranch, Nov. 14, 1971 where he was employed as a cook on weekends. During the week he was a student at Nassau Community College.

In addition to the dismissal of the Mergendahl case, the grand jury also dismissd the charges against a John Doe for sodomy and the court did not reveal his name.

Also charges against Anthony J. Corcoran of New York City, an Irish National on a work visa in the United States who was charged with manslaughter, second degree in a vehicle homicide case involving a Joan Mary Tyrell who was the victim of the accident July 23 on Rte. 44-55.

Wallkill Man and Phileas Fogg

By MATT SPIRENG

WALLKILL — "It goes so slow that you can drift through trees, even pick apples off trees as you pass by."

"It's like standing in your back yard and having it lift into the sky."

And it's up, up and away with Wallkill balloonist Bill Hughes as he smiles and proceeds to describe his livelihood as balloon pilot and instructor.

Working out of Kobelt Airport near Wallkill, Hughes is one of a very small minority of Americans who hold balloon pilot's licenses, and his balloon school is one of only about a dozen across the country.

He has been "ballooning" for nearly three years, was a Navy pilot for seven years, and has been flying — mostly helicopters — for 16 years. In fact, it is though his experience as a helicopter pilot that he became a balloonist. "I got called to use a helicopter to film a balloon for a television special and got hooked," Hughes says. He is now in partnership with the man who flew that balloon, Bob Waligunda of New Jersey, and together they run Balloon Enterprises, Inc., a division of Sky Promotions, the largest commercial balloon concern in the world.

Comparing Hughes with Phileas Fogg of "Around the World in 80 Days" is not very far off-base: he owns "LA Coquett," the original balloon from the film version of Jules Verne's novel. Among other balloons owned by Balloon Enterprises are those from the motion pictures "The Great Race," "The Great Train Robbery" and "The Great American Balloon Adventure." The concern also operates "Lark" balloons for cigarette promotional and advertising campaigns.

Although he can operate gas balloons, Hughes mainly flies hot-air balloons. The reason is one of economics: it takes $700 worth of helium to fill a gas balloon the same size as a hot-air balloon which can be flown for an hour on as little as $5 worth of propane gas used to heart the air which fills the balloon.

While balloons vary greatly in size and cost, the one Hughes uses most often towers 80 feet from the bottom of the Gondola to the top of the balloon, is 50 feet in diameter and costs approximately $5,500. The basket, or passenger compartment, is made of aluminum. "But we have a wicker cover to give it a romantic look," Hughes points out. He also owns a completely wicker basket which does not get as much use as the one made of aluminum. The balloon itself, dubbed "America," has red, white and blue stripes radiating up the sides and stars around its base.

Balloons, unlike other aircraft, cannot be steered, Hughes explains. Balloonists can only control their ups and downs — where they go from their depends on which way the wind is blowing. But a knowledge of air currents enables pilots to exert some influence on where they end up, according to Hughes. The direction and speed of the currents varies with altitude and if the pilot picks the correct altitude he goes where he wants . . . sometimes.

Hughes tells of one time when he landed in the Hudson River while giving a student his first training flight. The balloon was near the eastern bank when Hughes noticed a thunderstorm moving over the Shawangunks. The wind had died, so he attempted to bring the balloon down right on the shore, at which he succeeded . . . almost. Near the ground the wind was flowing from the shore to the river, and although the basket landed on solid ground it was quickly swung over like a pendulum into the water.

While waiting with the bottom of the basket about a foot under water, Hughes watched as a motorboat approached. He requested and was granted a tow by the boater, who was called Peewee, but after much trouble it was decided that the best way to get the balloon to shore was to land the basket in the 15-foot boat. Hughes' troubles were not over, however, as the boat ran out of gas on the way to a nearby marina where the balloon could be deflated, and a second boat had to be called to tow Peewee's balloon-laden craft. Once safely on shore, Hughes had to explain to two waiting sheriff's deputies exactly what happened. Apparently they eventually believed him.

Another time he landed in Marbletown when the winds died down. He also became entangled in a dead tree once, necessitating the use of chain saws and several hundred dollars worth of repairs on the craft. Live trees are safe to hit, Hughes says, "You just roll off them and can use them to slow you down." He adds that it isn't such a good idea to try slowing down other types of aircraft by hitting trees.

In February, Hughes plans to enter a world championship balloon race in New Mexico where 150 balloonists from 17 countries are expected. During August, in only the second race he had ever entered, Hughes copped first place in the Great Export "A" Balloon Race in Manitoba, Canada.

Hughes explains that he has been as high as 10,000 feet, gone 31 miles and been up for three and one-half hours. He adds that none of these figures are near the records which are, respectively, 32,450 feet, 186 miles, and eight hours, 40 minutes.

And, unlike many men, Hughes appears to like his work. "It has an unreal quality," he says. "It's completely different from any other kind of flying."

A Secret School for Air Baggage Handlers

Dear Mr. Airline President:

I shall not use the name of your airline, which describes itself as "the second largest air carrier in the free world," in this public letter. It wouldn't be fair. After all, nearly every other air carrier in the free world has also lost my luggage at one time or other.

Like so many other hapless and bagless passengers, I have often wondered why it's possible to land men with precision on a whirling moon a quarter of a million miles away and still not get my baggage to me at the end of an earthly airplane flight.

Three times in the past year my bags haven't appeared in the arrival lineup. Oh, yes, they finally showed. But twice I've had to buy or borrow clothes and toothpaste, and twice I've had to scratch subjects for this column because my files were flying off into the wild blue yonder or sagging despondently in a distant airport.

I hope you won't mind if I indulge briefly in a fantasy on how we have reached such a state in this technologically retrogressive nation:

As I imagine it, you and the other airlines maintain a School for Baggage Handlers located in some secret and arid portion of the Southwest. The climate keeps instructors and pupils hot-tempered; old army rations keep them dyspeptic; bags loaded with bricks keep them churlish.

To qualify, students must be dropouts from a taxi drivers' school, must be certified by a psychiatric panel to be of unsound mind, and have dismissal notices from three previous employers.

"All right, Morgan," says the instructor wearily. "Here's a tough one. Pretend that junk you're carrying is tagged for Buffalo, New York. You can tell one of the bags is a businessman's clothes, another is his briefcase, and the third — as must be obvious even to a balloonhead like you — is a golf bag. Where do you send them?"

"Good."

"Not bad."

"And the golf bag on a plene for Chicago."

"No, no, no!" screamed the instructor. All golf bags go to Augusta, Georgia. It's tennis rackets that go to Chicago."

"Sorry," Morgan mumbled.

"OK. Next you get the Missing Baggage Tracer Notice. What do you do with it?"

"I file it."

"Right. But sooner or later the bags work their way back to your airport. Then what?"

"We call the guy to tell him that his luggage has showed up, which naturally gets him all excited."

"Fine. Now this is the crucial point, Morgan. Get it right. What do you do next?"

"We work the stuff over. You know, like stomping on it and spilling coffee and so forth."

"And then?"

"Then we put it on the wrong delivery truck."

"Excellent! Well, Morgan, I think you've finally got it. Frankly, I never thought you'd graduate. Another couple of weeks and you'll get your Flying Baggage Wings pinned on your coveralls. That little suitcase flying off between those wings is something you'll treasure all your life, Morgan."

Getting It All Together...A Few Thoughts

By TERRI FRANCIS JACKSON

Somehow, somewhere along the way, one major fact seems to have been forgotten — the fact that most black men and women have worked hard all of their lives, to make economic freedom and personal fullfillment a reality.

In today's highly automated, industrialized world the market for unskilled labor is decreasing rapidly; thus Welfare is a vital necessity. There is no doubt that newer and better welfare reforms are needed. They must be implemented and enforced — but the key word to keep in mind, regarding the use (or the misuse) of welfare is Responsibility — by Administrators as well as recipients. Welfare is not only an aid, in many cases it is total existence. It is not, and never should be, considered by anyone as additional income. Too often, misguided thinking on both sides causes friction and leads to antagonized confrontations.

Parents are responsible for the well-being (education — comfort — happiness) of their children; and any parent who uses welfare money for the benefit of their child sets a good example of responsibility. And us should realize that there should be no stigma attached to the need for, or use of, welfare monies and/or food stamps. No human being should be made to feel ashamed because circumstances, too often beyond their conrol, force them into this position. As Ray Charles sings (Message From the People) "How can you find a job, when there just ain't none?"

On the other side of the coin, the misuse or abuse of any phase of the welfare program by anyone involved, makes it difficult for us all. It is especially harmful for our children, for it is they who must ultimately be saved or destroyed by what we do.

Just Thinking

An old African Proverb tells us that "A woman is a man's mirror and without a woman a man is off-balance, he can't see himself . . . for a woman only reflects what the man is . . .good or bad." Think about it . . . .To my young brothers and sisters I would like to say that although there is nothing wrong in living a new life style, dressing in a new way, and thinking for yourselves in a way that differs from that of your parents; but I would also add that you should be tolerant, and listen to them as you want them to listen to you. Keep an open mind and learn from what you hear, it can't hurt you and it might help, if only to show you what not to do . . . . I like Nikki Giovanni's Poetry, Ray Charles and Roberta Flack, I can live without imitations . . . . . It is nice to live in a world with people like Mrs. Sally Bowen. This wonderful lady was honored Sept. 8, with a testimonial dinner at the Gov. Clinton Hotel, for her 71 years of dedicated Christian service in the A.M.E. Zion Church; 45 of those years have been spent at the Franklin Street Church.

Did you know that Johnson Publications (Ebony and Jet) have two new publications on the market? Black World and Negro Digest. Other current Black Publications on the market are: ESSENCE, a magazine for today's Black Woman — ENCORE edited by Ida Lewis and NATURAL PROCESS, an Anthology of new Black Poetry. There are also complete sets of Black History Books written and published by Blacks available. Check it out.

Don't forget the fabulous New Year's Eve in Sept. Bash planned by Del's Enterprises at the Armory. Two bands for continuous dancing, noise-makers, hats, food — all of the ingredients for a rousing good time. Call 339-5725 for ticket information.

There are plans in the making for a Black Expo to be held in the Mid-Hudson Valley area.

A relevant series of Black Studies programs will soon be presented in the Kingston area. As time, place and subject information comes to me I will pass it on to you.

How does the idea of a Black store sound to you? There are many Black items on the market that are not available to us in this area. It is an idea of some of the young sisters and brothers that we adults would do well to do some serious thinking about.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

As we demand more of our leaders, we must give more of ourselves.

Until next week,
Vaya Con Dios

Snyder Addresses Meeting

WASHINGTON John M. Snyder, a Kingston, N.Y. native, recently addressed a Capitol Hill Strategic Arms Conference in the Cannon House Office Building in Washington, D.C. His subject was The Disarmament Syndrome. He pointed out the similarities in argument and personnel in the movements to reduce unilaterally America's nuclear arsenal and to disarm American citizens of their small arms.

Snyder is assistant editor of The American Rifleman magazine and a member of the Advisory Council of the Citizens Committee for the Right to Keep and Bear Arms.

Other speakers included William Schneider, Legislative Assistant to Sen. James L. Buckley (N.Y.) and a former staff member of the Hudson Institute; William Kling and Charles Stewart of the American Security Council and Lawrence Pratt, Executive Director of the American Conservation Union.

The seminar was sponsored by Young Americans for Freedom as part of a "drive to inform Americans about the crisis in national defense."

Point Marina...Dollar Signs Could Sink It

City Beat

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Freeman City Hall Reporter

MARINA IN LIMBO—The big news this week, other than the fact that the city moved into the new city hall, was the public hearing held on the proposed Kingston Point Marina.

Frankly, we thought the thing was dead after that public hearing held in the new Council Chambers. Most of the comment was against the proposal which, as Alderman Cliff Sinsabaugh, pointed out, is par for the course at public hearings. "The opponents always come out," Sinsabaugh told Major Don Anselm from the Corps of Engineers, "people in favor stay home."

Anselm, from where we sat, semed to be agreeing with the first half of Sinsabaughh's statement's, waxing pessimistically about the marina's chances in light of comments made at the meeting.

We approached Bob Campbell, the information officer for the Corps, afterward with the opinion that maybe Anselm was taking a premature reading from what he heard at the meeting.

We approached Bob Campbell, the information officer for the Corps, afterward with the opinion that maybe An selm was taking a premature reading from what he heard Wednesday night.

"You guys hold plenty of these public hearings," we suggested to Campbell. "You must realize that most of the comments are negative."

"Oh, sure," Campbell replied. "That's always the case. Actually, this was a very friendly crowd. We get some real hostile groups; they can be pretty tough."

Some of the objections raised were of course legitimate. The cost of this project is definitely a factor. Who is going to pay what is probably even more important.

We'd guess that a goodly number of those persons in attendance came here laboring under the assumption that the Corps of Engineers (i.e., the federal government) was going to pick up the lion's share of the cost. Such was clearly not the case. As things stand now, the Corps will go for only $250,000 of the overall $1.5 million with the city coming in for $625,000. The state, as usual, is broke when it comes to this type of project. We wonder what kinds of projects the state has the money.

We don't see the city coming up with $625,000 for a marina at this point. In fact, we don't see the city coming up with $625,000 for anything at this point, what with the Koenig Administration and the Common Council running the debt limit through the ceiling.

The key to the whole project will be money. If the city gets the money, the city will get the marina. Right now, it looks grim.

CITY HALI—Most people who have visited the new municipal building on Meadow Street have been pleasantly surprised by the amount of room inside. From the outside, it looks small, but inside there's something like 56 rooms.

Not all those rooms are spacious, in fact, some would serve as tight closets. The police department reminds one of a rabbit warren; no windows, a series of hallways and tiny rooms. Anyone who suffers from claustophobia had better forget about signing on with the KPD.

The Council chambers are great; the accoustics are fantastic. Never again can a reporter alibie a misquote by claiming he didn't hear it straight.

There will be some "bugs to iron out" as the mayor puts it. (Imagine ironing out a bug . . . yech!)

The alderman may want some rearranging of their desks. As they're now set up, there's four desks along one wall (Wards One through Four), five desks in the middle (Wards five through Nine) and four along the other wall (ten through 13). Those desks are placed side by side in the three groups, which could lead to complications in the middle. It seems Tom Davitt, the Seventh Ward Republican, is sitting between Don Quick of the Sixth and Emillio Primo of the Eighth. Primo and Quick are Democrats and they may not relish Davitt looking over their shoulders when they're scribbling those notes to their (Democratic) colleagues.

It's possible that they may put the Democrats on one side of the room and the Republicans on the other, much like the Mexican Standoff arrangement the county legislators have. Secrecy must be maintained.

CITY BITS . . . Word is starting to circulate that Frank Koenig will seek a third term as mayor and the feeling is the only man who can take him is Mel Mones, the county legislator from the city. Mones turned it down in 1969 but may have had a change of heart. Brian Smith, the minority leader, and about the only Republican critic of the Koenig administration (Party Chairman Ted Feeney apparently has better things to do) is being mentioned as Mones' running mate. John Machione, the former Second Ward perennial, has ruled himself out for a run as alderman-at-large; he wants another shot at alderman.

Ella Clausi, the building department secretary, had that proud parent look on Monday morning. She became a grandmother for the first time on Friday. Her son Tommy, and his wife Karen marked the blessed event in Virginia. Karen Clausi is the daughter of Alderman John Coffee of the first Ward. John is an old hand at being a grandfather, this was his sixth. From what we hear, he's looking forward to the next half dozen.

THE GOSSIP COLUMN
ROBIN ADAMS SLOAN

Visitor: To hard-hearted Hanoi.

Q: Did Ramsey Clark's visit to Hanoi accomplish one darned thing beyond giving aid and comfort to the enemy? Let's hear one positive result from this visit by that bleeding heart liberal. — J.E., Dallas, Tex.

A: Your fellow Texan and former Attorney General of the United States says he accepted the invitation (to go to Hanoi as a member of the International Commission for Inquiries Into United States War Crimes in Indochina) because he felt he might "save a single child or help a single prisoner of war or find out what is going on for the American people." It's true Clark's visit mostly accomplished a lot of sound and fury, though he took in 102 letters to men the State Department believes may be held by the Viet Cong and 300 letters to known P.O.W.s. He brought back 17 letters from the latter — almost as many P.O.W. letters as have been previously released throughout the entire war. Three letters were for relatives who had not known whether their loved ones were alive or dead.

Q: Wasn't there something about John Lennon and Yoko Ono making a personal documentary movie which they intended to show commercially? When can we see this? — H.E., Paterson, N.J.

A: You're not likely ever to see the film the Lennons started to make — it is reported to be a mad scramble. But there is such a film, or part of same, and the most interesting thing is how John Lennon's name can move mountains. He succeeded in getting such luminaries as Dick Cavett and Fred Astaire to gambol through the halls of the St. Regis Hotel for the filming of these antics.

Q: I hear actress Joan Blondell has written an autobiography about her life in the movies. What is the title and does it tell "all" about Jimmy Cagney, Humphrey Bogart, and the rest of the Warner Brothers bunch? — J.E., Newport Beach, Calif.

A: Miss Blondell's book, due in the stores any minute, is titled "Center Door Fancy." It is a fictionalized version of her growing up in a vaudeville family and going on to fame in the movies. Some of the famous Warner stars you mention do appear in the novel as themselves, but when it gets down to the juicy parts, the author has thinly disguised three of her late husbands as well as a few other people who might be tempted to yell for their lawyers.

Q: Would you settle a family argument by telling us whether or not anyone has ever tried to raise the Titanic from its ocean grave? — B.McQ., Albany, N.Y.

A: In the 60 years since the Titanic sank, after striking an iceberg there has been much talk about salvaging the ship, but no action. A British company has recently been formed to raise the liner, said to be worth a fortune.

Q: I was in a major New York department store and saw a woman lifting a pair of earrings. They were only costume jewelry, but I was still surprised when a security guard standing right by only shrugged his shoulders. What's happening? — F.E., Brooklyn, N.Y.

A: Many department stores have now advised their security people to adopt a hands-off policy for shoplifting thefts under $5.00. It simply causes too much uproar and isn't worth it. The major stores have shoplifting under control now with detecting tags that alert electronic signals. Their big target is to stop a major drain from internal thefts by working personnel.

Q: If the Riviera is too crowded and Sardinia is too windy, where will the jet set roost next? — A.C., New Orleans.

A: Coming up next as the newest watering hole is Southwest Africa. We hear that Ari Onassis is involved in a multimillion dollar project to build a holiday spa there in the desert. The million-acre tract is called Paradise Wilds and the plan is to sell sites to the international set. Half the land will be used for villas and half will be set aside as a game preserve. An elephant in every garage, perhaps?

Some Yoko! Ono it's Lennon.

The 'New' McGovern

The leaves are turning to gold and the days are growing shorter.

But the September days must be mighty long for the Democratic presidential hopeful as, minus the gold that could enhance his campaign, he struggles doggedly for the key to the White House.

With some seven weeks to go, Senator George McGovern has moved rapidly but seems to be going nowhere. As of today he's dismal last in the polls and last in the hearts of his countrymen despite shifting and turning and changing courses in midstream.

His political platform today is a far cry from the tenets that served as a springboard toward his capturing the nomination in Miami and yet the very change is proof positive of the untenable position of the senator from South Dakota, almost hopelessly entangled in problems that defy solution.

No longer does he espouse huge welfare handouts. No longer does he scorn the support of the oldtime Democrats. His view on the economy have changed. He has shifted positions with regard to the Mideast.

But in moving toward a more centrist stature, he has succeeded in alienating many from the left and from the under 21 group who had been among his staunchest supporters. At the same time, there's a question of how much new backing he has attracted.

The biggest crowds of his campaign to date have been attracted in his swing from the midwest to cities in the east but again there is uncertainty whether the voters are flocking to see and hear him or whether it's the fact he has had Sen. Edward Kennedy by his side.

One of the apparent puzzles of the campaign up to now is Mr. McGovern's failure to make more headway with the economic issue, traditionally a platform plank that has scored points for the Democratic party, and an area that could be considered vulnerable for President Nixon.

There has been an upward business trend, but food prices remain high. So do the unemployment figures. But along with the jobless total, which includes many married women and young people looking for their first pay checks, is a record employment figure as well. And this probably is the answer to why the Democratic nominee has not been able to create a bigger economic stir.

The Watergate incidents have provided some ammunition for the Democratic side but while the bugging allegations seem to be of interest to the professional politicians, they are of scant concern to the average voter.

Only in one area do the polls offer any vestige of encouragement to the McGovern forces. A recent Gallup poll showed that a higher percentage of Democrats than Republicans is willing to work in the presidential campaign, 15 per cent as against eight per cent, and of the people interviewed 47 per cent of the McGovern forces said they'd donate $5 to his campaign while only 44 per cent of the Nixon backers said they'd contribute $5.

Well, you have to take comfort where you can these days.

Alcohol on Highways

It has long been suspected by safety authorities that alcohol plays a serious role in death on the highways, but the confirmation in an official government report is more serious than any predictions had been.

In sending the report to Congress for action, President Nixon said that the statistics on drunken driving revealed that one-half or 27,000 of the 55,000 road deaths in the United States last year were alcohol-related.

Most recent surveys showed that of every 25 cars on the road at night, one was operated by an intoxicated driver. "By any reckoning, this amounts to a lethal version of Russian roulette," the investigators said.

"United States laws are far less harsh than those in foreign countries," the report said, "despite the fact that some 27,000 of our fellow citizens are killed each year in highway accidents in which alcohol played a part. This situation tends to offset the positive factors, such as safer highways, safer vehicles, better trained drivers and more efficient technicians."

Federal standards for determining whether a driver is legally drunk—a blood concentration of 10 per cent—are being adopted rapidly with 38 of the 50 states now enlisted. These tests determine possible guilt. What we need now are ways to eliminate drunken driving. One way could be to imprison all who are drunk at the wheel—if they survive.

Watergate Linked to Mitchell

WASHINGTON — Former Attorney General John Mitchell's name has been linked to the Watergate espionage operation by a witness in the case.

The witness, Alfred Baldwin, has sworn he was a member of the Mission Impossible crew that spied on Democratic Party headquarters. One of his espionage reports, he has alleged, was addressed personally to Mitchell.

By Baldwin's account, he gave an oral report to James McCord Jr. who was then the security coordinator for President Nixon's campaign committee. In Baldwin's presence, McCord allegedly put the report in writing and addressed it to Mitchell.

Subsequently, McCord was arrested at gunpoint with four other men inside Democratic headquarters. They were wearing surgical gloves and carrying eavesdropping equipment.

Baldwin has confessed that he monitored conversations picked up by a bug planted in one of the Democratic Party telephones. The bugged conversations were reported in memos, which McCord sent both to the White House and the campaign committee, Baldwin claims.

The memo that went to Mitchell, however, didn't deal with the bugging operation. As Baldwin tells it, he was asked to check on security in the building where the President's campaign committee has its headquarters.

He cozied up to a secretary in the law firm of Reeves and Harrison, which has offices in the same building. She told him that one of the law partners had contributed to George McGovern's campaign.

When Baldwin reported this to McCord, the security chief allegedly dashed off a memo to Mitchell warning that the law firm was a political security risk.

Baldwin gave the FBI a 100-page statement detailing his role in the Watergate caper. Thereafter, he reportedly was granted immunity from prosecution in exchange for his testimony before a federal grand jury.

A former FBI agent, Baldwin said he had been assigned at first as a security guard for Martha Mitchell. His instructions were not to let her out of his sight except when she went to bed. He was also handed a roll of money and was instructed to buy her anything she wanted and to pay cash, he said.

When he joined the Watergate espionage operation, Baldwin said, McCord shoved a .38 pistol at him. Baldwin protested that he didn't have a pistol permit. McCord allegedly told him that he didn't need one, because he was attached to the President's campaign committee.

On May 9, Baldwin said he caught an Allegheny flight to visit his home in Connecticut. As he boarded, the electronic anti-hijacking equipment detected the pistol. He couldn't produce a permit, so he was detained while the airline checked with the President's campaign committee.

Apparently, pistols, burglar tools, bugging divices, surgical gloves and cameras suitable for photographing documents were all part of the standard equipment available at the President's campaign headquarters across the street from the White House.

Bank Records

Justice Department lawyers, apparently, have lied to the courts about the practice of snooping into people's private bank accounts without court authorization.

On several occasions, we have published excerpts from FBI files which prove bankers willingly turn over their customers' records without being served with a subpoena.

A month ago, however, government lawyers in San Francisco and Washington, D.C., told the federal courts the government always gets a summons or subpoena first.

Not only does this [illegible] directly in the face of our documentary evidence, but it also contradicts the testimony of a highly placed Justice Department official.

The official, organized crime chief William Lynch, admitted to a Senate subcommittee last month that "in certain types of investigations" government sleuths get bank records without a subpoena "with some degree of frequency."

Under intense questioning by Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., who is leading a move to write laws protecting the privacy of bank records, Lynch also confessed that "in particular situations they (banks) have been reasonably cooperative."

In other words, what the U.S. attorneys said in court flatly contradicts the Justice Department's testimony before the Senate. Someone, obviously is lying.

Footnote: In his Senate testimony, Lynch said the FBI went after bank records only when investigating "violations of criminal statute." We have documented cases in which the FBI got the bank records of dissidents like Jane Fonda, Dr. Benjamin Spock, and black civil rights leader Floyd McKissick. So Senator Tunney was prompted to ask Lynch whether "criminal statute" violations included "political surveillance cases." Replied Lynch: "I do not know what you mean by that."

Connally No Deserter

WASHINGTON — John B. Connally made an interesting declaration the other day explaining why, as a Democrat, he feels justified in supporting President Nixon for re-election. Mr. Connally was governor of Texas for three terms and served as secretary of the navy under President Kennedy. He has been secretary of the treasury in the Nixon administration.

Mr. Connally is outspoken on the theme that he is not deserting the Democratic Party when he supports the incumbent President. He says:

"I am not a Republican — in fact, I am a life-long, active Democrat. I am proud of my party, of what it has done for America and of what it stands for with the American people. I believe in its traditions, an the leadership it has produced in my lifetime.

"But a political party is either the beneficiary of its leadership or the victim. Throughout most of its history the Democratic Party has benefited from its leadership. In 1972 it has become the victim.

"Senator McGovern and his associates have made it clear that they cannot lead a united party — and certainly cannot be relied on to lead a united America.

"Far from becoming a more open party in which all can participate, the Democratic Party under Senator McGovern has become an ideological machine closed to millions of Americans who have been loyal and steadfast Democrats all their lives. . . .

"Our support of President Nixon does not involve in any way the campaigns of Democratic candidates who are running for state, local and congressional offices across the nation.

"But when it comes to the presidency of the United States — when it comes to choosing the man who must lead us all through the next four challenging years — we cannot afford to settle for second best. We cannot afford to put party before country."

Mr. Connally goes on to point out that great decisions will have to be made in the next four years which will influence the course of this country and the world for a long time to come. He declares that the next president will have to be a man other nations "can trust and respect."

Praising the foreign policy of President Nixon, Mr. Connally asserts that he has done more to improve international relations than any president has accomplished in modern times. Mr. Connally contends that the American citizens by their votes will impress nations throughout the world. He emphasizes that he, as a Democrat, wants to see Mr. Nixon reelected because the President is "a man who has proven that he can do the job."

"Many of you," says Mr. Connally, "may not agree with every policy of the Nixon administration on every issue, large and small, that faces the nation. Neither do I. But in a presidential election, it is our duty to choose the best man, to weigh the character and qualifications of both candidates and decide which one comes closest to our ideals and traditions as Americans."

Referring to the coming election as "the most important decision in the world this year," Mr. Connally adds:

"It will not be made by statesmen at some faraway conference — not by the wealthy and the mighty in some board room — and not by a handful of power brokers in some political gathering.

"It will be made by the American voters on November the 7th, when we will elect a president of The United States — and that decision which we will make is the most important decision this year anywhere on earth."

These are strong words of support from a man who has been a lifetime Democrat and who is not deserting his party but is supporting the candidate he thinks is best fitted for the tasks ahead. Indeed Mr. Connally himself may be a candidate for the presidency some day, and it wouldn't be surprising if he won the nomination in either party. He has emphasized the doctrine that, so far as the presidency is concerned, it is the man and not the party which is to be given prime consideration and that independent-minded voters can help America to elect the most capable person to the highest office in the government.

Martin F. Nolan Says

TV Ads for the Guy in Queens

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. — George McGovern fell asleep as his car approached Triborough Bridge, but when he woke up he asked Matty Troy, "What should I be saying to convince the voter in Queens?"

Troy, Democratic leader of this crucial fulcrum of a county in New York, replied, "Show the middle-class black guy, the middle-class white guy in Queens that you care about him and his problems just as much as you care about the problems of the lettuce-pickers in California and Arizona. You should care about the lettuce-pickers. They're important, but you should care about the guy in Queens, too."

To follow that advice isn't easy in a campaign day devoted to "momentum," "impact" and the other will-o-the-wisps that so fascinate candidates. So McGovern is relying on television.

Up in these fake-Tudor high rises the same McGovern message has been coming across, the same message that filters from the fluorescent screen in living rooms in Denver, taverns in Toledo, kitchens in Los Angeles.

In nearly every one of the dozen or so McGovern commercials now on the air, the candidate appears coatless, talking with workers, blending in almost anonymously with the industrial background. The message from producer Charles Guggenheim is subtle and brilliant: when was the last time you saw a short-sleeved Richard Nixon talking to ordinary people?

"That big iron fence around the White House is a symbol," said the shirt-sleeved celluloid McGovern during a commercial on Thursday Night at the Movies, "a President talking to no one but his own advisors — there's nothing worse than an intellectual without a heart."

On Monday night, just after an ABC police saga and just before the Redskins-Vikings game, a lumber-jacketed worker complains that he is "sick and tired" of all politicians and candidates sounding alike.

A shirt-sleeved and slightly indignant George McGovern answers him, saying, "Politics is my profession and I'm embarrassed when it doesn't work." After denouncing "phonies," he says, "I don't expect you to agree with everything I say, but when I say something, it's the truth, it's really the way I feel."

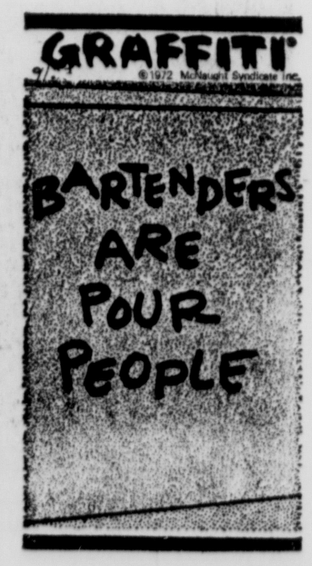
The Guggenheim commercials are nearly all reruns from the primary campaign, when candor was considered a McGovern asset. The longer ones are five minutes, patched onto the end of network movies. These allow more time for the candidate to listen. The 60-second spots are more hard-sell.

The most remarkable aspect of the five-minute jobs is that the candidate does indeed listen and well he should. The auto workers and Vietnam veterans in these films are more articulate than, say, the average book critic or sociologist.

The only change made in some of the newer commericals is at the end. In the primaries, for the narrower audience of true believers, the off-camera plug was: "McGovern — right from the start." Now, the slogan is: 'McGovern for the people," or, in an added refinement: "McGovern — Democrat — for the people."

President Nixon's commercials will have the invisible offstage presence of Joe McGinnis, whose "Selling of the President" book crimps the credibility of the Republican TV effort, which has yet to begin. For the guy in Queens, Nixon is still a distant image.

The TV commercials are more important than the rallies, ballons and motorcades. McGovern can't hope for a miracle from them, but they may deliver one familiar message: "Try it, you'll like it!"



Freeman Readers Write Letters to Editor

Israeli Sympathy

Editor, The Freeman:

When I read your editorial in last Thursday's paper about innocents being killed by the Israeli, and your condemnation of Israel, I was astounded at the bias and one-sidedness of your opinion. If some civilians were killed by the indiscriminate bombing of terrorist villages, and the bombs may even have been from the Syrian planes, I too lament that fact. But you, as an editor of an impartial newspaper, should not forget so soon the murder by Arabs of the Israeli Olympic athletes, the sheer murder and massacre of civilians at the Lod Airport, many of whom were not even Israeli, the bombing by Arabs of Israeli civilians in supermarkets, and the killing of school children in the school buses, and these were not indiscriminate, but with intent to kill. Or perhaps Israeli civilians are dispensable in your opinion, as Jews have been considered in all dark ages and by all prejudiced people.

Why haven't you written such fiery editorials and diatribes against those intentional murders. Israel is fighting for her life. I do not say that two wrongs make a right. But when a land that has since its inception been seeking peace with its enemies, as Israel has done, and the enemy is continually sabre rattling and threatening with annihilation, who is justified, the peace seekers or the war mongers? And you know as well as I that if Israel had not kept up her defenses, and had weakened her military power, the Arabs would have long ago wiped her off the face of the earth. Are you really trying to establish a case for those poor, murderous Palestinian terrorists? They are not fighting for a land that was theirs. Study your history and you will learn that Palestine was the land of the Jewish people long before the Arabs ever thought of settling there, and long before there existed an Islam religion. The Jewish people lived in Palestine for over a thousand years, with Jerusalem as its capital, and since the Roman conquest has been without a country for two thousand years. Wasn't it about time that the Jews were allowed to go back to settle in their own land, and try to live without persecution and pogroms!

Israel at the present time is permitting Arabs to live there, and the Arabs whom I have spoken to when I was in Israel, told me that they never enjoyed their economic and spiritual existence as they do now. What was Palestine before Israel established itself there, if not a wasteland, uncultivated and never made to flourish by the Palestinian Arabs. When the League of Nations, under the Balfour Declaration, gave the Jewish people the right to settle in a partitioned Palestine, wasn't it the Arabs who instigated the wars of 1948, 1956 and 1967? Have the Arabs once said they were willing to negotiate with Israel?

What do you want Israel to do? Permit the Arabs to push them into the sea? No anti-Israeli propagandist, and no anti-semite will again be able to see that day. Israel is here to stay, and 12 millions Jews over the world corroborate that statement, and all just and clear-thinking people give their assent, and if she has to resort to arms to be able to live, no fair-minded person can blame her. Although you say in your editorial that Israel has lost the sympathy of the world by her recent actions against the terrorists, I do not agree with you. She may have lost the sympathy of people like you, but not that of the world.

Of course, as editor, you have the right to refuse to print this letter, or edit it out of all sense, but that is your prerogative. I merely wanted you to know how unjustified your editorial was.

Munich and Guerrillas

Editor, The Freeman:

This is in regard to your editorial of Thursday, September 14, 1972, concerning the Israeli attacks on guerrilla bases.

To preface my remarks, I must go back to the incident at Munich where 11 Israeli athletes were killed. According to this newspaper's editorial, that incident never occurred. There was not one word from the editors on their thoughts and opinions on this matter.

Now we come to the "aggressive" Israeli reprisals and all the world sympathy Israel has lost because of these reprisals. Let me say that one can never lose what one has never had.

Lest the editors of The Freeman forget, let me take this opportunity to remind them that Israel became a nation at a very dear price. Six million dead, burnt in the ovens of Nazi Germany, and burnt like the mark of Cain on the conscience of the world.

That I disagree vehemently with your editorial is besides the issue. The issue is this: Where was the Freeman's sympathy when the 11 Israelis were killed in Munich.

Israeli Editorial

Editor the Freeman:

I was quite disturbed by your blatant anti-Israeli editorial "Death of Innocents" last week I had thought that the innocents were the slain athletes in Munich.

It is an established fact that the terrorists operate out of southern Lebanon. Israel has to defend her self as a nation against these people who are sworn to push her into the sea.

Right to Life

Editor, The Freeman:

It is sad that Rose M. Williams, in her recent attack on the Right to Life philosophy, was so badly misinformed on what she claims to be their goals and attitudes.

No one argues the fact that, because of man's indifference, he has allowed to be created within his society —MURDER, RAPE, ASSASSINATION, SKYJACKING AND CHILD ABUSE — These are the results of his lack of responsibility and lack of concern for human rights, and just plain lack of humanity. No one doubts that there are great needs and we are finally trying to constructively alleviate some of the human suffering that exists. But how? Rose Williams suggests the solution is through the destruction of the unborn child, not "fetus", (But if the term fetus is preferred, I suggest she translate it from its Latin meaning —"little one.")

Right to Life is not a minority pressure group; they are the majority, which they proved last Spring in Albany — when 200,000 pro-life lobbyists reversed both Houses into repeal — and with a larger vote than the original adoption of this horrendous law.

"Life begins for each of us at an unfelt, unknown and unhonored instant when a minute wriggling sperm plunges headlong into a mature ovum or egg." Quoted from Margaret Shea Gilbert in Biography of the Unborn (Hofner, 1963) — used as a reference by Rugh and Shetlis, M.D. in "From Conception To Birth" (Harper and Roe, 1971).

That child has rights and we are determined to protect them. We do not suggest that anyone kep an unwanted child — we have BIRTHRIGHT programs to take care of the mother from the moment she is aware of her pregnancy until after the baby is born; and lists of potential parents begging to adopt this unwanted child.

If you are going to be sexually active you must be responsible — if you aren't responsible and choose to destroy a human life, and with my tax dollars, I consider that to be an infringement on my conscience. Yes, I'll try to change the law, a law that allows freedom of choice in murder in this state. It's true the law will not change the "abortion mentality", but it will stop the 61 per cent out of state abortions that took place in New York State this past year. There have been 500,000 — one half million abortions done in this state — a generation is being destroyed, and these are not potential misfits either. Check H.E.W.'s statistics if you can pry them loose from their shame — the majority of abortions in this state have been done on middle and upper middle class married women — our future doctors and lawyers are being destroyed.

Think about it! It's time for all men in humanity to unite to protect the rights of the helpless, espceially the unborn, the most completely helpless of all creatures. We can solve our social problems by uniting and working together in a positive way, by supporting life — not destroying it.

Sincerely,
MRS. JOHANNA JANKOWSKI
Chairman

Congressional Race

Editor, The Freeman:

Lest anyone in the area forget, a very crucial congressional election is coming up, one which will determine our area's representation in the nation's capital for the next two years, the "uphili" part of President Nixon's anticipated second administration.

These next two years can greatly be enhanced by giving President Nixon a more moderate Congress than the free-spending apostles of big government with which he has been blessed these last four years.

In our district, we can ensure a more moderate and representative Congress through the election of Benjamin A. Gilman of Middletown, the convincing and resounding winner of the Republican Primary in June. Ben Gilman most nearly represents the moderate to conservative character of this congressional district, more so than Mr. Rapkin, as is evidenced by the results of the June Primary, and much more so than Mr. Dow, as is evidenced by Mr Dow's voting record, public statements and Americans for Democratic Action rating.

And yet, Mr. Dow stands an excellent chance of being reelected, an obscure yet startling fact of life in this election year. His supporters are not torn between choices and can possibly elect a winner with 34 per cent of the vote, while the other 66 per cent gets split between Mr. Gilman and his once defeated opponent Mr. Rapkin.

The needs of this nation and the interests of the District make imperative that no such "numbers game" bemuse the District's voters on November 7.

To those who would support a definite last place finisher, your support of Mr. Rapkin, who had a fair shot at the Republican nomination, can only help Mr. Dow. Yale Rapkin had his shot at the major party nomination and lost. A 15 per cent vote for Mr. Rapkin will just about ensure Mr. Dow's re-election. Your intentions are misdirected, your aims will down the wrong man. Mr. Rapkin put up a good fight and lost in June. Let us then leave him on his shield, an honorable and gallant loser, and proceed with the real business of this election, the victory of Benjamin Gilman over Mr. Dow.

Gun Control

Editor, The Freeman:

This letter is prompted by one you printed last Sunday on the subject of gun control. I sincerely wish those people who are opposed to any control, and who use quotes from the Constitution to back up their arguments, would first read that document. The Constitution DOES NOT give citizens unlimited rights to bear arms. Amendment 2 states, "a well-regulated militia, being necessary for the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed." This amendment deals with the "militia," the concept of citizen soldiers. Our founding fathers deeply distrusted large, standing armies, and felt that security could be achieved by, as they state, "a well-regulated militia." Our modern "militia" is still important, and if those individuals who quote this amendment believe so, they can join the local National Guard, or reserve units, who are always looking for good men.

Even if we assume that this amendment did concern individual ownership of arms, it was written in 1791! Our society has changed much since then Great as the men were that wrote the Constitution, they could not peer into the future. Just as our society changes, so must our laws, and even our Constitution. The needs of, and the laws for our citizens cannot be the same in our continent size, industrialized, urbanized nation, as they were for the sparsely-settled, rural, small United States of 1791.

In conclusion, I would like to say that I am not sure gun control laws are the complete answer to crime, and related problems of today, but I cannot see why ANY private citizen should be allowed to own hand guns. I personally own some sporting arms, and I like to hunt, but of what earthly hunting use is a snub-nosed 38 caliber revolver?

Sincerely
ISRAEL RAPOPORT

Lefooters Say Thanks

Editor, The Freeman:

On behalf of the Lefooters Square Dance Club, I would like to take this opportunity to thank you and your newspaper for helping to make our "Fun Night" on September 12 such an outstanding success. The articles that were printed in the Freeman on September 10, along with articles appearing in other Ulster County newspapers, helped attract over 100 possible new square dancers to our affair. Experience shows that a large majority of those who come to Fun Night stay with our square dance classes and become members of the Lefooters. Should future years' Fun Nights be as successful, the walls of the Hurley Reformed Church hall will burst their seams.

Another benefit from all the publicity was that 50 Lefooter couples came to Fun Night, many we had not seen in too long a time. These people, plus our caller, Cliff Brodeur of Pittsfield, Mass., helped to infuse a high degree of enthusiasm among our guests.

I would also like to express particular thanks to Miss Joan Woinoski for all her assistance in placing the club's publicity in the Freeman. Since I became Publicity Chairman, she has placed every one of my articles in the paper, arranged photographers for us a couple of times and on three occasions included with the articles pictures I never knew existed. Her efforts have been greatly appreciated by all of us.

Again, a hearty "thank you" to The Daily Freeman for helping the Lefooters promote what we consider great fun and healthy activity.

Sincerely,
JERRY RHODES
Publicity Chairman

Daytop Article

Editor, The Freeman:

The High Falls Civic Association heartily commends your newspaper for publishing the splendid article by Carl Graham about Daytop Village which appeared in your Sunday September 10 issue.

Our association was so moved by your account of this therapeutic community of recovering drug addicts and of the tragic fire which crippled Daytop's facility at Swan Lake, that we voted unanimously at our last meeting to contribute three hundred dollars to help Daytop rebuild in this area. Our treasury is a lot poorer, but we know that our communities and many lives will be a little bit richer; we only hope that other organizations and individuals will be similarly moved by Daytop's urgent needs, and help to raise some of the money which Daytop needs by September 25.

A number of our members recently visited Daytop Village, and attest to feelings of pride and humility — pride in the young people who are helping themselves and others forge better lives, and humility at the utter honesty, determination and friendliness of the Daytop "family." We value them as important members of our community, and hope that many people will send contributions to Daytop Village Foundation, Box 340, Swan Lake N.Y. 12783.

Ellenville School Board .... 'Decision Is Close'

By WADE BURKHART

ELLENVILLE — The Ellenville Board of Education is "very close to a decision", according to its president, but he emphasized this did not necessarily, mean being close to a settlement with the Ellenville Teachers Associaiton.

Board President Richard Shore said recently that a "hand full of points" remained to be disucssed by the board. He declneid to be more specific as to what the points were.

He said the decision the board was to reach was to accept or reject what their negotiating team had come up with, or give the team "further instructions."

The decision may come Tuesday. The school board has a meeting scheduled, and the negotiations with the teachers will be discussed.

The Ellenvlle teachers maintain they have already ratified a contract offer from the district. Shore says that isn't so.

Shore said Friday that the two sides had been instructed to write up what they thought had been arrived at in the negotiations, and to meet again to discuss what they had. He said after this, the two negotiating teams were instructed to return to their respective bodies, and seek further guidance.

The teachers say they ratified a contract last Tuesday. Shore said Friday there was no contract to ratify.

There have been some negotiations conducted since Tuesday, according to Shore.

The ETA had asked for and received support for a strike earlier in the year from the New York State Congress of Teachers. Strike plans were dropped when it appeared a settlement was near.

Clark Bloom, the teachers association president, said Thursday that the pledge of "voluntary cooperation" by the teachers, also given when a settlement appeared near, had been withdrawn, and the teachers were deciding on the next course of action.

Bloom said the teachers could do nothing until the school board took some action on the contract.

Saugerties Controversy . . . Case Continues

By MATT SPIRENG

SAUGERTIES — "I think it's unfortunate that several duly elected officials cannot perform their duties as they see fit."

This was the reaction of Peter Kramer, clerk for the Saugerties Board of Education, to Friday's decision by the Appellate Division of the State Supreme Court which has opened the way for a State Education Department hearing on the appeal of dismissed Saugerties Superintendent of Schools Dexter O. Arnold.

"I wonder what my role or anybody's role is on the school board," said Kramer, adding, "I'm not totally surprised, but I'm disappointed (by the decision)."

Dr. Arnold has asked the State Education Department to review his June dismissal by the school board, but the school board has maintained that the department does not have jurisdiction to intervene in a contract dispute between a school district and one of its employes.

A hearing had been scheduled for Sept. 6, but was postponed pending a ruling by the Supreme Court. Dr. Arnold continues as Superintendent of Schools under a court order.

"I still feel the State Education Department does not have jurisdiction over the case," Kramer said. "It's (the State Education Department) a very large dictatorial machine," he added, explaining that he was upset over the fact that Dr. Arnold had been reinstated "without hearing our side."

Dr. Arnold, meanwhile, said Saturday, "I am, of course, pleased with the decision." He declined to comment further on he case.

Arnold's attorney, Morris Rosenbloom expressed concern over the fact that no exact charges against his client have yet been stated by the school board.

With the court's ruling, it is expected those charges will be heard at a State Education Department hearing, but no date has yet been set for the hearing, according to an attorney with the department.

The department attorney indicated it may be several weeks before the hearing is held, although a special hearing might be called in view of the fact that it had previously been postponed.

SHOT TO DEATH — Joseph Strickland, 44, an assistant to the Dean of Arts and Sciences at Harvard University, was found shot to death early Saturday in his Boston apartment. Police said Strickland's death was apparently a homocide, but a medical examiner declined to call it murder until autopsy results are known. One of the nation's leading black journalists, Strickland was twice nominated for a Pulitzer Prize — once for covering the Detroit riots in 1967 for the Detroit News. (UPI)

Area Police Arrest Four

KINGSTON — Area police authorities nabbed four persons for possession of dangerous drugs in three separate incidents Saturday morning.

Kingston City Police arrested Dolores C. Isusi, 19, of RD 4, Box 286, Kingston on charges of criminal possession of dangerous drugs in the sixth degree when a quantity of marijuana and pills was noted to be in her possession on Wall Street, in Kingston shortly after midnight. Police said the alleged drugs fell from a purse that the woman had dropped.

Arraigned before Special City Judge George A. Beck, the woman was released in her guardians' custody for a reappearance in court on Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Ulster County Sheriff's deputies arrested a Brooklyn youth and his school teacher in a wooded area in Glenerie later Saturday morning on drug possession charges. First Sergeant Donald Policastro said deputies on patrol noted a car parked in the area which had an expired registration. In checkng the vehicle, deputies found a quantity of alleged marijuana.

A search of the nearby woods turned up six campers, two of whom were arrested on charges of possession of dangerous drugs in the sixth degree when a further quantity of alleged marijuana was found on their person, according to deputies. Taken into custoday were George Elliott Corbett, 22, a Brooklyn teacher, and one of his students, Michael Loweth, 16.

Arraigned before Town of Kingston Justice Richard Alberstadt, both were fined $50 each after pleading guilty to the charges and were released when the fines were paid.

Several Accidents Reported

KINGSTON — Several area accidents were reported by police authorities Friday evening and early Saturday morning.

One person received minor injuries in a three car pileup on Route 28 at the intersection near Big Scot Department Store shortly after 5 p.m. Friday.

According to Hurley State Police, a car operated by Sheila Phelan, 24, of Shokan, was stopped for a red light when a car operated by James Chambers, 36, of 24 Virginia Drive, Kingston, was allegedly struck from behind by a third vehicle, forcing the Chambers car into the rear of the Phelen vehicle. The driver of the third vehicle was Lorenzo Black, 49, of Shirleysburg, Pa.

Chambers was taken to Kingston Hospital where he was treated and released after reportedly suffering bruised knees and complaining of neck and back pains, police said.

One person was hospitalized and two others received minor injuries in a two-car head-on collision on Clinton Hollow Road in the Town of Clinton, Dutchess County, late Friday afternoon.

Hospitalized was Julia Kelly, 18, of Clinton Corners, a passenger in a car driven by Peter Makebish, Jr., 24 also of Clinton Corners. She was listed in good condition at St. Francis Hospital, Poughkeepsie, on Saturday. Makebish received a summons from Rhinebeck State Police for failure to keep right.

The driver of the second vehicle was Daniel Cannon, 21, of Staatsburg.

Ellenville State Police meanwhile reported issuing a summons for failure to keep right to Wallace McCarthy, 21, of Aliquippa, Pa. when he lost control of his vehicle on Briggs-Highway in Greenfield Park at 12:30 a.m. Saturday and struck a garage owned by George Schukow.

McCarthy reportedly received minor injuries in the mishap and told police he would see his own physician, according to authorities.

Beacon School Strike Talks Continue

BEACON, N.Y. (UPI)—Further talks to end Beacon's two and a half week long teachers strike took place Saturday night.

Mayor Robert Cahill reported that "some progress" toward a settlement had been made.

A group of high school students who feel that their summer vacation's been long enough demonstrated and petitioned to get their teachers back in the classroom in the Dutchess County city.

Some 125 of the youths held a Main Street march Friday carrying signs reading "End the Strike" and "Education, Not Money." Following that, several of them began a drive to get Beacon residents' signatures on petitions calling for an end to the two-week old walkout. In the first few hours they collected more than 500 names from the community of about 14,000.

An earlier effort by Cahill to mediate an end to the dispute was unsuccessful when a representative from the board of education failed to show up at a meeting called to discuss the issues separating the board and the Beacon Teachers Association. Instead, Cahill talked with teachers' representatives and a state mediator.

Wages, working conditions and fringe benefits highlight the 14 issues separating the two sides. About 180 of the city's 200 teachers have been off the job since Sept. 7, and only attendance-recording has been done in classes by volunteering parents and supervisory personnel. The city's six schools have an enrollment of 3,600.

The union's leaders have defied court orders to end the strike.

State Plans 'Bonus' Phase Out

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The State Tax Department plans to phase out a portion of the bonus lottery system starting next month.

Commissioner Norman Gallman said Saturday that beginning with tickets sold for the Oct. 12 weekly lottery drawing, those persons holding tickets with the last two digits of the winning number sequence will no longer be eligible for the bonus drawing.

Instead, those with tickets bearing the last two digits of the winning number will receive 5 tickets for the following week's drawing. The prize carries a cash value of $2.50 based on the 50-cent weekly ticket purchase price.

Gallman said that since the lottery offers 9,000 prizes for each one million tickets sold weekly, the new concept will mean 45,000 free tickets will be given away for each one million sold in the weekly lottery.

Full details of the new program are to be announced next week, Gallman said.

Moore Succeeds Bishop Donegan

NEW YORK (AP) — The Rt. Rev. Paul Moore Jr. was installed Saturday as the 13th Episcopal bishop of New York in a colorful centuries-old ceremony that ended with a sermon devoted, in sharp contrast, to the problems of modern urban America.

After receiving the pastoral staff from the retiring Rt. Rev. Horace W.B. Donegan, Bishop Moore told his congregation and visiting dignitaries: "I do not believe it is the will of God that New York should die, nor that Yonkers should, nor Newburgh, Poughkeepsie, nor any other place.

City Police Arrest Man

KINGSTON — A 22-year-old Saugerties man was arrested by City Police Friday night after he allegedly kicked in a front window on the Rondout National Bank on Broadway when bank personnel refused to cash his check.

Charged with criminal mischief in the second degree was Gilbert DeMar of RD 2, Box 29, Saugerties. Police said DeMare allegedly did $300 to $400 worth of damage at the bank.

Arraigned before Special City Judge George A. Beck, DeMare was remanded to jail in lieu of $250 bail. He is scheduled to reappear in court Monday.

Safe Driving

The Continuing Education Department at Kingston High School will offer the state-mandated three hour Safe Driving Course on Wednesday, Sept. 27, beginning at 7 p. m. Students must have a learner's permit together with registration fee at the time they take the course. Registration must be made by calling the Vocational Department at the high school.

Wawarsing Bond Vote

WARWARSING — The vote on the bond issue for the new Town Barn in the Town of Wawarsing will be held Tuesday in the old Town Barn, 270 Canal Street, Ellenville from noon to 8 p. m.

The bond issue is for $100,000. The barn is supposed to cost $160,000 or less, with $60,000 for the construction already in the town's capital reserve.

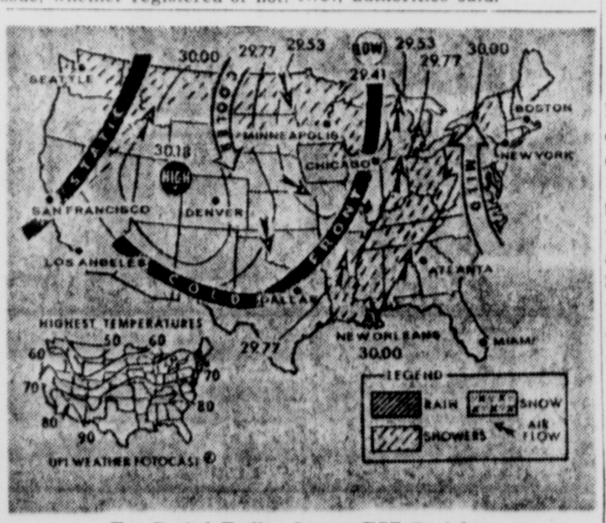
Town Clerk Kenneth Mitchell said all qualified voters in the township could vote on the bond issue, whether registered or not.

Deputies Arrest One

A 20 year-old alleged deserter from the U. S. Marine Corps was taken into custody by Ulster County Sheriff's Deputies in this township Friday afternoon.

Carl Thomas Metzger of Route 28, Big Indian, was being held in Ulster County Jail Saturday afternoon pending arrival of military authorities, according to First Sergeant Donald Policastro.

Metzger was allegedly A.W.O.L. from Camp Lejeune, N.C., authorities said.



For Period Ending 7 p.m. EST Tonight.

Boy Struck By Automobile In Woodstock

WOODSTOCK — A seven-year-old Spring Valley boy was admitted to Kingston Hospital for observation Saturday night after he was struck by a car on Route 212 in Woodstock.

Steven Weintraub of 22 Sandy Brook Drive was reportedly struck when he ran in front of a vehicle operated by Wayne J. Rydzewski, 27, of Sunset Gardens, Kingston, at the intersection of Route 212 and Maple Lane shortly after 6 p.m.

Woodstock police arrested Rydzewski on charges of driving while intoxicated. Arraigned before Town of Woodstock Justice Kevin Sweeney, Rydzewski was released in his wife's custody for an appearance at a later date.

Burning Wires

Firemen responded to a call late Saturday afternoon concerning burning overhead electrical wires on Wall Street.

Upon arrival at the scene, firefighters found that a limb which had been trimmed from a tree by George Anderson of 37 Wall Street had fallen on the wires, causing them to short and the insulation to burn, authorities said.

Central Hudson Gas and Electric Co. was notified and firemen stood by while necessary repairs were made.

Frolic Politic Listed Today For Rifton

RIFTON — "We have been producing plays about the Mid-Hudson region since 1927 when our camp moved to Esopus township," Walter Ludwig told The Freeman. Ludwig directs the Goddard-Riverside Camp for Older Adults who are presenting Frolic Politic '72 at the Anna Devine School, Rifton, this afternoon.

"The daming of the Wallkill at Sturgeon Pool and the flooding of old Rifton was written and acted by our 12 and 13 year old campers back in the summer of 1928," Ludwig recalls. "Carl Cramer talked to our campers and we dramatized three episodes from his book, The Hudson. He saw one of the plays and liked it better than a radio version.

Ludwig wrote a comedy, Grandma's Rainbow Road, which the Goddard-Riverside Players presented to senior citizens clubs of Ulster County in Kingston's municipal auditorium in, September of 1970. He prepared Maxwell Anderson's High Tor for production by his group last September in the college auditorium at New Paltz.

State Police Nab One

ROSENDALE — Hurley State Police arrested Ralph Banks, 19, of Creek Locks Road, Rosendale, on a complaint Friday evening, and charged him with possession of stolen property.

Banks was allegedly in possession of a bicycle stolen in July from Raymond Harbeck, police said.

Gallup Poll

Few Want End of Controls

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J.

Although widespread dissatisfaction with the application of wage-price controls continues to exist, only a very small proportion of the electorate favor removing them entirely.

Views on wage-price controls are of great political significance in the present election campaign. Every Gallup indicator shows the economy to be the number one domestic worry of the U.S. electorate, with "checking the high cost of living" named most frequently by voters as the domestic issue of most importance in determining how they would vote if the election were being held at this time.

The Democratic Party Platform calls for the elimination of "the unfair bureaucratic Nixon wage and price controls," while the Republican Party Platform calls for the removal of all controls "once the economic distortions . . . are removed."

Only 9 Per Cent Want Controls Removed

The current survey shows public opinion leaning heavily to the side that wage-price controls should be made "more strict" (45 per cent hold this view) rather than "less strict" (15 per cent say this). Twenty-nine per cent think they are all right as they are now.

Nine per cent of persons in the survey favor taking off controls entirely, or roughly one-half of those who say controls should be made less strict.

While three persons in ten (29 per cent) express satisfaction with the way wage-price controls are presently being applied, twice as many (60 per cent) indicate dissatisfaction — that is, say either that controls are not strict enough or that they are too strict.

McGovern, Nixon Backers Hold Comparable Opinions

The views of McGovern and Nixon supporters are closely comparable, although those who favor McGovern are slightly more inclined to say controls should be less strict than are persons who back Nixon.

Forty-three per cent of McGovern supporters would like to see controls made more strict, as opposed to 19 per cent who say less strict. Twenty-four per cent say they should be kept as they are now.

Approximately half, 49 per cent, of Nixon supporters think controls should be more strict, compared to 12 per cent who say less strict and 31 per cent who feel that they should be kept as they are at present.

Little difference in opinions is found on the basis of region of the country, income level or occupation group.

Of particular interest is the fact that labor union families hold views closely comparable to those of non-union families, although labor leaders have been sharply critical of President Nixon's economic policies.

Consistent with Earlier Findings

Today's survey results are consistent with earlier findings recorded in surveys taken since President Nixon announced his new economic program on August 15 of last year.

These findings have shown the American people — both union and non-union — to be in favor of some form of controls, and sizable proportions willing to accept more rather than less strict controls.

President Nixon's August 15 announcement last year came at a time when public support for wage-price controls had reached its highest recorded point since the Korean war.

Details of Survey

A total of 1534 adults, 18 and older, were interviewed in person in this survey, which was conducted in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation during the period August 24-27. Following is the question asked and the results:

Do you think wage-price controls should be made more strict, less strict, or kept about as they are now?

Wage-Price Controls Should Be
More strict	45%
Less strict	15
Kept as now	29
No opinion	11
	100%

The latest results show a slight decline from the previous survey in March in the proportion of people who say controls should be made "more strict." Following is the trend:

	%	%	%	%
LATEST	45	15	29	11
March	53	13	25	9
January	48	11	29	12
November	38	15	37	10

Duchess Now Lady Of Letters

PARIS (UPI)—The Duchess of Windsor each day still dresses in her mourning black and sits down to her new task as a lady of letters.

More than 6,000 letters offering sympathy to the woman for whom a king gave up his throne have poured into her Paris mailbox since his death of cancer at age 77 on May 28.

More letters arrive daily.

Some missives of condolence are from old friends of the widow and the late King Edward VIII who became the lesser Duke of Windsor in 1936 when he abdicated to marry the American divorcee Wallis Simpson.

Most of the letters are from persons who never met the celebrated stars of one of the greatest love stories in history. The mail is postmarked from around the globe, from Sydney, Australia, to Miami, Fla., and often addressed merely, "Duchess of Windsor, Paris."

One friend described the letters as "charming and nice." He said they reflected a worldwide outburst of sympathy for the woman who was prevented by the British government from marrying the King and ignored by the royal family until shortly before the Duke's death.

Friends said the Duchess daily dictates or writes personal letters of gratitude to old friends. To the thousands of strangers who write she sends a special engraved card saying "The Duchess of Windsor deeply appreciates your kind thoughts and sympathy."

Friends said the Duchess' custom always has been to answer each letter she receives. Taking care of this mountain of missives has been the main occupation in her new life as the Duchess without the Duke.

The Duchess has shied away from public appearances since her departure from London following the Duke's funeral June 5. But she often goes out in the evening to dine at the homes of friends. And she sees friends who call at the mansion in the Boulogne Woods in western Paris where the lovers lived in self-exile.

Her friends say the Duchess, 75, still is not up to doing very much. "She's up and down, depending upon how she feels. She is rather frail," one said. "And she misses the Duke. After all, they were always together, every day."

The Duchess is not known to have any plans for the moment to move out of the mansion which the city of Paris rented to the Duke for a comparative pittance following their 1937 marriage. City officials have said they will not evict her as a tenant.

Oktober Fete At Armory On Sunday

KINGSTON

It's going to be a long day, but an enjoyable one Sunday at the New York State Armory on Manor Avenue.

For this will be the date of the Ulster County Oktober Festival. Doors will open at 12 noon and there will be a continuous flow of entertainment and activities until 8:30 at night.

The day-long event is being sponsored by the Kingston Damen and Maennerchor, the Kingston Sports Club and Kingston Rotary Club. Partial proceeds will be donated to the United Way campaign.

Recorded music will geet the early patrons to the armory at 12 noon followed by the exciting Bavarian dancers who will entertain until 2. The Knickerbocker dance band out of New York City will play until 2:20.

Mayor Francis R. Koenig will deliver an address of welcome at this point followed by singing by the Damen and Maennerchor at 3:30. The Knickerbocker dance band returns at 4 and plays until 5:30 at which time the Bavarian dancers take over. Featured awards will take place at 6 and the closing addresses by spokesmen of the various sponsoring organizations are scheduled for 8. The Knockerbocker band will play until closing time at 8:30.

The Oktober Festival is open to the public and tickets may be obtained at the door Sunday.

Fall Color Develops Slowly Throughout N.Y.

ALBANY

In the Adirondack Mountains, Indian Lake and Old Forge listed up to 30 per cent color change and Whiteface Mountain reported 20 per cent color. Letchworth State Park, south of Rochester, and Chautauqua County, showed a 10 to 15 per cent change. Ten per cent was reported by Long Lake, Saranac Lake, Tupper Lake and West Point.

Take Steps To Cut Sea Losses

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Explosions, fires and grinding collisions in the world's sea lanes are leaving a wake of death, destruction and ecological ruin, but preventive measures are emerging—gradually.

In October, the worldwide Inter-Governmental Maritime Consultative Organization (IMCO) will meet again to continue negotiating safety on the high seas.

The U.S. Coast Guard, meantime, has turned to writing regulations to stem the tide of death in home waters.

"We're starting to draw white lines in the water," said Capt. Berry Meaux, Coast Guard public information officer.

Lt. Cmdr. Ken Wodman of the Merchant Marine Safety Division added: "We are developing some pretty fancy systems to overcome human error. You still can't run a ship by machine. The ships' masters are the final authority but you can improve the way they perform by giving them additional aids."

And springing up around the world are dozens of traffic control systems in important and busy harbors and waterways to minimize the risk of collisions and groundings. The aids include the usual bobbing buoys, stop and go signals, fancy radar and computer systems and new minimum personnel standards. But there's more.

Several new U.S. laws have armed the Coast Guard with muscle. To prevent disasters of unknown proportions that might occur in places such as the petrochemical-lined Houston ship channel, for example, the Coast Guard has issued new regulations for vessels carrying dangerous cargoes.

The Coast Guard is preparing to license the operators, and possibly the engineers, of towing vessels 26 feet or more in length. These regulations were prepared under a law signed by President Nixon July 14. And just days earlier, July 10, the President signed the Ports and Waterways Safety and Environmental Quality Act.

Each act was preceded by one or more serious but avoidable accidents, such as the massive oil leak resulting from the grounding of the Torrey Canyon off the British and French coasts in 1967.

"Oil spills have focused public attention on the need for safety," said Coast Guard Lt. Cmdr. Gill Shaw, who was public information officer in San Francisco at the time the Arizona Standard and the Oregon Standard, two oil tankers, collided in the bay spilling 800,000 gallons of crude oil.

In the San Francisco Bay accident, a Coast Guard watch observed the two ships closing on his radar screen. He was in contact with one but not the other on his radio and otherwise was helpless. Under the bridge-to-bridge radiotelephone act, the masters of each ship would have been able to consult with each other and with the Coast Guard watch.

After the Torrey Canyon incident, international attention focused on minimizing oil spills. The Torrey Canyon broke up at sea in March, 1967, losing 30,000 tons of crude oil on the southwest coast of Great Britain and the Brittany coast of France. In November, 1969, the ship's owner, Barracuda Tanker Corp., and the ship's charterer, Union Oil of California, agreed to $7.2 million in damages to be paid by a consortium of U.S. and British insurance companies to the governments of Great Britain and France.

The IMCO has since agreed to limit the size of tanks in tankers without limiting the size of the ship, according to Cmdr. Don Hintze of the Coast Guard's International Affairs Division. Hintze said that when the agreement is ratified, it will be retroactive to cover ships built after Jan. 1, 1972.

IMCO also produces traffic separation schemes and one covers the Malacca Straits, a lifeline for Japanese oil resources which narrows to six miles with a treacherously shifting bottom.

But traffic separation schemes don't always work. According to Scott H. Elder of the Great Lakes Carriers Association, the separation courses established for the lakes as early as 1911 are "religiously adhered to by American and Canadian vessels (but) this has not been the case with overseas flag vessels entering the Great Lakes through the St. Lawrence Seaway."

Accidents and the desire to prevent them have led to the new laws but, as Adm. W.M. Benkert, chief of the Coast Guard Marine Environment Office, put it:

"I want to emphasize that with all of the sophisticated marine navigational aids now in existence, and being developed for the future, we still require the wisdom of human judgment to make correct decisions."

Ferroxcube Sells Its Mercury Assets

SAUGERTIES

In a joint statement made Friday by J. A. Robinson, general manager and C. H. Douglas, controller of Ferroxcube, it was announced that Ferroxcube has sold certain assets involved in the operation of its Memory Division to FX Systems Corporation, a new comapny made up of a group of former Ferroxcube employes.

Ferroxcube plans to lease 15,600 suqare feet of space within an auxiliary building to the new corporation. By making the sale Ferroxcube and its parent company North American Philips insures the continuation of employment in the community for the major portion of employes working in that division. Terms of sale are cash, a short term note and stock interest.

Commenting further on this action Robinson stated, "this is the last step in Ferroxcube's phasing out of discontinued lines and will allow us to strengthen our position in growth areas. Sales in these areas are already up 10 per cent over last year and capital investments in excess of one quarter of a million dollars are underway to handle future growth."

Ferroxcube is a major producer of quality components and devices for the Electronic Data Processing, Telecommunications and Automotive industries and operates out of a 130,000 square foot facility in Saugerties.

Klein Award From Mass. Life

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif.

William C. Klein, district representative for the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company in Kingston, N.Y., was awarded the coveted Chartered Life Underwriter designation at National Conferment Exercises of the American College of Life Underwriters here.

The American College of Life Underwriters grants the C.L.U. designation to persons engaged in activities relating to the insuring of human life values and who pass a series of professional examinations and meet the stringent experience and ethical requirements of the college. This year more than 2,000 men and women will be awarded the designation, bringing to 27,458 the number of people who have received it since the college was founded in 1927.

Klein, who joined the Mass Mutual five years ago following a career in financial news reporting, public relations, and advertising, has been a consistent qualifier in his company's Leaders' Club and President's Club as well as a repeated designee of the National Quality Award of the National Association of Life Underwriters. A founder, and immediate past president of the Ulster County Association of Life Underwriters, he will be attending the 1972 Convention of the National Association in Atlanta, Ga., as national committeemen from Ulster County.

The C.L.U. program was established to meet the professional education needs of the men and women who provide life and health insurance service for the public. The courses cover such areas as: fundamentals of life and health insurance; group insurance, health insurance and pensions; law; trusts and taxation; economics and finance; and business insurance and estate planning.

The typical candidate for the C.L.U. designation enrolls in a special study class at a college or university and spends four to five years in the program. locally, classes are taught at Albany Law School, Dutchess Community College, and, will be instituted this year at Ulster County Community College.

MOST CHANGED FORD—The most changed Ford Division car for 1973 is the full-sized Ford. Shown here is the LTD four-door hardtop. All-new sheet metal below the window line and a new segmented grille give the 1973 Ford a more formal look. All 1973 Fords have a new impact-absorbing bumper system, although the overall length of the car is increased by only about one inch. The new line of Ford cars and trucks made their debut at Johnson Ford Inc., Route 28, Kingston, recently and will be presented again on Friday, Sept. 29. (Ford Division photo)

Septic Tank Care Booklet

LIVINGSTON, N.J.

A new, free eight-page illustrated booklet entitled, "The Story of Willie Bacteria, or How To Take Care of Your Septic Tank or Cesspool" is now available to owners of septic tanks and cesspools from Singer & Denman Lumber Corp. Rte 28, Boiceville, 12412.

In a light vein, illustrated by cartoons, the booklet explains the workings of the septic tank and cesspool in simplified fashion. It describes the bacterial action of the disposal system and what is necessary for its proper functioning.

Chief attraction in the booklet is a humanized "Willie Bacteria" who is responsible for maintaining the efficiency of the disposal system. When the septic tank or cesspool user ignores the fact that "Willie" is working to keep the disposal system free from disease, and saturates him with an overdose of detergents, acids, lyes, caustics and other irritants, "Willie" is very unhappy, and more often than not, just stops working.

But there is a bright side to the story too, for "Willie Bacteria" has found a way to educate the septic tank or cesspool user, so that "Willie" can do his job under modern up-to-date working conditions, and prevent the fuss, mess, inconvenience, and expense of a clogged disposal system.

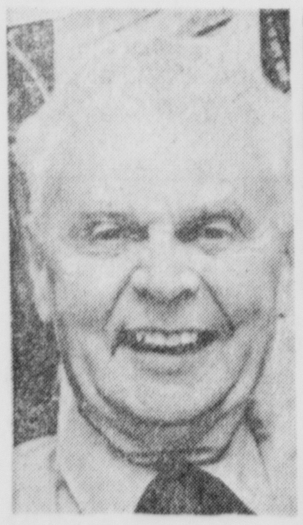
AILING — Comedian Phil Silvers is undergoing treatment at St. Clare Hospital in New York City for an undisclosed ailment. A hospital spokesman said Silvers has been in the hospital "for some time" and is in satisfactory condition. Silvers, 60, was starring in A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum on Broadway when he became ill.

CHAPERONED — Caroline Kennedy will be well chaperoned during her first year as a pupil at Concord Academy at Concord, Mass. The 14-year-old daughter of the late President John F. Kennedy and Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis recently enrolled at the Academy for the fall term. Five Secret Service agents have been assigned to guard her — three men and two women.

EXCITING — Walter J. Hickel, chairman of the first federally sponsored conference to plan research on thermal energy says geothermal power — the use of heat from the earth's interior — has the potential for producing 400,000 negawatts of power by the year 2000. "It's an exciting possibility," Hickel said. "The question is how much research will be necessary to see if it is feasible," he added.

PUZZLED — Former New Mexico Governor David Cargo, who was preparing to move to Oregon, changed his plans when he found out he had flunked the Oregon bar exam. The news left Cargo, twice governor of New Mexico and an unsuccessful Republican primary candidate in 1970 and 1972, undecided as to future plans and puzzled over the test results. "I just can't figure it out. I passed the Michigan and the New Mexico bar exams. I had high marks on both of them," he said.

A LESSON — Rep Shirley Chisholm (D-N.Y.) says that cynical Northern blacks could learn a lesson about voting from their Southern brothers who have learned the power of the ballot box. "You cannot bring changes in society unless you exercise the right to vote. If you don't vote you get what you deserve," Mrs. Chisholm said.



BUSY 77TH — Former Conservative Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker celebrated "busy" 77th birthday this week and wished for good health and reelection in the Oct. 30 election. Diefenbaker, who served as prime minister from 1957 to 1963, has held the Prince Albert seat in the Canadian Parliament since 1953.

SHAKEN — Former movie and television star Groucho Marx, suffering from what was described as "extreme fatigue" remains hospitalized in Los Angeles. His secretary said that Groucho, 81, also was emotionally shaken by the massacre of Israeli athletes while participating in the recent Olympics in Munich.

5th Avenue Cards To Mammoth Mall

NEW YORK, N.Y. Remember when greeting cards contained a rather sweet verse and were used only for major holidays? Things have changed considerably in recent years and now, in addition to the usual holiday and birthday cards, there are cards for dogs writing to other dogs and cards for cats, and even cards that try to make the best of a normally sad situation such as congratulating someone on their divorce.

Greeting cards of this type and for every possible occasion are among the thousands of varieties available at the new Fifth Avenue Card Shop which will open soon at Mammoth Mall, Ulster Avenue Mall, Kingston.

Fifth Avenue Card Shops is the country's largest chain of greeting card stores with more than 40 shops located between Maine and Florida. The chain started almost 30 years ago with the opening of its first shop at the corner of Fifth Avenue and 42nd Street in New York City. It was the first store in the country of its kind devoted exclusively to greeting cards and offered the public the largest selection of cards ever assembled under one roof. Before then, greeting cards were only a sideline in stationery, drug and candy stores.

By "giving the public what they want," the chain expanded and soon opened a shop in the world famous Empire State Building in New York, which today is the largest store in the chain and a sight-seers paradise because of its wide assortment of greeting cards, party goods, paperback books, stationery items and novelities of every description.

The Fifth Avenue Card Shop will carry the widest selection of greeting cards manufactured by all of the major companies and will be displayed in such a manner as to make it "fun" to browse around the store before you make your final selections.

It is also interesting to note that you can tell a great deal about people just by looking at the cards they buy. People buy cards that represent what they'd like to be. The office grouch, the guy who has been growling at you all year, is very likely to send you a real ho, ho ho card come a special occasion. He'll try to prove he's not the kind of guy you've been thinking he was all year, by sending you a jolly card. Quite probably he wishes he was the happy-go-lucky type and a funny card gives him the perfect opportunity to make believe he's just that. But he won't try to fool his relatives. They know him too well.

Heart Sounds Screening... 5,000 Children in County

KINGSTON — The Mid-Hudson Heart Association will again screen children in Ulster County for abnormal heart sounds which reportedly may have been previously undetected in an effort to discover children who may suffer an apparently heart difficulty, namely rheumatic heart disease and congenital heart defects.

More than 500,000 school age children in the United States have rheumatic fever, rheumatic heart disease or congenital heart defects, it is noted. Field studies have found that from 5 to 6 children per 1,000 have undetected heart diseases. Although these cases could be detected by physicians, medical personnel to cope with this problem on a mass basis are not available.

The Mid-Hudson Heart Association has made this Heart Sounds Screening Program possible by the purchase of an electronic device called a PhonoCardioScan (PCS) and by providing trained technicians to use the machine. Arrangements have been made with school districts in Ulster County to test all second and fifth graders.

Beginning Monday, Sept. 25 at George Washington Elementary School, all second and fifth graders whose parents return the permission slips will receive a free screening test. Those who reveal abnormal sounds will be given an opportunity for a follow-up examination, provided by the Heart Association, at the Kingston Hospital Cardiac Diagnostic Unit.

It is expected that more than 5,000 children will be tested during the school year. This program was made possible by contributions to the Mid-Hudson Heart Association, including a large bequest received this year.

When you child brings home his permission slip, be sure to return it as soon as possible, a Heart spokesman added.

The next school where the Heart Sounds Screening will beconducted is the Sophie G. Finn Elementary School.

DEMONSTRATION—Jeane O'Hara, R.N. (R), chief technician for the Mid-Hudson Heart Association, demonstrates the PhonoCardioScan to technicians Diane Hurd, LPN (L), Gertrude Bigler, LPN, and Sally Draney, LPN, who will be assisting in the Heart Sounds Screening program. Looking on is Cheryl Dabney while the subject is John Mahoney. Both youngsters are students at the George Washington School. (Photo Workshop photo)

Big Skylab Question... How Will Man Survive?

Alan Bean, a veteran of the Apollo 12 moon flight, will lead the second Skylab research team in August and September, 1973.

Q: What is Skylab? How many visits are planned and how long will each last?

CAPT. BEAN: Skylab will be America's first space station. It's going to be in space 270 miles up orbiting the Earth every 93 minutes, and we're going to use it for eight months. In this eight months, we're going to have three missions of three men each. One day after the Skylab space station orbits at the end of April '73, we'll send a crew up for 28 days. Two months later we'll send up another crew for 56 days, and a month later we'll send up another crew for 56. So, roughly, five months out of eight months, we'll have a crew up there.

Q: How will Skylab be launched and what equipment is involved?

CAPT. BEAN: The space station itself is going to be launched unmanned. It will go up on the same Saturn-V booster that was used for our moon flights. The third stage, in this case, will not be filled with fuel to push the command and service module and LEM to the moon, but will rather be empty. Inside this third stage, we'll have a workshop that's being built right now.

What we try to do in Skylab is use the Apollo hardware left over from our lunar program and somehow modify it as cheaply as possible to get the ability to stay in space long term. With it we've come up with a really exceptional space station that we hope is going to answer many questions that need to be answered now for the future of space flight and also for the future of how we're going to use space to help the man in the streets.

Q. What is the purpose of Skylab?

CAPT. BEAN: Well, we have three missions. The first and probably the most important one is to see what man himself can do in the long term at zero G. We know that someday men from this planet are going to visit other planets in the solar system and probably visit the stars. One of the questions is: How will they survive?

The second mission deals with Earth resources. We're going to take a look at the Earth from the vantage point of space, get the big picture of Earth so to speak. Hopefully we're going to be able to learn to monitor the resources of the Earth, to monitor pollution, for example. Many of the problems that plague the Earth at the moment are worldwide in nature, and of course space is the only thing that gives us a worldwide picture.

Third, we're going to spend a lot of time studying the Sun and other celestial bodies. The Sun particularly. All our energy, fossil fuels and everything came from the Sun, and we'd like to understand it better. We'd like to understand the processes that are going on on the Sun — maybe we'll be able to utilize some of these processes to improve the way we generate energy here on Earth.

Q: What is the nature of the Earth resources experiments?

CAPT. BEAN: We're kind of excited about the Earth resources experiment because we think that one of the real advantages space is going to have in the future of man on Earth is the ability from the vantage point of space to look down at the Earth and measure things that cannot be measured otherwise.

For example, we know that pollution is not just a problem on a small scale. Pollution that's in Los Angeles today will be in Phoenix day after tomorrow. It'll be in Dallas, Texas, the day after that.

So what we hope to do is look down at the Earth with suitable sensors, let's say infrared sensors, microwave sensors, and various other frequency bands including visual cameras and from this data hopefully we'll be able to look at crops and tell whether they're diseased or not, look at some and see if they need irrigation, look at some of the forests that we don't normally get close to and see how they're doing. We can determine the run'off that's going to happen due to spring thaws from the snows in the mountains, find fish in the ocean — many things.

We don't really know exactly all the things we can do now with Earth resources because it's in its infancy, but we do know the potential is there and the job in Skylab is to see how man fits into it, bring back this data, let the scientists look at them and see if we can figure out best how we're going to use it.

We like to think that this is going to be the most apropos to the man in the street, the farmer, the weatherman — all of us.

SLEEP TIGHT—Charles Conrad Jr., who will lead the first research team aboard Skylab next May, shows how he will sleep during the 28 days in space. The upright restraint will prevent the weightless astronauts from drifting around while they sleep.

Ulster County Vols...Field Day Oct. 8

TOWN OF ULSTER

The Ulster County Volunteer Fireman's Association held its September meeting recently at the Spring Lake Firehouse on Lucas Avenue Extension.

The meeting was chaired by Centerville Fire Chief John A. Snyder, the association's new president.

Deputy Fire Coordinator Duncan Wison reported that there were 68 firecalls in the county in July; 80 fire calls in August. Wilson added that the dates for training classes for volunteer firemen will be announced shortly.

Charles Burgher reported that the association's annual field day will be held Oct. 8 at the Ellenville High School parking lot beginning at 9:30 a.m. It will be sponsored by the Ulster County Fire Chief's Association, which will hold its next meeting at Scorsby Hose in Ellenville on Oct. 12.

Secretary Fred Harder reported the recent deaths of Jesse Lansafame of Wiltwyck Hose Co. and Raymond Whitbeck of A. H. Wicks Engine and Truck Co.

Ernest Schirmer of the Clintondale Fire Department and William Russell of the Spring Lake Fire Department were admitted as members of the association.

Ernest Dunn, chairman of the Fire Prevention Committee, reminded members of Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 8-14. Many of the fire companies throughout the county will hold activities, such as open houses, during the week.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Wilfred G. Springer of the Ulster County Blood Bank, who explained how the Blood Bank operates and the procedures required for joining the organization.

The next meeting of the association will be held Oct. 17 at the Stone Ridge Fire Department.

Meanwhile, the Association's Committee appointments for 1972-73 follow:

Mutual Aid and Fire Hazards Committee: Maurice Crookston, Rosendale Herbert Faurote, Bloomington George Garrison, Ellenville; Earl Martin, Saugerties; Gregston Greer, Walker Valley and Morton Finch, Kingston.

Speakers Committee: Edward Maines, Port Ewen.

Kiwanis Kapers Oct. 26-27-28 On Election

KINGSTON

Tony Bell, president-elect of the Kingston Kiwanis Club, will direct the 1972 edition of the club's annual Kapers show to be presented the nights of Oct. 26, 27 and 28 at Kingston High School auditorium.

The Kapers, produced each year by members of the club, will be a present day political satire on a presidential election campaign this year. It will be a combination of music, dancing, comedy and just plain fun.

Bell has been a member of the Kingston Kiwanis Club for the last 14 years, and in that time frequently has appeared as an actor in the Kapers shows staged annually to raise funds for the club's scholarship program and youth work. He currently is the club's first vice president and will assume the presidency Oct. 1.

"The 1972 Kapers will be one of the biggest productions to date," says Bell, "and the political satire should be especially appropriate in this presidential election year."

Bell has been associated with the radio broadcasting industry for 16 years and currently is general manager for WGHQ in Kingston. He studied broadcast journalism at Columbia University and was associated with radio stations in Niagara Falls and Buffalo before coming to Kingston.

Sawyers Shock KHS, 20-6, in DCSL Opener

BY IRA FUSFELD

KINGSTON — Saugerties High School, its offense eating up 177 yards of Dietz Stadium turf, and its defense blanking Kingston High's passing and running attack, dumped the mistake-prone Maroons, 20-6, Saturday in the Dutchess County Scholastic League's gridiron opener.

A capacity crowd, of which many believed Kingston would sweep its neighbors from the north off the field, sat stunned as the home team stalled constantly on offense, several times by their own fumbles and Saugerties interceptions.

The Sawyers, a team filled with seniors, but one which was considered inexperienced nonetheless, played a near perfect ball game. Rarely going to the air, Saugerties managed to pick up yardage on Kingston's highly regarded defensive line with superb blocking and hard-nosed running.

Still, it was because of Maroon miscues that Saugerties got in position to score. The first touchdown came following an intercepted pass, the second on a fumble recovery, and the third shortly after a bobbled ball.

The first quarter was scoreless, but it provided an indication of things to come.

Kingston attempted to put the ball in the air the first six times it moved from scrimmage. On the first series of downs, two of quarterback Walt Houghtaling's throws were incomplete. The other time he was dumped for a loss.

On Kingston's second series, Houghtaling lost 13 yards behing the line, got eight back on his first completed pass, then tossed another incomplete.

Saugerties, meanwhile, managed to move the ball from its 21 to the Kingston 44, all on the ground, before signal caller Billy Maines tried a screen pass which Jim Milano intercepted, ending the Sawyer threat. But Saugerties had showed that it could move.

When Kingston took the ball for the third time it went to the ground and did get a first down. But then Houghtaling went back to the air only to have Bob Heineck pick off of the pass. Saugerties took possession on its 47. It moved to the Kingston 44 and on fourth down had to punt.

But on what proved to be a key play, a Kingston penalty for holding on the punt gave Saugerties a first down on the Maroon 39. From there, Jim Whiteford ran to the 31. Four plays later, now in the second quarter, still on the 31, Maines handed off to Mark Salinivich, who in turn gave it to Whiteford on a reverse. The good-looking Sawyer back went around right end for the touchdown.

The TD came on a surprise play on a fourth and seven situation.

Kingston took the ensuing kickoff and tried to stick to the ground. It moved to Saugerties' 25. Then Houghtaling threw what looked to be a touchdown pass in the direction of Joey Fay. The throw, however, was short and was knocked down by Heineck.

On the next play, Houghtaling, running out of the pocket, fumbled right into the hands of the Sawyers' John Lechner, who ran 67 yards for a touchdown. Houghtaling was moving to his left when the pigskin just seemed to pop right off of his fingers and into Lechner's grasp. The big Saugerties defensive player outlegged three Maroons in his jaunt to paydirt.

The score may have bothered Kingston, but the Maroons still started driving when they took over again. This time KHS marched to the 25 yard line only to fumble again, Marz booting it on the 15.

When play started in the second half, Saugerties was content to eat up the clock. Nearly half of the third quarter had ended before Kingston got the ball via a punt on its 17. In two plays Saugerties would have it again, as Houghtaling fumbled on a handoff mixup.

Sawyer Bob Tammany recovered on the 19 and eventually Whiteford scored from the two on a sweep around right end. A pass from Maines to Jim Myers gave SHS two more points.

Saugerties had the ball again minutes later after another turnover (Maines' interception of a Houghtaling pass). This time the break went the other way, as Kingston's Kim Nicholas plucked a Maines throw out of the air and raced 45 yards for the Maroons' lone tally.

The TD came late in the third quarter and Kingston had enough time to come back. But Saugerties effectively kept control of the ball and the Maroons never seriously threatened again.

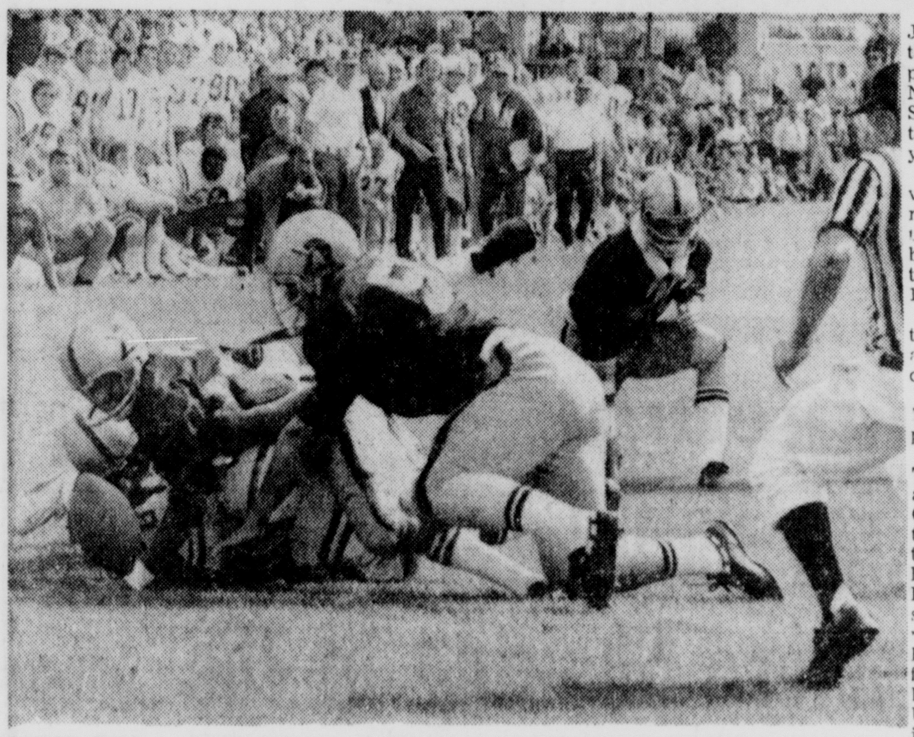
Nebraska Destroys Army



LOOSE BALL — Army's Joe Furloni (57) leaps for ball fumbled by Nebraska's Johnny Rogers (20) during first quarter action Saturday. The recovered fumble didn't help Army avert a 77-7 defeat, the worst in its 82-year history. (UPI)

WEST POINT, N.Y. (UPI)—Johnny Rodgers scored his third touchdown during a 28-point third period that enabled Nebraska to rout Army, 77-7 Saturday, and hand the Cadets the worst defeat in their 82-year history.

The 70-point margin of victory was a modern team record for Nebraska and the 77 points were the most given up by any Army team, surpassing the 51 scored by Notre Dame in 1970.

Rodgers ran three yards for the Cornhuskers' first score after only 3:28 of play and caught a 24-yard TD pass from southpaw quarterback David Humm with 1:05 left in the first period.

David Goeller plunged for two TD's and Humm dived over for another as the ninth-ranked Cornhuskers then scored three touchdowns in the last 3:48 of the first half to soar to a 35-0 lead. In the third period, Gary Dixon plunged two yards for a score, Randy Borg returned a punt 60 yards for a touchdown, Rodgers took a five yard pass from sub quarterback Steve Runty for his third score and Bill Sloey returned a pass interception 43 yards for the fourth score of the period, giving Nebraska a whopping 63-0 bulge.

Runty sprinted two yards for the 10th score and plunged over from the one for the 11th and final touchdown after Ralph Powell set it up with a 64-yard run.

Humm completed 14 of 18 passes for 169 yards before leaving the game early in the third period.

The Nebraska defensemen, led by All-American middle guard Rich Glover, completely stymied the Cadets for three quarters.

Good Start for Irish

EVANSTON, Ill. (UPI)—Notre Dame's soccer style place kicker, Bob Thomas, tied a school record with three field goals Saturday and four Fighting Irish backs scored a touchdown apiece in a one-sided 37-0 triumph over Northwestern.

The victory preserved Irish Coach Ara Parseghian's unbeaten record for opening games with nine wins before a crowd of 55,155, fourth largest in Northwestern history.

The Irish wasted no time turning the contest into a rout. Notre Dame scored the first five times they had the ball and six times out of the first eight to seize a 30-0 lead at the half. For the game they scored seven times in the 14 times they had possession.

Sophomore quarterback Tom Clements sparked the Irish attack and remained in the game until barely half the third period remained, when he gave way to Cliff Brown after Notre Dame had run up all its points.

Thomas kicked field goals of 23, 26 and 47 yards, all in the first half, to tie the Irish single game field goal record.

Darryll Dewan tallied on a 30-yard run, John Cieszkowski on a 2-yard plunge, Andy Huff on a one yard drive and sophomore Eric Penick on a 9-yard run. Thomas converted after each touchdown to run his personal total for the day to 10 points.

Northwestern, beaten 7-0 by Michigan in its opening game a week ago, helped provide the Irish with the means to their one-sided victory.

The Wildcats lost the ball three times on fumbles and three times on pass interceptions, each time making Nore Dame's scoring task easier for knocking off a Wildcat scoring threat.

But Parseghian kept his first team in the game until midway through the third period before he began substituting freely. He cleared his bench before the end of the contest.

Colorado Wins, 38-6

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI)—Big quarterback Ken Johnson and speedy Charlie Davis both ran for a pair of touchdowns to lead No. 3 ranked Colorado to a 38-6 victory over Minnesota Saturday.

Minnesota dominated the first quarter, but a Gopher fumble late in the period and a pass interception early in the second quarter set Colorado off on a couple fast touchdowns and the Buffaloes went on to win an easy victory.

Colorado scored three touchdowns in the second quarter on a three-yard run by Davis and two one-yard plunges by Johnson. Fred Lima added a 40-yard field goal and Colorado led at the half 24-0.

After a scoreless third quarter, Colorado cut loose for another touchdown in the fourth period on a 13-yard sprint by Davis after Lorne Richardson made a 32-yard runback of a Minnesota punt.

Minnesota finally got on the scoreboard in the last two minutes of the game with a 13-yard touchdown pass from reserve Quarterback John Lawing to Ken Kephart.

Colorado then marched 43 yards in seven plays for a final touchdown, with reserve Quarterback Joe Duenas passing to Ozell Collier for the final six yards.

Minnesota made a strong start and the home crowd of 42,703 had hopes of an upset. Then Minnesota made a pair of mistakes and Colorado took advantage of them.

Tony Wasn't Surprised

KINGSTON — The decisive beating Saugerties High School applied to Kingston High Saturday at Dietz Stadium surprised a whole lot of people. Kingston coach Tony Badalato was not one of them.

It wasn't that he thought his team was going to lose. No coach has that on his mind, certainly not the always confident Badalato. It's just that he knew Saugerties was going to be more of a challenge than had been advertised.

"Saugerties had the psychological edge," Badalato observed after the game. "The papers and the radio all said we were going to win the game. Saugerties was psyched up. They had nothing to lose so they came to play and took the game to us. We were tight. The pressure was on us."

And the pressure apparently got to Kingston.

"We made so many mistakes," Badalato moaned. "You know we were inside their 30 five times and couldn't score. We just don't have the consistency yet. In a way this might be the best thing that could happen to us. The pressure is off us now. I'll tell you on November 18."

Badalato was asked about the Kingston game plan, since quarterback Walt Houghtaling started out the contest with six straight passing plays, a rather unique approach for a high school team.

"I didn't think we could establish a running game," Badalato explained. "So we went out throwing in hopes that would be established. Then they'd drop back and we'd be able to run."

But the idea, workable on paper, didn't materialize when the aerial attempts either failed or never got in the air because of the Saugerties pass rush.

Sawyer Coach Fred Seither took advantage of the knowledge that Kingston would throw — knowledge Badalato chose not to hide — by priming his team defensively. Seither, naturally enough, said he was "pleased" with the way things turned out.

There were those who thought Seither knew he had a winning football team, but decided to keep it under wraps and moan about inexperience to the press. Seither disagreed.

"I really didn't expect it. We had only one starter from last year in the opening lineup today. We just played very well. I'm relieved."

What about Kingston? Seither was asked.

"They're gonna hurt some people. They weren't sharp as I expected. They made a lot of mistakes and we capitalized on them."

To say the least, it was a rude welcome to the Dutchess County Scholastic League for Kingston.

The start of the Kingston-Saugerties series was marked by an impressive ceremony at the end of the game in which players from both sides presented gifts to their parents.

New security arrangements were put into effect with this game. Only holders of special sideline tickets were allowed on the field and fences completely surrounded the playing area. The Stadium itself was freshly painted in Kingston maroon and white.

In other DCSL games Saturday, Beacon upset Arlington, 26-22; John Jay was routed by Ketcham, 28-6; and Poughkeepaie took Roosevelt, 20-12.

Red Hook Slugs Pine Bush

By TIM SCHUSTER

RED HOOK — Red Hook High School scored in each of the first three quarters and ran out the clock in the fourth to capture a decisive 20-6 football victory from visiting Pine Bush Saturday.

The Raiders took the lead on their opening series and were never headed on a 57-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Matt King to left end Randy Fister, who could not be caught as he scampered down the left sideline.

Tim Cunningham booted the conversion off the goal post for the winning point. He was two-for-two on extra points for the day.

The Bushmen ground to about half of their total 80 yards rushing in the first period, with hard-running fullback Trippy Thompson carrying most of the time. He was almost completely shut off in the second half, and Pine Bush had little luck running anyone else.

And with only three of quarterback Jack Adams' 14 passes finding their mark for the game, for a total of 29 yards, the Red Hook defense effectively stymied the Pine Bush offensive game.

The losers' only score followed a long Red Hook drive set up by Don Skelly's recovery of a Pine Bush fumble on his own 40 yard line. Captian Bob Pirog anticipated a King pass and intercepted it on the run, racing 75 yards unhampered for the score.

Thompson tried to run in the extra point, but was unsuccessful.

And Cunningham booted his second conversion to make it 14-6 at halftime.

The Bushmen put together three first downs and stalled after Herb Mead nailed quarterback Adams for a ten-yard loss and Ken Bacon dropped him another ten yards back on the next play.

Red Hook lost little time in putting its third TD on the board in the third quarter, as Tom Scorza recovered a Pine Bush fumble on the kickoff on the visitors' 30 yard lind.

O'Connor took a pitchout to the five yard line as the Raider switched into a power-I backfield, and Terry Thayer bulled his way over for the score from his halfback slot.

Pine Bush had one last real chance at a score in the game as it took advantage of two 15-yard penalties and Thompson's running to set itself up with a first a goal on the five.

But a determined goal line stand by the Raiders held them off for five successive downs, killing that chance.

An interception by Tom Engels effectively squelched the final Raider threat after King had hit O'Connor with a 62-yard pass, and the fourth quarter saw the winners kill the clock for 7½ straight minutes.

The 2-0 Raiders host Onteora next Saturday, and Pine Bush, now 1-1 in the UCAL, will take on Wallkill at home.

Tigers Close In Again

By United Press International

Mickey Lolich fired a six-hitter for his 21st win and Duke Sims drove in two runs with a pair of singles Saturday to give Detroit a 7-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox and raise the Tigers to within less than a percentage point of first place in the American League East.

The loss left the front-running Red Sox with a .5448 percentage in the race while Detroit was at .5442.

In other American League action, New York topped Cleveland, 5-2, in a game called after 6 1-2 innings because of rain, Milwaukee edged Baltimore, 2-1, Minnesota nipped California, 2-1 and Oakland edged Kansas City, 2-1.

Ernie McAnally tossed an eight-hitter and Ron Fairly socked a two-run homer Saturday as the Montreal Expos blanked the Pittsburgh Pirates, 3-0.

In other games, New York defated Philadelphia 5-3, Chicago swept a doubleheader from St. Louis 1-0 and 15-1 and Los Angeles clubbed San Francisco 7-4.

Jon Matlack, a prime candidate for National League rookie-of-the-year honors, pitched a five-hitter as the Mets defeated the Phillies.

In night games San Diego beat Atlanta, 4-1, and Cincinnati was at Houston.

Ulster Gains Title in Suffolk Tourney

SELDEN — Ulster County Community College's soccer team opened its new season in a blaze of glory here Saturday, beating Oceanside Community College 4-1 and Suffolk Community College 1-0 in a doubleheader to win the Suffolk Clipper Kickoff Tournament.

It was the first trophy ever won by a Senator soccer team and starts coach George Vizvary's squad out with a 2-0 record.

"It was a beautiful game," cried a jubilant Vizvary. "I've never seen our team look so good."

The four-team tourney began with the Senators ripping Oceanside while host Suffolk downed Sullivan. Karl Hamilton, with an assist from Gerard Lee Hing, scored the maiden goal, and Ulster was on its way.

Lee Hing fed Frank Goglia for the second score, then booted one through himself. Goglia closed the door on Oceanside off a Mike Romano assist.

In the second contest, Goglia hit his third of the day to provide the winning margin while halfback Byron Congero made an inside tackle in the closing seconds to save the victory.

"I'd like to mention a few names for special commendation," said Vizvary, then proceeded to list his entire team. But a few other judges agreed as four of the Senator kickers were chosen on the tournaments' all-star team. Selected were Lee Hing and Goglia on the forward line, Maurice Willacy at halfback and Mark Charpentier in goal.

The Senators were weakened slightly by minor injuries, but seemingly without much effect. Veteran Carl MacDonald struggled with a virus, and Stanley Mazur was hurt slightly in the first half of the opener.

Vizvary, not optimistic in his pre-season views, did a total about face on his teams' performance:

"They fought like lions. I'm extremely proud of them, and tip my hat for their wins. It's still a long haul ahead, however, and I'm making no predictions, but maybe we'll finish a little over .500."

Ulster ran up some convincing statistics on their opponents. Shots-on-goal were 25-10 against Oceanside and 20-15 against Suffolk while their combined corner kick edge was 13-3. Goalies Charpentier and Edgar Rodriquez accumulated 38 saves between them.

The all-star roster included besides the four Senators, Ray Eisenhard, Rich Haugh and Bob Levas of Suffolk, Tony Milano and Ron Aaron of Sullivan and John Lee and Dion Whito of Oceanside.

The doubleheader format is unusual in soccer and was another first for Ulster: "Four times 45 minutes, that is," said the coach, "and we could go 45 more."

State Hawks Rally to Beat Plattsburgh, 2-1

NEW PALTZ — "It was like a Hollywood script," yelled New Paltz State soccer coach Bob Durkin.

It sure was: Durkin's Hawks were down 1-0 to Plattsburgh State with time running out in Saturday's opener here when New Paltz struck for two goals in the final two minutes and 14 seconds to pull out a 2-1 thriller.

"We were absolutely flat in the first three quarters," Durkin recalled "They just owned us and only some truly spectacular saves by goalie Benny Alberto kept us in there."

Then with 2:14 remaining in the game, New Paltz reached the board. The Hawks had been coming in the final period and it paid off as Walter Blair booted a corner kick in front of the net and Dave Paliotta, who had played a whale of a game (not bad for a guy from Wales), leaped up and headed it in.

On the play, Plattsburgh goalie Tom Rootes was injured, so it was with No. 2 man Ronnie Longood in the cage that the Hawks won it.

Again the goal came on a corner kick with Blair on the booting end. He lofted one across the crease which was banged in by Angelo Gandolfino with just 11 seconds left on the board. Normally a fullback, Gandolfino, was moved up for the corner kick as Durkin figured Angelo would be able to make use of all of his height (he's six-four). The move worked like a charm.

The day started poorly for Durkin and the Hawks. Two players were late coming from New York City and two more got mixed up on the starting time. Only the day before, three players were declared ineligible.

But with Alberto holding off Plattsburgh (except for Norm Goddard's first period goal), New Paltz finally was at full strength for the final quarter surge.

"We're just as high as a kite now," cried Durkin. "They're in the locker room saying 'If we can win the rest of the games...' and yelling about how our Italian players (Paliotta, Alberto, and Gandolfino) did it for us."

Rondout Beats New Paltz on Elston's TD

NEW PALTZ — A seven yard touchdown run by halfback Tom Elston late in the third quarter gave Rondout Valley High School a 6-0 victory over New Paltz High Saturday.

Elston's tally capped an eleven play, sixty-six yard scoring drive engineered mainly by Elston (four carries for fifteen yards) and Bob Davenport, whose three carries netted seventeen yards.

New Paltz defensive end Brian Huth helped to cut down the favored Ganders' offense with two pass deflections and one interception, ending some potential scoring threats. But the Hugies' offense, led by sophomore quarterback Peter Sciascia, was sputtering, the victim of three lost fumbles and one interception. Not until the second half did either team get its offense untracked. There were no fumbles or interceptions in the second half.

Rondout Coach Mickey Million agreed that his offense could have been better, saying, "We were lucky. We had them deep on third down several times and Paltz did a great job defensively."

New Paltz suffered more at their own hands. Sciascia fumbled on the second play of the game. On their next series, the Hugies marched to the Rondout thirty-seven yard line before a fifteen yard penalty pushed them back. Rondout intercepted a Hugie pass on the very next play, ending the Hugies drive. Later, after punting from their own twenty-three yard line, the Hugies P.J. Savago recovered the punt on the Ganders forty yard line. But on the next play, the Hugies Mike Yaeple fumbled and the Ganders Harry Sherman recovered the ball.

The goofs weren't over yet. Rondout ran three plays before the Hugies' Huth intercepted a pass on the Rondout thirty-seven yard line. New Paltz pushed all the way to the Gander ten yard line, their deepest penetration of the game, before fumbling on second down, with the recovery made by the Ganders Joe Previll.

Before the first half ended, the Ganders were a bit more successful, reaching the Hugies ten yard line before two penalties and Huth ended that thrust.

Both teams looked better in the second half. Rondout scored on their second series and punted after two other series. New Paltz punted once, but on their other two series drove to the Ganders thirty-five and seventeen yard lines, respectively.

Marlboro Slams Liberty

LIBERTY — Marlboro High's Dukes made it two upsets in as many weeks Saturday, upending the heavily favored Liberty Indians 18-14 here as halfback John Bunt rolled for three touchdowns.

Liberty struggled through a day of frustrations that included four apparent touchdowns called back by the officials, three for penalties and one when a runner stepped out of bounds. It was the second straight setback for the Indians who were considered one of the league's pre-season favorites.

Bunt got the Dukes on the board in the first quarter, but not before the losers had gotten a taste of what was to come. An offsides violation nullified Liberty's first score, then a clipping penalty pulled another back before Bunt broke the ice.

But the Dukes still had to come from behind to win it. Jim Masters ran for paydirt to tie the game before the half and grabbed a Steve Foster aerial in the third period along with the extra point toss to put the home team up 14-6. It looked like the Redmen were back on the track.

A three yard burst by the Marlboro halfback in the fourth period brought the Dukes within two, however, and his thrid TD was the clincher. In the meantime the Indians saw a Foster strike to end Brooks waved back when officials ruled the Liberty receiver had stepped over the line. Despite the vehement protests of sideline observers, the call stood.

Marlboro now has a seven game winning streak going while Liberty, also carrying over from last season, has lost three straight.

Syracuse Loses to Badgers

MADISON, Wis. (UPI)—Rudy Steiner hit Jeff Mack with two touchdown passes in 12 seconds in the first period and Rufus "Roadrunner" Ferguson scooted for 153 yards in a 31-7 Wisconsin victory over fumbling Syracuse Saturday.

It was the second victory of the season for the unbeaten Badgers. Syracuse is 1-2.

Syracuse's Greg Allen fumbled the ensuing kickoff and Bob Hanssen of Wisconsin recovered on the Orangemen's eight. On the next play, Steiner rifled an eight-yard pass to Mack.

Marty Januszkiewicz fumbled in the second period and Dave Lokanc of Wisconsin recovered, setting up a 35-yard field goal by Rick Barrios and the Badgers led 17-0.

Another fumble by the Orangemen's Dave King was recovered on the Syracuse 25 by Jim Schymanski. Four plays later Ferguson, who had an 85-yard touchdown run called back because of a penalty, ran it in from the seven.

The Badgers finished their scoring in the fourth quarter when Ferguson scored from the three after a 77-yard march.

Syracuse's lone tally came in the third period on a 28-yard run by Allen.

Ferguson ran his career yardage total to 2,128 yards, still short of the Wisconsin record of 3,212 yards set by Alan "The Horse" Ameche.

KHS Booters Take Opener, 2-0

KINGSTON — Kingston High School's varsity soccer team kicked off the new DCSL season with a 2-0 shutout of Webutuck Friday as first game nerves and inexperience kept the Maroon scoring to a minimum.

"We should have scored six or seven on them," claimed coach John Hunter who cited his team's inconsistency and sloppy play, but bright spots are easy to find in victory.

One such moment was Kingston's second goal which came at the 16:60 mark in the third period. "John Robinson made a great individual effort," said Hunter. "He took the ball on the left, came across the goal and kicked back against the flow."

Robinson's shot was a 20-yarder and followed John Ivankovic's first period marker off a loose ball scramble in front of the Webutuck net.

Hunter also singled out fullbacks Randy Hobbs and Eric Greenwald for their steady efforts in the backfield.

Six turnovers stalled the Maroon offense as did a number of missed shots from easy range. Kingston held a massive 28-6 shot-on-goal advantage but couldn't find the range with accuracy.

Tennessee Wins Big, 45-6

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Reserve quarterback Gary Valbuena passed for three touchdowns, including one of 52 yards, to lead fourth-ranked Tennessee to a 45-6 rout of Wake Forest Saturday.

Tennessee's starting quarterback, Condredge Holloway, passed for one touchdown and ran for another, while cornerback Conrad Graham scored on a 13-yard run with a blocked punt. Ricky Townsend topped off the Vol scoring with a 32-yard field goal.

The Vols got their first tally late in the first period on a 25-yard pass from Valbuena to wingback Stan Trott. In the second period, Valbuena connected with tailback Neil Clabo on a 52-yard pass down the left side. Valbuena tossed his third touchdown pass three minutes deep in the fourth quarter, hitting Trott on a 21-yarder up the middle.

Holloway's touchdown pass was a 69-yarder to wingback Chip Howard on the fourth play of an 85-yard drive. Holloway ran the ball across on a 29-yard dash from an option around right end.

Wake Forest was able to cross the 50-yard line only once during the first half against the rugged Tennessee defense, then fumbled the ball away at the Vol 45. Tennessee moved to the Demon Deacon's 15 where Townsend got his field goal.

The Vols led 31-0 at halftime, and now are 3-0 after earlier victories over Georgia Tech and Penn State. The Vols open Southeastern Conference action next weekend against Auburn.

OCS Blanks Wallkill, 14-0, For First Win

BY STEVE KANE

BOICEVILLE

At halftime Onteora High School's marching band played "Fever," and it was an appropriate theme for a red-hot team of Indians who burned the Wallkill Panthers to the tune of 14-0 in the OCS home opener Saturday.

Dominating the entire first half, Onteora scored the first two times they got the ball on sustained drives of 80 and 67 yards. All-UCAL halfback Joe Phelan put the Indians up 6-0 in the first period, and quarterback Charlie Mazzola dived into the end zone to start the second period as both scores came on one yard blasts.

"We just got blown down between the tackles," moaned a disappointed Wallkill coach Jerry Trezza. They sure did. Onteora's offensive line opened gaping holes for Phelan, Ray Tesi and Jeff Port who combined to roll up 232 yards on the ground.

Phelan's extra point ramble was the last scoring of the day, but even into the second half the Panthers couldn't get themselves together. Bill Hermance got the visitors their initial first down on the second play of the third quarter, but a fumble killed that brief drive two plays later.

Offense turned out to be the winners' strong suit, but it came as no surprise to OCS coach Larry Karas: "We're better than people think we are," he stated. "I wasn't overly impressed with Wallkill, but we did a helluva job in the first half, and aside from a few defensive breakdowns we were outstanding."

So outstanding, in fact, that the Panthers ran only six plays in the first half and could only manufacture 86 yards on the ground in the second half, including a 21-yard jaunt by Mike Dunn. That run and a nine yard pass to Tom Berryann from Mark Walther moved the Panthers to Onteora's 14-yard line, but it was to be their deepest penetration as Tesi, playing defensive end, pounced on a loose ball to kill the threat.

While Wallkill's defense crumbled, junior Massola directed the Indians' attack. Starting from his own 20, Mazzola sent his backs into the line ten straight plays then surprised the Panthers with a pass that found Pat Dodge on the Panther one. But it was Tesi that made the difference in the offense.

"We've got three good backs," said Karas, "but everybody keys on Phelan. When Tesi — and Port — come through like that it takes the pressure off Phelan. There's no one who can stop him anyway."

Onteora's hitting and execution, however, was less of a shock that the Panthers' poor showing. Trezza was hard put to explain why:

"I don't know what to do about the defensive line until I see the films. I may have a whole new lineup in there next week. We never got the chance to run the offense in the first half, and in the second half the fumbles killed us everytime we got the ball."

Onteora got one more scoring opportunity with seconds left in the half. With the ball on Wallkill's 19, Grant Cormack trotted on the field to try his foot, but the kick was short and hit the upright. His point-after try on the Indians' first touchdown was blocked.

The Indians are now 1-1 and rolling, but for the 0-2 Panthers it's a long road ahead.

"Two losses don't mean we're out of it," Trezza said, referring to the title race, "but kids are going to be really down."

Highland Upends Ellenville

HIGHLAND

Highland High School ran its unbeaten streak to 17 games h[illegible] Saturday by scoring a t[illegible] down in the last minute of play to edge Ellenville 6-0 in a UCAL football clash.

The Highlanders scored when offensive guard Larry Roberto picked up teammate Randy Kite's fumble and ran it five yards into the endzone. Kite, an end, had caught quarterback Frank Diodato's pass and was hit hard as he cut toward the goal line.

Roberto's score capped off a 72 yard Highland drive which came as somewhat of a surprise since the Big Blue offense had been making more yardage in reverse during the fourth quarter.

On one series of downs in the wild final stanza, Highland backpeddled from the Ellies' 39 to its own 16. George Plimpton couldn't have engineered it much better.

Ellenville's offense was slightly less effective and decidedly less spectacular. The Ellies' attack could only muster two consecutive first downs once in the game and that still left them in their own territory.

As bad as the offenses were, both coaches had to be encouraged by the defensive play. It was a pretty rough day on quarterbacks who were under constant pressure when attempting to pass.

There were key interceptions by both teams down around the goal line. Steve Tenenbaum picked one off for Ellenville when Highland had the ball deep in Ellie country in the first period. John Gersch returned the favor when Ellenville was trying a desperation rally after the Highlanders had scored.

The game had to have been an exercise in frustration for Highland coach Lem Atkins even though his troops won.

The Highlanders seemed to be on the verge of taking charge several times, only to be thwarted by costly penalties and offensive errors. The added pressure of the long winning streak probably contributed further to the Big Blue's unsure attack.

Coach Dave Frank was visibly upset when the final gun sounded. His team had battled hard but couldn't put together enough offense to relieve the Highland pressure.

The hard fought win propels Higgland into the forefront of the UCAL race. The Highlanders boast a 1-0-1 record and will be trying to extend the Bobcats unbeaten string yet further when they entertain Marlboro on Saturday.

Ellenville now stands at 1-1 on the season. The Ellies return home for a matchup with New Paltz Saturday afternoon.

Huskies Top Purdue

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI)—Steve Wiezbowski kicked a 25-yard field goal with 2:04 to go to give 17th ranked Washington a comeback 22-21 victory over Purdue Saturday and spoil a near record rushing performance by Boilermaker quarterback Gary Danielson.

Wiezbowski's field goal climaxed a second half rally engineered by Sonny Sixkiller that brought Washington from a 21-0 deficit to its third straight victory.

Sixkiller passed for one touchdown, ran for another and set up the third touchdown and the field goal with his passing.

Trailing 21-19, the Huskies began their final drive from their own 15 with 4:56 to go. Sixkiller completed successive passes to John Brady for 20 and 16 yards, Barry Houlihan ran for 11 more, and then Sixkiller hit Gordon Bronson with a 28 yard pass to put the ball on the Purdue 10.

Three plays later, Wiezbowski kicked the winning field goal. It was the second week in a row Purdue was beaten by a fourth period field goal and the Boilermakers' seventh straight defeat over two seasons.

Pete Taggares scored two Washington touchdowns on a seven yard run and a 14-yard pass from Sixkiller. Sixkiller scored on a three-yard keeper.

All three touchdowns for the Huskies were set up by Purdue mistakes which gave Washington the ball in Purdue's half of the field—an interception by Bob Ferguson, a fumbled punt snap by Purdue's Dick Rodgers and a fumble recovery by Joe Tabor.

Sixkiller completed 17 of 30 passes for 222 yards, including 13 of 20 for 190 in the second half.

Stanford Wins

DURHAM, N. C. (UPI)—Reserve quarterback Mike Boryla entered the game in the third quarter and fired Stanford to its lone touchdown Saturday that gave the Cardinals a 10-6 victory over Duke.

Boryla hit tight end Bill Scott with a 12-yard scoring pass in the third period. Rod Garcia, who had kicked a 48-yard field goal in the first quarter, then booted the extra point.

Duke, an eight-point underdog, scored in the fourth quarter, then had two scoring chances killed by two fumbles inside the Stanford 10-yard line in the final three minutes of the game.

Duke's only touchdown came midway through the last period after a Stanford fumble on its one. Quarterback Bob Albright flipped a seven-yard touchdown pass to tight end Richard Brienza. A try for a two-point conversion failed.

Sawyer Setback

SAUGERTIES

Soccer, the newest sport at Saugerties High School, made its debut on a low key Saturday as visiting DCSL opponent Spackenkill picked up a 4-0 victory over the green Sawyers. The winners scored two goals in each of the first two periods while the second half was scoreless for both teams.

Okies Rout Oregon, 68-3

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI)—Oklahoma sophomore halfback Mike Thomas ran 90 yards for a touchdown the first time he carried the ball and quarterback Dave Robertson ran for one touchdown and passed for two more Saturday as the second-ranked Sooners rolled to a 68-3 decision over Oregon.

Robertson ran six yards for the Sooners' first touchdown and passed 49 and 32 yards to tight end Albert Chandler for two more.

All-America halfback Greg Pruitt, who fumbled to end the first Oklahoma drive, redeemed himself with a two yard touchdown run midway through the second quarter.

Oklahoma's other two touchdowns came on a one-yard plunge by fullback Tim Welch and a 13-yard sprint by his relief Kleyn Russell.

Keith Lively booted a 47-yard field goal in the final period for the Oregon's only points and score against the Sooners this year.

Oklahoma kicking specialist John Carroll was taken from the game with a knee injury midway through the second quarter. Carroll, who led the nation in kick scoring last season, had managed only one conversion in Saturday's game before he was sidelined.

The Sooners, guided by freshman quarterback Kerry Jackson during part of the first half and most of the second, amassed 609 yards rushing, 318 of it before intermission.

Robertson completed four of seven passes to add another 104 yards and Jackson picked up 18 yards in the air to give the Sooners 731 yards.

The Ducks gained 66 yards on the ground and 112 via the pass route.

Pruitt led all rushers with 103 yards on 11 carries. Thomas had 97 yards on two runs.

USC Outscores Illini

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI)—With Mike Rae reeling off two touchdown passes and kicking five extra points and Anthony Davis scooting for two touchdowns, No. 1 ranked Southern California lumbered to a 55 to 20 walloping of Illinois Saturday.

Rae hit different receivers on scoring tosses of 50 and 31 yards.

The Trojan touchdowns came on a two-yard run by senior fullback Sam Cunningham, a 35-yard dash by defensive end James Sims after a blocked Illini punt, and a one-yard plunge by Allen Carter.

Illinois, now 0-2, went on top 7-0 in the first quarter on a five-yard dash by Bob Hayes and held a 14-7 lead later in the second quarter after George Uremovich scored from five yards out.

The first USC touchdown came on a 50-yard pass from Rae to Edesel Garrsoon in the first quarter and Rae kicked the extra point to tie it 7-7 before Uremovich put Illinois ahead again. Then Davis, a speedy sophomore, scored from two yards out and Rae converted to tie it again.

The Trojans struck quickly in the second half, scoring on Davis' second two-yard touchdown. Illinois fought back, cutting the lead to 28 20, when Hayes skipped over from the one yard.

From there, it was all USC. The Trojans took complete control, scoring four times and running up their point total to 55, their highest of the year.

Penn State Tops Navy

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI)—Sluggish Penn State solved Navy's troublesome defense in the third period Saturday and conquered the Middies 21-10 on two short touchdown plunges by John Cappelletti and a 32-yard pass interception by John Skorupan.

Cappelletti's touchdowns of one and two yards brought 13th ranked Penn State from behind twice and aroused a crowd of 50,457 that watched underdog Navy repeatedly thwart the Nittany Lions in the first half.

Skorupan, a linebacker who had 15 unassisted tackles in the game, grabbed a pass by Navy quarterback Fred Stuvek in the right flat and dashed 32 yards for Penn State's final touchdown with just 1:18 remaining.

A 38-yard field goal by Roger Lanning gave Navy a 3-0 halftime lead and a one-yard touchdown plunge by Andy Pease, sandwiched between Cappelletti's scores, sent the Middies into a 10-7 lead.

But quarterback John Hufnagel, completing all four passes he threw during the drive, engineered an 89-yard march just after halftime that resulted in Capelletti's first touchdown and a 7-3 Penn State lead.

After Pease's touchdown, Cappelletti set up the second Penn State score with a 40-yard return. Hufnagel, completing three of four passes for 44 yards on the drive, then marched Penn State 60 yards for Cappelletti's final touchdown.

RHS Harriers Down New Paltz

NEW PALTZ

With fifth place in sight and a quarter mile left to go, New Paltz's Mike Clinton came up with a muscle cramp that cost the Hugies a 26-30 cross country defeat to visiting Roosevelt a a non-league season opener here Saturday.

The home team's Joe McDermott crossed the line in a course record 13:17, and teammate Judd Grosshans made it a 1-2 Huguenot finish, but the President harriers locked up third through sixth positions to take the meet. Mike Theodoseau led the victors at 14:00 followed by Gil Adnerson, T. Ignaffo and Jay Phillips.

New Paltz coach Dick James said he "didn't expect to lose," but felt Clinton's misfortune was the key. "He had fifth place, but he just couldn't finish," he said.

Trailsweepers Swap and Sell

KINGSTON

The Trailsweepers Ski Club will hold its annual Swap and Sell day on Sept. 30 from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Potter Bros. Ski Shop on Route 28 near the Thruway traffic circle.

New and used ski equipment and clothing will be sold. Anyone interested in selling items should bring them to the Potter Bros. parking lot. A 25 cents handling fee is required for each item. Sellers should put their name and price tag on the item. Ten per cent of the price will go to the Trailsweepers treasury for the benefit of organized skiing.

Club instructors and Club Ski Patrol will be on hand to provide skiing hints and safety advice.

Rain date is Oct. 1.

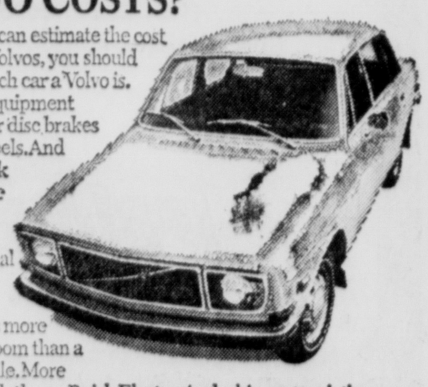
HOW MUCH DO YOU THINK A VOLVO COSTS?



Before you can estimate the cost of one of our Volvos, you should know how much car a Volvo is.
Standard equipment includes power disc brakes on all four wheels. And adjustable back supports on the fully-reclining bucket seats that are optional on one $7200 luxury car.
A Volvo has more front seat legroom than a Cadillac DeVille. More legroom in back than a Buick Electra. And a bigger trunk than a Lincoln Continental.
So you could spend a lot and get less car than a Volvo. Or you could spend $3840* and get a Volvo from us.

FRED DRYER

FINDS A HOME — The tweeze of vanity is not in his strut now. He was something special those first three years in pro football. He's just another body on the roster of the Los Angeles Rams these days. And he's learning things about defense he was never aware of.

"I'm just another guy here," he says. "I just want to be left alone."

The New York Giants' No. 1 draft choice out of San Diego State in 1969, the 6-6, 225-pound Dryer was switched from linebacker to defensive end. But, somehow, despite his potential greatness, Freddie wasn't really in the personality mold the Mara family had designed for the Giants — sedate, obedient, conservative in mien. He was an obvious beach boy from Califronia — tall, golden-tressed, individualistic, T-shirted. When hair grew long, his was among the first. That annoyed Wellington Mara, who owns the Giants.

Recognizing his relacitrance, the Giants traded him to the New England Patroits. But Fred, who was to become a free agent on May 1, wanted no part of that. Before the deadline the Patroits shipped him to the Rams. The switch suited him.

He was a big man in New York. It's not the same in Los Angeles, where they have Deacon Jones. But Fred prefers it there.

Would you believe the Minnesota Vikings and the Baltimore Colts with 0-2 records at the end of the first two weeks of the 1972 pro football season?

That would have seemed quite a longshot just a week ago but now it's a distinct possibility as two of pro football's strongest teams find themselves facing critical challenges after being upset last weekend.

The Vikings, who are the odds-on-favorite to win the Super Bowl this season, got off on the wrong foot Monday night when they were edged by the Washington Redskins 24-21. The Colts, who were heavily favored to beat St. Louis in their opener, were stunned by the lowly-rated Cardinals 10-3.

Things won't get any easier for either team today when the Vikings host the Detroit Lions and the Colts entertain the New York Jets.

Since the Lions are the Vikings' chief challengers in the NFC Central Division and the Jets — along with Miami — are contenders with Baltimore in the AFC East, neither the Vikings nor the Colts can afford a loss this Sunday.

But the Lions and the Jets, who both won their openers, also have much at stake. The Lions have suffered through eight consecutive losses to the Vikings and are eager to crack that domination. The Jets, who finally have Joe Namath healthy again, have lost to Baltimore four straight times since the historic win over the Colts in Super Bowl III.

Both games are rated just about even although the Jets generally are given a point or two in most betting odds. The bookies have been split on the Lion-Viking game with some giving a point to the Lions and some favoring the Vikings by a point.

In two other key games today, the Washington Redskins hope to prove St. Louis' victory over Baltimore was a fluke by downing the Cards and Pittsburgh wants to continue its fine start by downing Cincinnati.

Four other Sunday games—Oakland at Green Bay, Denver at San Diego, Cleveland at Philadelphia and Atlanta at New England — are expected to be fairly close contests.

Four contenders—Dallas, Miami, San Francisco and Los Angeles—are heavily favored over winless teams in the other four games. Dallas is at the New York Giants ,Miami hosts Houston, San Francisco is at Buffalo and Los Angeles is at Chicgo.

The Monday night TV special doesn't look so special this week with Kansas City favored to bounce back from its loss to Miami with a comfortable victory over hapless New Orleans.

The addition of Fran Tarkenton was the main reason why the Vikings were picked by many pro football observers to win the Super Bowl this year. And Tarkenton certainly moved the Vikings in the opener as he completed 18-of-31 passes for 233 yards and two touchdowns to move into the No. 2 slot behind Detroit's Greg Landry in the quarterback ratings.

But the Vikings were the victims of their own mistakes against Washington including a costly blocked punt, missed field goals and fumbles. Minnesota can't afford those kind of errors against the high scoring Detroit club.

Landry hit 9-of-17 for 207 yards and three TDs against the New York Giants and he's ready after suffering bruises in that game. Mike Lucci, who injured his shoulder early in the Giant contest, is also ready. The Vikings are at full strength.

Looking at the statistics, it's difficult to believe the Colts lost to the Cardinals. Baltimore had a 20-5 edge in first downs and a 364-134 edge in yardage. But John Unitas couldn't move the Colts into the end zone, even from the Cardinal two in the second half as Larry Wilson intercepted a fourth-down pass.

Baltimore's offense could be hurting this week with Norm Bulaich and Eddie Hinton listed as "doubtful" with leg injuries and the Colts will need points since Namath is liable to pierce the tough Colt defense for a couple of scores.

Washington is supposed to be a 10-point favorite over St. Louis but the Redskins can't take anything for granted after the Cardinals' surprising win last week. The Cards will miss Wilson, who's out with a rib injury. Coach George Allen will again use Bill Kilmer at quarterback but the home fans will be yelling for Sonny Jurgensen if Kilmer doesn't move the team.

Cincinnati routed New England in its opener but the Bengals are an underdog against a fine Pittsburgh team that is maturing every week behind quarterback Terry Bradshaw. Ken Anderson will continue to be the opposing quarterback for Cincinnati.

In two other interesting matchups, Oakland will try to bounce back from last week's loss to Pittsburgh when it faces a fast-improving Green Bay club and Atlanta, after a miserable exhibition season, has a good shot at a 2-0 start when it meets New England.

NEW PALTZ

The first annual Ulster County Golf Crusade for the American Cancer Society here on Saturday, Sept. 30, is really going to be different.

For the first time ever, men and women will compete on equal terms in a county golf competition. The world's longest hitter of a golf ball — Jack DePalo of Westchester county — will be on hand. And all participaints and their wives and husbands will enjoy a super-style clambake. And a prize for everyone.

Three of Ulster County's veteran golf professionals have also indicated they will participate with players from their respective clubs.

Alex Gerlak of The Twaalfskill Club, dean of the Hudson Valley pros, was among the first to indicate a desire to play. Jim Hutchins, a 22-year veteran at Woodstock, said he'd like to play and in short time Gerlak's predecessor at Twallfskill — Walter Thiel — joined the ranks of playing pros. Thiel is now the head man at the Rondout Golf, Pool and Tennis Association at Accord.

Another pro possibility is Richie Aaron of the Granit Hotel golf course at Accord. Bill Reilly of Wiltwyck Country Club and Stew Smith of Sawyerkill Country Club at Saugerties will be unable to participate because of business reasons.

The DePalo driving exhibition and nine-hole exhibition is open to the public. Tickets are on sale at area pro shops and will be available at Lucust Tree.

COLEMAN FALL FESTIVAL—Coleman High School Booster Club will kick off the new season with a Fall Festival on Saturday. On that day, parents and interested friends are invited to visit the school, see the facilities, and meet the faculty. Senior students will serve as escorts starting at 1 p.m. A soccer game between Coleman and Storm King Prep will begin at 2:30 p.m. The day will close with a 6 p.m. Mass. Food will be available throughout the day. The Coleman club was formed last year. It has funded and sponsored junior varsity baseball and soccer, purchased girls' athletic uniforms and equipment for various sports, and supervised crowds at basketball games. This year's officers are Robert Nelson, chairman; William Carr, vice-chairman; William Weishaupt, secretary, and Thomas Gorman, finance officer. Will the Young Lions Roar?

By IRA FUSFELD

KINGSTON

Will the Young Lions, now fully matured, rule the DCSL cross country jungle this season? And will Leo, alias John Cabell, make a run at scholastic fame?

That will be determined beginning Friday when Kingston High School opens the 1972 season at Saugerties. The Young Lions are the Maroon runners, only that name, which was tagged on the crew when they started as sophomores two years ago, no longer applies.

This is now a veteran Kingston team, which was runner-up to Ketcham in the DCSL last season, and which seems to have the talent to go all the way this time around.

"Leo" is John Cabell, the No. 1 Lion, who won the DCSL's individual title, was third in Section One, and 10th in the State Meet last year. The holder of hordes of track records, Cabell goes into this season knowing that everyone who finished ahead of him has graduated. This should be his year.

Cabell ran 10 miles a day during the summer. At Kingston's first practice several weeks ago, Coach Ron Gabriele instructed his club to try out the team's home course at a leisurely pace. Cabell's "leisurely pace" was timed at 10:47, four seconds faster than his course record.

JOHN CABELL

"I don't want to put too much pressure on him," Gabriele said cautiously, "but I don't know of anyone who can beat him in the league or the section. As far as the state is concerned, well, all I'll say is that he has improved and the nine guys who finished ahead of him have graduated.

It will take more than Cabell, however, for Kingston to win team titles, and the Maroons seem to have more than Cabell.

White and Krempel should be Nos. 2 and 3 behind Cabell, but Gabriele spoke of a "sleeeper":

"Sutherland has been running for four years," the Kingston coach said. "He missed one full season because of an injury and he missed part of last season because of an injury, but he's always come to practice, be it as a manager or what have you. Now, thank God, he's healthy and I think he has the potential to challenge White and Krempel."

The Maroons also have some of last year's JV team which won the league title. Elevated are juniors Jeff Robinson, Mark Davis, and Burton Davis. Kingston suffered a future shocker when three JV's went elsewhere. Tom Nee and Jim Rioux transferred to Coleman High and Jim Kwasnowski, who actually won a varsity letter as a freshman, went out for JV football.

The losses bother Gabriele, but he's still hopeful that the now mature Young Lions will carry Kingston through the season.

Knicks' First Exhibition Tuesday Against Buffalo

NEW YORK

With the official opening of the National Basketball Association's 1972-73 campaign set for Oct. 10, the New York Knicks, defending Eastern Conference champions, make their first home appearance of the season Tuesday night in an exhibition battle with the Buffalo Braves in the second half of an all-NBA doubleheader.

The game will mark the return to Madison Square Garden of Willis Reed who has been out of the lineup since last Nov. 11 with an attack of tendonitis. Rookies Tom Riker, Henry Bibby and John Gianelli will make their debut, joining veterans Walt Frazier, Dave DeBusschere, Jerry Lucas, Bill Bradley and Phil Jackson.

The Knicks, who open this year against the Seattle Supersonics, will face a much improved Buffalo team after the Boston Celtics and the Philadelphia 76er's open the twin-bill. Coach Jack Ramsey of the Braves has bolstered his club with the addition of former North Carolina star Bob McAdoo and Jacksonville's Harold Fox.

Only one other pre season game is scheduled for the Knicks in New York when they meet the Celtics on Oct. 3. Saturday night the New Yorkers face the Pistons at the Westchester County Center in White Plains.

Sawyers X-Country: Phase II Underway

SAUGERTIES

Phase II of Saugerties High School's cross country rebuilding program begins Tuesday when the Sawyers open the 1972 season against Roosevelt.

Saugerties is coming off of a winless year, but that doesn't seem to bother Coach Bud Smith, who knows that he's been forced to break in his club right from the bottom.

"I'm satisfied with their progress," says Smith. "I don't think we'll set the world on fire, but we're gonna win a couple of meets. We'll be better than last year."

Most of the 1971 Sawyers are back. That group of returnees is headed by co-captians Don Brown and Pete Timmins, both juniors.

Smith likes the chances of his neighbors from Kingston as far as the Dutchess County Scholastic League race goes. After hearing that the Maroons John Cabell would return along with Ketih White and Bill Krempel, Smith said, "I don't know what Ketcham and Arlington has, but Kingston should have a good shot at it."

MONTICELLO

Monticello Raceway's extended summer meet doesn't end till Saturday night, but plans are already underway for a 39-date winter session, beginning Thursday, Nov. 23.

Last December, for three weeks, the Mighty M experimented with a winter meet for the first time and it proved to be a super success. Bettors, hungry for action, wagered $9,548,931 over 24 racing dates. The per capita hovered over $100 mark nightly with an all-time high of $166.20 set on Jan. 4. The winter meet also shattered a number of long-standing records, including highest doubleheader handle $1,321,491 and highest afternoon handle, $538, both on New Year's Day.

The Monticello-OTB marriage, in conjunction with a nightly television show direct from the Catskill track, sent New York City horseplayers scurrying to OTB parlors in the day and to their T.V. sets at night. With the Superfecta presented live and two earlier races on tape, off track bettors wagered upwards of $600,000 a night including a high of $793,097. OTB will again handle all Monticello action this winter.

On track, many horsemen competing at the current meet are remaining and racing secretary Ralph Swalsky reports stall requests from trainers stabled elsewhere. In addition, a number of special events are being planned. Day-night doubleheaders will be raced on November 25, December 16, December 23, December 30 and January 1st. An old timers night will be held on Saturday evening, December 30th when all 14-year-old horses racing at Monticello will officially be retired. Entertainment and novelty acts will add to the winter carnival atmosphere while basketball, hockey and pro and college football games will be telecast regularly throughout the plant.

Discount package plans, providing admission to the track and transportation from New York's Port Authority and back are being arranged.

Leon Greenberg, raceway president and general manager, is optimistic about the upcoming meet, but did sound one cautionary note.

"There are a lot of things we'd like to do here in the way of special activities, but its vital that we have the enthusiastic support of the community.

Greenberg expressed mixed emotions about the meet that winds down this Saturday. Nationally, thoroughbred and harness racing attendance has suffered this year and Monticello, too, has felt the brunt of a sapped economy. Unlike the general trend, however, the nightly handle at the Catskill track is on par with 1971 and in some cases, ahead of last year's standard.

YONKERS

Probably the most important week of the Yonkers Raceway Summer meeting is coming up, topped by the 18th edition of the $100,000 Yonkers Futurity Trot Friday night.

This season the Yonkers Futurity forms the middle segment in Trotting's Triple Crown Series and has attracted the record-breaking colt, Super Bowl, and his No. 1 rival Songcan.

The Hambletonian was the first jewel in the Triple Crown. The Kentucky Futurity at Lexington, Oct. 6, is the third jewel.

But the night before the Futurity, Yonkers has scheduled the $50,000. E. Roland Harriman Trot, a stakes for America's finest 2-year-olds. In the 11th edition of this annual classic, the top stars are Fairmont Hanover, Blitzen, Wyatt Dill and Volstar Hanover.

However, beginning the week's impressive activites will be a tribute to 78-year-old trainer-driver Earle Avery on Tuesday evening. Many of the great driving aces, past and present, plus numerous notables in the industry will salute the beloved horseman in trackside ceremonies before the feature event.

Still, it's Super Bowl who should draw the most attention For the Stanley Dancer-conditioned champion, who already has captured the prestigious Hambletonian among his 16 victories this season.

NIGHT-BLOOMING CACTUS—Lisa Bulach stays up late to see the beauty of night-blooming cerus dubbed Queen of the Night. The plant is owned by her grandmother, Mrs. Frieda Schote of RD 3, Kingston, and has come through with spectacular blossoms twice this year and is expected to bloom again after several years of no production. A semi-tropical plant, it has huge fragrant flowers which open only at night.

Disease Control Experts Predict

Smallpox . . . The End Seen Near

ATLANTA (UPI)—Experts at the U.S. Center for Disease Control (CDC) believe it is only a matter of a few years before smallpox, a major killer of humans for centuries, will be eradicated from the world.

Through a major effort begun in 1966 by the World Health Organization (WHO), endemic smallpox—that not imported into a country by someone infected with the disease—has been eliminated from all of the Western Hemisphere.

Although it is still endemic in parts of Africa, the Indian subcontinent and the East Indies, doctors at the CDC and WHO believe it can be effectively eradicated from those areas by 1976.

Some experts, including Dr. Donald A. Henderson, formerly of the CDC and now in charge of smallpox eradication for WHO, have predicted it will only be 18 months before smallpox will be eliminated altogether.

If the worldwide effort to end the dread disease is successful, as the experts expect, it will mark the first time any major disease has been completely eradicated.

Dr. William H. Foege, director of the CDC's smallpox eradication program which has cooperated with WHO in its efforts, says since the beginning of efforts to end the disease, "the reduction in cases has been very dramatic."

Because of its reduction worldwide and successful efforts to keep it out of the United States (the last confirmed case of smallpox in the United States was in 1949), the U.S. Public Health Service, parent organization of the CDC, recommended last year that routine smallpox vaccinations for Americans be ended.

The federal agency still recommends persons involved in the health professions and travelers to countries where smallpox is still endemic have vaccinations every three years.

"The old policy of vaccinating people universally wasn't what has eliminated smallpox in this country," Foege said. "Surveillance of persons who might have contact with the disease, and determining who is at risk and vaccinating those is responsible."

The physician said the United States was recording from seven to nine deaths a year from reactions to smallpox vaccine, meaning as many as 90 to 100 deaths occurred over a 12-year period.

He said it has been estimated only one to three persons in the United States might die during that same period from the disease itself.

Foege said a two-week surveillance of the estimated 1,100 persons returning to the United States from Yugoslavia, where a smallpox epidemic occurred earlier this year, ended with no cases of the disease developing.

The doctor said the Public Health Service's recommendation of stopping routine vaccinations has been "fraught with difficulties," although all but four states have followed the guidelines.

Foege emphasized that while endemic smallpox has been eliminated in the United States, the nation still has a stake in helping WHO wipe it out worldwide. In a bilateral agreement with WHO, the CDC has helped the world group's efforts to eliminate the disease in West Africa.

"I feel it's necessary for world health for us to keep helping," the smallpox expert said. "Just in terms of dollars, it costs $140 million a year to keep smallpox out of this country, while we have spent $15 million to get rid of it elsewhere.

"Clearly from a cost standpoint, it's to our benefit to know something about the disease around the world and do something about it."

Haiti Gunmen Have Returned

PORT - AU - PRINCE, Haiti (UPI) — Haiti's "bogeyman army," the Ton Ton Macoutes, are back.

The sungiass-wearing gunmen, who disappeared from the Port-au-Prince street corners and village squares after the death of President Francois (Papa Doc) Duvalier a year ago, have sprung up again under the rule of Duvalier's 21-year-old son, Jean-Claude, the world's youngest president.

What it means, foreign diplomats here say, is yet another power struggle in this 168-year-old republic whose history of power struggles is second only to its struggles against poverty. With a per capita income of around $70 a year, Haiti's five million people rank as the poorest in the Western Hemisphere.

"In the eyes of the Haitian people, who still venerate the late president, Jean-Claude is the president. But the facts demonstrate otherwise," said a Central American diplomat who, like other diplomats here, chose not to have his name used. With the press under government control and no opposition politics of any kind permitted, anonymous diplomats became a principal information source.

The consensus in that corps is that the real power lies in the hands of 40-year-old millionaire Luckner Cambronne, who as minister of defense, police, and interior and special guardian of the borders of Haiti, heads all the government agencies that have any fire power.

Cambronne, the diplomats say, seems to have totally entrenched himself as a result of Jean-Claude's exiling this year of his 29-year-old sister, Marie-Denise, who was considered the only other person in the nation with significant influence on "Baby Doc," as the president is sometimes called by his detractors.

Marie-Denise, now living in Mexican exile, originally joined her husband, Max Dominique, in a two-year exile in Spain in 1967 and 1968. This was after Dominique, a captain of the palace guard, was implicated in one of many plots to overthrow the president. Despite the fact that Dominique was his son-in-law, the elder Duvalier condemned him to death in absentia, but later lifted the sentence and let him return, reportedly because the president found Marie-Denise the most capable and useful of his four children.

There have been reports that more than 200 persons have been arrested in the last few weeks, and that a number of these have been assassinated. But there is no way to confirm this.

Reports of arrests and secret murders are always in the air in Haiti when the Ton Ton Macoutes (the word means "bogeymen" in Creole) are visible.

During the heydey of this private, casually clad army of Papa Doc, in the early 1960s, there were said to be as many as 25,000 Ton Ton Macoutes carrying on their private and often bloody vendettas while protecting their sponsor. It was always believed that Duvalier used this unofficial armed force to balance the power of the official army, numbering about 5,500, so that neither could ever get strong enough to overthrow him.

After 1967, the power of the Ton Ton Macoutes began to decline and the worst of the terror appeared to be over although men carrying rifles or with gun-bulged pockets remained a common sight in the capital and the country.

Shortly after Jean-Claude was proclaimed president-for-life, on April 22, 1971, he announced that he had dissolved the Ton Ton Macoutes and was replacing them with a group to be called The Leopards, which would be a small, professional corps of presidential guards.

But in recent weeks, those men with the guns have turned up again, and whatever the president calls them, the Haitian people call them the Ton Ton Macoutes.

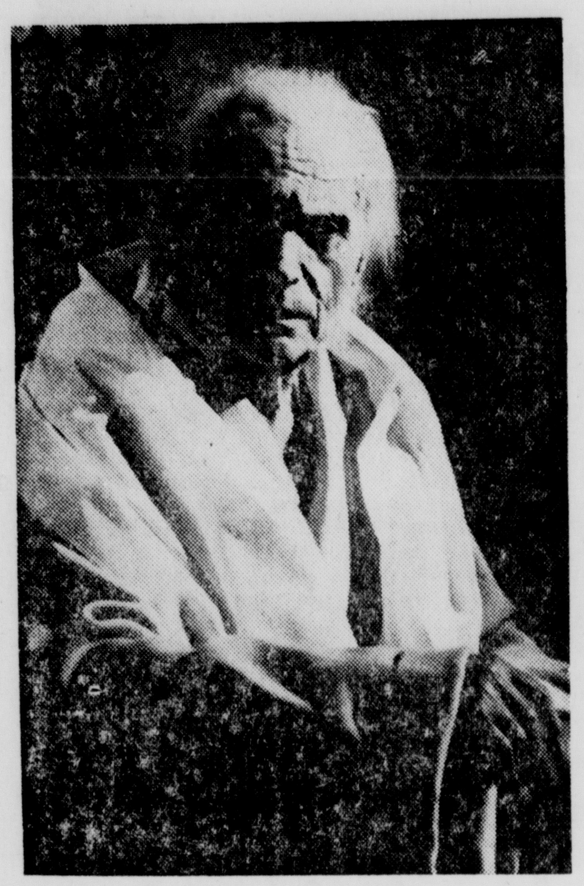
Maximilian Schell Admits Career Hard



AN OLDTIME MOVIE STAR, he may be, but nowhere near so old as he appears here, made up for the new filming of "Lost Horizon." It is Charles Boyer, appearing as the 225-year-old High Lama but admitting to only 73 himself.

NEW YORK (AP) — Maximilian Schell says, "with my vulnerability, it's hard to be in this business," but he is sticking it out because, after all, there's no business like show business.

The Vienna-born actor admits he has often been hurt, bruised and depressed since he plunged into the rough waters of the international entertainment field 10 years ago with a Best Actor Oscar for "Judgment at Nuremberg."

"I'm very vulnerable," he confessed. "Reviews bother me a lot. A bad review can hurt very much. It gives me a shock. It's like someone slapping a woman who's just had a baby in her face, and telling her that the baby is ugly. It's not nice—even if the baby is ugly."

"I find American reviewers generally responsible and just. European one are aggressive, and say really terrible things. They even say you shouldn't exist. Someone said that about me once. It's getting more difficult every year, because people have a certain image of me, and expect me to measure up. You should be allowed failures."

Although his grandfather, Dr. Carl Noe Von Nordberg, was one of the most noted psychoanalysts of his day along with Sigmund Freud, Schell says he has no desire to lie on an analyst's couch to ease his woes.

"I try to get over flops by working, walking and talking. Sometimes I go to a movie, see other people suffer, too—and laugh. The best way to forget about them, though, is to set a new goal immediately and work for it.

"Despite all this, I can't imagine any other life. As an actor, you can live many lives. You can be a general; you can be a bum."

Schell has been, among other things, a jewel thief, a Nazi, a tutor and an artist-monk in such films as "Topkapi," "The Condemned of Altona," "Five Finger Exercise" and "Pope Joan."

However, like many of his colleagues, Schell has reached a point where he is no longer content to be just an actor. "Acting in someone else's film doesn't give you any control," says the jut-jawed actor, who has degrees in philosophy and the history of art from the University of Zurich.

So he has produced Franz Kafka's "The Castle," and directed, starred in, co-authored and co-produced "First Love," which was nominated for the Academy Award for the best foreign language film last year.

Schell has been active on the stage, too, writing, directing, and acting in Europe, and appearing on Broadway in "A Patriot For Me." But he says he finds himself "more and more involved in the films than in the theater."

"A play falls or rises on the first night. There's no second chance. A movie may fall in one city, but may succeed in another. Also it may fail when it opened, but may be revived successfully later. Like "The Condemned of Altona"—it keeps coming back. And a film can, of course, reach a far larger audience."

He is now preparing his next production, "The Pedestrian." As to its theme, he prefers to keep it under wraps until it is finished.

Bing's New Experience

But it's all around you...the fighting, on a screen that stretches around the theater... the crossfire, from speakers on every wall... the fog, actually rolling up the aisle, thick and damp.

"It's "Bing Crosby's New York Experience," the story of New York City—from its beginnings, through George Washington's battle of Long Island, to what it's like today. It will open in April for what its creators hope will be a 10-year run.

Rusty Russell, a one-time freelance photographer picked by Electrovision Productions to design the theater, write the script and direct the photography calls it an "electronic extension of the circus... a thin line you walk between being educational and hoked-up and entertaining."

Russell, 32, who has created similar experiences for theaters in San Francisco and Honolulu, filmed New York City and dug photographs out of archives for three moving picture projectors and 28 still picture projectors.

"We'll have a fog generator," he says. "Fog will roll down the aisles and the audience will be neck deep in it."

Bing Crosby has money in the company that had the idea.

"Bing sits down with me and goes over the scripts," Russell says. "He also likes to hear the soundtrack before it's mixed. On this one, he had the feeling I was portraying New York as too tough. He has known New York in a different era than Ive known it.

"We talk until we come to agreement. He never just takes a red pencil and strikes through something."

The movie is aimed squarely at tourists. It's 45 minutes long, the theater is small and 2,800 still pictures and three films flash on the screen. It's the kind of thing one sees as a tourist at world's fairs.

"In San Francisco," Russell says, "the movie gives a quasi-historical, geographical flavor of the town. Some people say it's too light and fluffy and does't show the depth of the town. I think that's a valid criticism. 'Hawaii" has the underlying theme of American imperialism in the 1880s.

"In 'New York' I think we've made further progression yet. It is about the enormous price in personal liberty that you pay to live in New York, but also the incredible rewards that make it the most exciting place in the world."

City Center Alliance

NEW YORK (UPI)—The City Center of Music and Drama, which has been big in the opera and dance fields, has finally justified the last word in its title by making an alliance with the former Juilliard Acting Company.

This unit, created by director John Houseman from students at the acting school division of the Juilliard School (of music) in Lincoln Center, henceforth will be known as the City Center Acting Company.

Houseman's students at Juilliard, where the acting school is comparatively new, have been giving limited public performances at the school for the past two years.

Prior to the City Center alliance, the company had announced it would make its New York professional debut this fall, presenting a six-play series at the Good Shepherd-Faith Church, which is used for off-Broadway productions.

The engagement, from Sept. 27 through Oct. 29, will consist of a repertoire of Sheridan's "The School for Scandal," John Dos Passos' "U.S.A.," Brendan Behan's "The Hostage," James Saunders' "Next Time I'll Sing for You," Thomas Meddieton's "Women Beware Women" and Gorki's "The Lower Depths."

That is an ambitious lineup for a young company that will include recent Juilliard graduates and students still in the school.

The 1972-73 four-play season of the Repertory Theater of Lincoln Center at the Vivian Beaumont Theater begins Nov. 9 with the American premiere of the Kitty Hunter Blair-Jeremy Brooks version of Maxim Gorki's "Enemies," story of the death of Russian aristocracy.

Developments Review Set

RHINEBECK

Developments achieved and planned for the business district of Rhinebeck will be reviewed by members of the Visual Environment Committee (VEC) and the Cooperative Extension Service Sept. 25 at the Rhinebeck Chamber of Commerce dinner.

Leslie Rollins, director of the Dutchess County Extension, will be guest speaker and Richard Crowley, architect, will show slides of the village.

Michael Fichera and Charles LaForge, co-chairmen of the VEC, will speak to the Chamber on progress and the many phases of community development and beautification.

Chamber President Helen Battistoni urged local merchants to become directly involved in this project and to give the leaders their views.

Everyone is welcome, not just members of the Chamber. According to Mrs. Battistoni, "All persons who are interested in the general welfare and prosperity of Rhinebeck and who are interested in the purpose of the Rhinebeck Chamber of Commerce shall be eligible for membership."

Cocktail hour starts at 6:30 p. m. and dinner at 7:30.

Kingston Board Favors Revision

KINGSTON

The Town of Kingston board voted unanimously in favor of a proposed revision in its subdivision ordinance calling for a minimum residential lot size of one acre following a poorly attended public hearing on the proposal Thursday night.

The two persons who attended the hearing, both of whom were in favor of the proposal, were members of the town's planning board. A previous proposed change to set minimum lot size at 1½ acres met with considerable opposition at a public hearing in July

Onteora Club Schedules Oktoberfest

WEST SHOKAN

The Onteora Booster Club will hold its second annual Octoberfest at the Lester S. Davis Recreation Park, West Shokan, Saturday, Oct. 7 from 3:30 p. m. to 9 p. m. Rain date will be Sunday, Oct. 8.

There will be a complete menu with homemade desserts.

Only 500 tickets are available and no tickets will be sold at the gate. Members of the Booster Club having tickets are Eugene Marynowski, Sam Mercer, Fae Klinger, Martha Jennings, Grace Janitz and Velma Grazier. Some tickets will be available at the High School main office.

Music for dancing will be provided and there will be awards throughout the afternoon and evening.

FOR $2044 *YOU CAN DRIVE THE CAR FERRARI DRIVES.

Mind you, we're not talking about the car Ferrari builds.

We're talking about the car Ferrari drives.

For his own personal use, he drives a Fiat 128. And all it costs is $2044.00.*

It's not that he feels the Fiat is any better than a Ferrari.

He just feels the car we make is a more sensible car to drive around town in than the car he makes.

However, it is worth noting that out of the fifty small sensible cars sold in Europe, he did choose a Fiat 128.

FIAT
The biggest selling car in Europe.

New Cars for Sale

Standard Equipment with Amerling Volkswagens

Free Courtesy Cars: Free to AMERLING VOLKSWAGEN new car owners. Leave your car for service anytime between 8:30 A.M. and 9:30 P.M. Drive away in a free, new VOLKSWAGEN Courtesy Service car, compliments of AMERLING VOLKSWAGEN.

The HOT Line: 338-1944
A direct line to General Mgr. DON AMERLING. For any problems with us or your car because, "Our Customers Are Our Most Valuable Asset."

About Service: Every new 1972 VOLKSWAGEN is designed for a computer to be received later this year. This computer, completely void of human error, will diagnose what is or is not wrong with your car more quickly and less expensively than ever before possible. Until then our service department prides itself on performing quality work in a prompt and courteous manner.

About Parts: The VOLKSWAGEN nationwide parts network surpasses even domestic dealers. Our complete parts inventory is available to you Monday through Friday 8:30 A.M. to 5:30 P.M., Saturdays 8:30 A.M. to 12:30 P.M.

Body Repairs: Our VOLKSWAGEN body shop will repair a damaged car according to factory specifications.

The VW Warranty: Every 1972 VOLKSWAGEN is guaranteed twice as long as any other car except the Rolls Royce. If an owner maintains and services his vehicle in accordance with the VOLKSWAGEN maintenance schedule any factory part found to be defective in material or workmanship within 24 months or 24,000 miles, whichever comes first (except normal wear and tear items) we will repair or replace it free of charge. See us for details.

Resale Value: NADA figures confirm that after only one year a VOLKSWAGEN is worth from $250 to $700 more than any other small imported or domestic cars.

The Price: A VOLKSWAGEN sells for about the same price as any other small imported or domestic car.

Payments: Our on premises Bank Plan lets you decide how much you wish to pay down. All you really need is your sales tax, we can finance the balance. There need not be any other expenses because for the next 24 months or 24,000 miles your VOLKSWAGEN is guaranteed for parts and labor.

Trade-ins: Our used car department has a complete selection of all makes and models so we are ready, willing and able to trade any car.

GLAMOUR INTERIORS THE NEW LOOK WITH AMERLING VOLKSWAGENS

No other imported or domestic car can give you all this. So for a comparable price it pays to buy the best and the best buy for your money is the VOLKSWAGEN.

Brydges Plugs for Schermerhorn

By LYNN MULVANEY

VAILS GATE

Urging the support of Republican-Conservative State Sen. Richard E. Schermerhorn's bid for reelection, Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges predicted Friday a one-third increase in state taxes if Democrats take control of the Legislature and warned that Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern would permit the U.S. to become a second class nation.

"To retire as McGovern would have us do is the greatest threat to the world I can think of," he said.

Addressing more than 400 persons at the Meadowbrook Lodge in Vails Gate, Brydges told of 183 bills sponsored by Democrats in the Senate over the past two years which, if put into effect, would have meant a $1 billion increase in expenditures.

The outgoing majority leader said that "Only the fact that a Republican Legislature composed of men with a tax-hike consciousness of senators such as Schermerhorn, plus the determination of the Rockefeller administration to cut costs to the bone, saved the taxpayers the cost of this staggering additional burden."

Among Ulster County Republicans attending the fund raising affair were County GOP Chairman Albert Spada and Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago as well as representatives of the County Legislature, Kingston Common Council and party officials.

Conspicuous by his absence was Orange County Chairman William E. Doulin who imposed a ban on third party endorsements which Schermerhorn refused to honor when he accepted Conservative endorsement. Schermerhorn also bucked Doulin's candidate for the Senate, Anthony Barone, whom he outdistanced in the June primary.

An historian, Brydges quoted Lincoln and Emerson to make his point on the old and the new federalism. "There must have been an old federalism under which the states were supreme . . . We have surrendered powers to the federal government which should be within the province of the state."

He proposed the return of the retention within the states themselves of "real power and strength," while at the same time praising the passage of the federal revenue sharing bill.

It was the old federalism, he said, that made this country the great power it is and the great influence it exerts over the world as we continue to lead.

Recalling that when this country came into being man made it "in the image and likeness of God . . . That philosophy of man and government's relationships will never change," he said.

Brydges then suggested that under McGovern's leadership "we would no longer be a world-wide leader, and as Lincoln said, "lose the best hope of all of earth's mankind."

Many look to us for strength and leadership . . . don't you sense that in the end result, we are threatened? Brydges asked. We need the continuation of foreign policy of strength and leadership . . . The minute we cease to be the number one power, "then I think the end has come for the hopes and aspirations of individuals who walk on a temporary basis on this earth."

Urging the reelection of Schermerhorn, Brydges who is retiring this year after 23 years in the State Senate, said he had "come to know, love and respect Schermerhorn" who first ran for the Senate in 1969.

RICHARD E. SCHERMERHORN

Conservationists at Paltz

By JON POWERS

NEW PALTZ

The initial step in the organization of New York State's 200 local conservation commissions was taken at a day-long series of meetings and workshops at Lake Minnewaska Friday.

The event marked the first annual conference of the New York State Association of Conservation Commissions. The group was formed last June.

Its purpose is to exchange ideas, information and resources among the 200 existing conservation commissions in the state. Its goal is to help each individual commission accomplish maximum results in environmental protection.

Close to 250 conservationists from throughout the state attended Friday's conference; more than 50 were from the Mid-Hudson Valley area; 15 from Ulster County.

Among those was Katherine Wagenfohr, a regional vice-president and member of the Town of Rochester Environmental Conservation Commission. She moderated an hour-long regional workshop that gave representatives of seven Hudson Valley counties the opportunity to trade information and ideas.

Among those who spoke at the regional workshop was Warren H. McKeon, regional director for the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation, with offices in New Paltz.

McKeon first described the composition of Region 3 (from the urban areas of Westchester and Rockland Counties, to the "wilderness" of Ulster and Sullivan Counties) and then described how the Department of Conservation can assist local communities in their ecological efforts.

"The Department can play a strong role in implementing some of the things you want to do," said McKeon. "We want to cooperate in any way we can." He urged local conservation commission members and private citizens to contact his department whenever they had information about possible pollutors or projects that may endanger the environment.

Another of the speakers at the regional workshop was Josh Randall, administrator of the Ulster County Temporary Manpower Council. The year-old program was instituted to help combat Ulster County's consistently high unemployment rate.

The program has received more than $630,000 in federal funds during the past year, said Randall, with work crews involved in recycling drives, the erection of recycling depots, river and creek cleanups and roadside rehabilitation projects.

"Ecology and recycling are a top priority," sand Randall, "At our peak we had more than 130 men employed; 92 involved in recycling and ecology alone." And he added that the program is in line for a 40 per cent increase in federal funding in 1973.

Discussion at the regular workshop made it apparent that Ulster County is among the leaders in the field of recycling and ecology. Randall's Temporary Manpower Council is one of the few (if not the only one) in the country that places an emphasis on recycling and ecology. The inordinate success of the county's recycling drives, organized 18 months ago by the Chamber of Commerce's Environmental Task Force, is not matched anywhere else in the region. Ulster County alone has 10 established conservation commissions; only the Westchester, Albany and Buffalo areas have more.

But local conservationists indicated there is still much to be done. The Ulster County Legislature, for intance, was accused of "dragging its heels" on a proposal to form a County Conservation Commission. "Pretty soon, we'll make a fuss about it." promised one.

Earlier, New York State Assembly Speaker Perry Duryea, described as "the father of the New York State conservation movement." was the keynote speaker for the day's luncheon session.

"We are living in a complex time," said Duryea, "and the pressure on the environment is increasing. I think New York State is well equipped to meet the challenge. The time for rhetoric is over, the time for action is here . . .I think New York State has led the way."

After urging support of the Evironmental Bond Issue, a measure that has the enthusiastic backing of the association, Duryea concluded by saying, "You have assumed a burden and responsibility and are making progress throughout the state . . .The challenge that faces our environment can only be met by a total commitment of our citizenry."

In addition to the local conservation commission members, Ulster County was represented at the conference by Assemblyman H. Clark Bell (R-Woodstock). Bell was recently given a 90 per cent rating on conservation issues by the Environmental Planning Lobby. (He missed a perfect score because he was absent from the Rye bridge proposal balloting) County Legislator Melvin Mones (R-City), chairman of the Public Health Committee and the major spokesman for a County Conservation Commission, as well as Town of Wawarsing Supervisor Frank W. Harkin, also attended the conference.

Activists Unclear About POW Delay

Vientiane (UPI)—A Soviet airliner arrived in Vientiane from Hanoi Saturday but the three U.S. prisoners of war released by North Vietnam to an American antiwar activist group were not on board as expected. There was no definite word on when they would come out.

Two antiwar activists who flew out on the Aeroflot plane said the released POWs had remained behind in Hanoi with their escorts although "they're very anxious to come home." One said the POWs were told Friday night that they would not be leaving Saturday as they expected. But the two were unclear about the reasons for the delay.

The U.S. mission here made elaborate arrangements for the expected return of Air Force Maj. Edward K. Elias of Valdosta, Ga., and Navy Lts. (j.g.) Markham L. Gartley of Dunedin, Fla. and Norris A. Charles of San Diego, Calif. But American officials emphasized they would intervene only if the released pilots asked for help.

The Rev Harry Bury and Marianne Hamilton were the only Americans aboard the Russian airliner which had been expected to bring the POWs, their relatives and an escort group headed by antiwar activists Mrs. Cora Weiss and David Dellinger on the first leg of their return to the United States.

The Roman Catholic priest and Miss Hamilton accompanied the antiwar group to Hanoi seven days ago but left after completing their own series of meetings with North Vietnamese Catholics. They differed on reasons why the POWs had not left Hanoi Saturday as expected.

Bury said he believed the trip might have been delayed because no answer had been received to a series of demands cabled by the antiwar group to President Nixon concerning the repatriation.

Miss Hamilton said, however, she believed the POWs would return regardless of whether Nixon replied to the cable.

Bury said he had performed a "peace mass" for the POWs Saturday morning and that they told him they were informed Friday night they would not be making the trip Saturday. "They gave no reason for the delay but they're very anxious to come home." Bury said.

Da Nang Under Heavy Rocket Fire

SAIGON (UPI)—Communst gunners fired 33 big Soviet-made rockets into the Da Nang Air Base at dawn Saturday, killing two persons and wounding 10 others, including three U.S. sailors. They also attacked South Vietnamese positions farther south along the coast.

A spokesman said one plane was struck on the ground, two trucks destroyed and a number of buildings damaged in the Da Nang shelling which was seen as a possible prelude to Communist attacks on South Vietnam's major cities in advance of U.S. presidential elections.

UPI reporter Edward Bassett said allied jets struck back at Communist troops near Quang Ngai city on Highway 1 about 75 miles south of Da Nang and 318 miles northeast of Saigon.

Bassett said bombs from the jets rattled windows in Quang Ngai for more than an hour while the warplanes bombarded suspected Communist positions outside the town.

"We lose and regain these outposts every day," one military source told Bassett. "This was going on before the March 31 Communist offensive started. However, if we lose a great many of them, it will cut our information about enemy troop movements."

Communist forces—both Viet Cong and North Vietnamese—launched a series of attacks on district towns in a 30-mile area south from Quang Ngai city last weekend. The attacks on the towns straddling Highway 1 in the central coast began when South Vietnamese forces in northernmost Quang Tri City recaptured A U.S. 02 spotter plane was damaged by the Soviet-built rockets, two trucks were destroyed and five buildings in the American secton of the allied base also received light damage, a spokesman said.

At Quang Tri City, 404 miles north of Saigon, field reports said at least 10 South Vietnamese soldiers were wounded Friday in a barrage of 130mm artillery fire which struck 500 yards west of the Citadel.

A U.S. 7th Air Force spokesman said American jets knocked out three 130s Friday and damaged another n North Vietnamese-held territory west of Quang Tri City. The heavy artillery pieces have a range of 17 miles.

An official South Vietnamese military spokesman Saturday retracted an announcement made Friday that government paratroopers had crossed the Thach Han river on the edge of Quang Tri City for the first time and were clearing an area to the northwest. The spokesman gave no reason for reversing the official report he had made to newsmen the day before.

Israeli Vows Strikes

By United Press International

Israeli Police Minister Shlomo Hillel said Saturday Israel would strike at the main roots of the Arab guerrilla problem wherever they may be but condemned underground activities directed from Israel, especially by the militant Jewish Defense League (JDL).

At the same time, a Jordanian government spokesman reported four mail bombs were intercepted at the Amman post office Saturday and defused. He said the bombs had been mailed from Amsterdam and were addressed to four government officials he refused to identify. The Palestinian guerrillas have accused King Hussein and his government of betraying the Arab cause.

An Israeli diplomat was killed in London last Tuesday by a letter bomb mailed from Amsterdam. Since then the murder-by-mail campaign has spread around the world. A booby-trapped letter was reported received in the Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh in Southeast Asia. Scores of other letter and parcel bombs had previously been intercepted throughout Western Europe, in Africa and North and South America.

Scotland Yard and Irish police said they were investigating British press report that a Black September killer squad, which mailed the explosive missives in Amsterdam, passed through London this week en route to Dublin, where it was planning new attacks against Israelis.

Diplomatic sources in London said intelligence experts feared Arab guerrillas might try to kidnap senior Israeli diplomats or even Israeli children as hostages for the release of Arab prisoners in Israel.

In Jerusalem, Police Minister Hillel said a desire to fight guerrillas with their own tactics is "an emotional reaction that is understandable, but not everything that is understandable is effective."

"Our purpose is not to avenge the killings and murders," he said in a national radio interview. "Our purpose is to find the direct and strong blow in order to stop it altogether (guerrilla action). So we have to hit the roots.

"We have to think very seriously in a very calm way to find out which spot to hit in order to make the whole business impossible."

Nixon . . . Kisses and Some Boasting

WASHINGTON (AP) — With kisses from a bevy of pretty blondes and a bit of boasting about the economy, President Nixon completed a major campaign greetings to young labor-union supporters.

The President returned to the capital at midday after a 28-hour jaunt to Texas in quest of that state's 26 electoral votes—a prize twice denied him—and in pursuit of the Democratic voters unhappy with their party's nominee.

But once again, Nixon never mentioned the name of Democratic opponent George McGovern, referring in his speeches only to "others."

Aides described the President as very pleased with his reception at the border towns of Laredo, Rio Grande City and Harlingen and with a dinner at for-Connally's ranch for big-name Democratic backers.

Awaiting Nixon's return to the White House were members of the "Labor Youth for the President Committe," an organization given a tour of the executive mansion after announcing its support for Nixon Saturday.

He held a private meeting in an airport waiting room with Sen. John Tower and 16 other Texas Republican leaders.

In San Antonio, the traveling White House issued a statement in which Nixon cited newly announced statistics and said they show "we definitely are on the right track with our economic policies."

The President touched on the same theme at Connally's hill-country ranch. Addressing a crowd of about 300 after a dinner of ribeye steak and black-eyed peas, he called the economy strong and vibrant.

Nixon is scheduled to make a fund-raising appearance in New York Tuesday night, then fly to California for Wednesday speeches in San Francisco and Los Angeles before returnng to the White House Thursday.

McGovern . . . We're Moving

By JOHN HALL

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Sen. George McGovern — claiming "we are on the move and we cannot be stopped"—got tough Saturday with Democrats who support President Nixon, calling them a bunch of "mossbacks" and warning they would be left "high and dry come Nov. 7."

McGovern brought the delegates to the Ohio Democratic Convention to their feet cheering with an old fashioned, Harry Truman-style attack on the "odor of special interest deals" in the Nixon administration.

He said Nixon, instead of taking his record to the people, was hiding in the White House, emerging only for occasions like his closed meeting at a Texas ranch "with oil billionaires and John Connally."

"He is with a few mossback politicians who call themselves Democrats, but who have fallen hopelessly behind the great mainstream of the party," he said. "They are going to find themselves just as high and dry on Nov. 7 as the same kind of Democrats found themselves when they deserted Harry Truman in 1948."

Meets With Dissidents

After he spoke, McGovern tried to patch up a quarrel with another group of disaffected Democrats.

He met on his plane with Frank King, the Ohio AFL-CIO chieftain, who led the fight at the Democratic National Convention to stop McGovern's nomination, and James Iafelice, head of the Machinists Union District 54. Both men, regarded as powerful politicos, have refused to back McGovern.

McGovern, judging from the applause from the estimated 1,600 delegates and alternates, appeared to have regular Ohio Democrats behind him, despite his troubles with King, always a dominant figure in the party.

"The tide is coming in," he said. "I see it in the crowds...we are on the move and we cannot be stopped."

"Free Martha"

McGovern acknowledged his campaign had its "snafus" but he said nothing he has done compares with the Nixon administration attempts to "cover up the mess and keep the lid on until after the election. We didn't have a security chief in our campaign indicted for burglary. We didn't have our election manager or our campaign treasurer resign under what seemed to be a mysterious pressure from his wife."

The reference to John Mitchell, the former attorney general and his wife, Martha, brought cries from the audience to "free Martha."

"I'm for that," McGovern said, chuckling. "Let's free Martha Mitchell."

HELEN F. MIDDLEWORTH

Two area women have won administrative level promotions at Albany Medical Center Hospital, Dr. Thomas L. Hawkins Jr., executive vice president and director, has announced.

Mrs. Helen F. Middleworth, who has been associated with the hospital's nursing service for 25 years, has been promoted to assistant director of the hospital, in charge of nursing service and education. She resides at 357 Morris St., Albany.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Flicker, 258 Smith Avenue, Kingston.

Miss Marie W. Treutler, 2220 Rose St., Schenectady, has been advanced to director of the Albany Medical Center School of Nursing, having served previously as assistant director and associate director of the school.

Mrs. Middleworth has directed the hospital's nursing service since 1958 and has been director of the school of nursing since its founding in 1955. A native of Kingston, she is an alumna of Russell Sage College and its School of Nursing, and earned a master's degree at the Teachers College of Columbia University.

During World War II, Mrs. Middleworth served in the U.S. Army Nurse Corps. She joined the nursing staff of Albany Hospital in 1947 following completion of her master's studies.

Mrs. Middleworth is chairman of the State Council for Directors of Diploma Nursing Programs. Locally, she serves on the board of the Albany County Red Cross Chapter and is chairman of the chapter's nursing committee.

Born in Hungary, Miss Treutler graduated from the College of St. Rose in 1949 and earned a master's degree in nursing education at St. John's University, Brooklyn, in 1957. She served on the nursing staffs of St. Mary's Hospital, Troy, and St. Clare's and Ellis Hospitals, Schenectady, before coming to the Medical Center in 1957 as assistant director of the school of nursing.

Who Says Needlework Is Old Stuff?

Fair Competition Accents Youth

By JOANNE SCHREIBER

MIDDLETOWN, NY. — (NEA) — Who's home sewing?

Practically everybody, if the needlework exhibition at the Orange County Fair is any indication. Ponytailed youngsters, teen-agers in embroidered jeans, young mothers and mothers-to-be, matrons, grandmothers and even a few boys showed their handiwork this summer in the whitewashed, barnlike hall of this 132-year-old county fair in the foothills of the Catskills.

Entries in the needlework competition were up dramatically from last year. Mrs. Hazel Tremper, who has presided as superintendent of this division for the past 30 years, was frankly astonished.

"Usually, there are 400 to 500 entries. Last year, there were 668. This year, there are over 1,000 — 1,064, to be exact. I can't find enough display space!"

Every conceivable needlework item was represented — from afghans to aprons, ponchos to pinafores, bedspreads to baby dolls. The colorful entries jampacked the old-fashioned dispaly cases, flowed over beams and rafters, ladders and sawbuck tables. The baked good display, normally entitled to half the hall, was backed into a third its former space.

MRS. HAZEL TREMPER, superintendent of the needlework division of the Orange County Fair, shows a calico patchwork ensemble which took first prize in the sewing division and a handsome sweater which won in the knitwear division.

The three judges worked in three main categories: sewing, knitting and crocheting, and needlework. They judged nonstop from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Friday and from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, awarding traditional blue, red and yellow ribbons, honorable mentions, junior achievements, best-of-divisions, and finally the splendid gold best-of-show ribbon.

In her 30-year tenure, Mrs. Tremper has developed a pretty solid perspective on who is sewing what, and has decided that it's time to rearrange and change some of the time-honored categories.

"We've got to expand the junior division," she declared, pointing to a toppling stack of bright vests, ponchos and shrinks created by junior needleworkers. "And next year, we'll have two new categories — one for embroidered or decorated blue jeans, and one for machine embroidery. And we'll put all the Christmas entries in one division — we used to have so many entries that we set up separate categories for ornaments, table linens, household items and so forth, but no one seems to be doing much Christmas stitching these days."

"We're going to drop aprons," Mrs. Tremper remarked. "There were only a few entries, and none were good enough for even an honorable mention."

The knitters and crocheters showed the most needle-working skill, the freshest color combinations, the newest fashions and the most imagination — quite possibly because this category had the highest percentage of younger competitors.

The sewing category was disappointing, full of lumpy buttonholes, mis-matched plaids and sleazy fabrics. Part of the problem may have been the difficulty of obtaining good fabrics through local outlets, and it certainly pointed up the impossibility of achieving superior results with inferior fabrics. The needlework division had loads more crewel and many fewer crocheted doilies.

Despite the surge in junior entries, a seasoned hand took the best-of-show award — cheery, white-haired Mrs. Nellie Baker of Middletown won the coveted gold ribbon for her meticulously crocheted ripple afghan in autumn shades.

Several other entries were memorable. One was an afghan with an embroidered motif in each of its 24 squares representing an item or event in family history. Another was a magnificent crazy quilt constructed of multicolored fabric scraps accented by lace, purchased trimming and oddments of whimsical hand embroidery wherever there was room.

In the toy category, a regal Humpty Dumpty and a handsome brown Teddy bear were topped by an incredibly appealing mother-and-baby set made of an old, worn, brown, soft and shaggy coat lining. They had button eyes, floppy ears, gingham neckties, and a please-take-me-home look. The judges awarded a top prize to this pair, but the photographer said he couldn't get a good shot of them — they were lovable but unphotographable. So it goes.

...TA WALKATHON — Sister Mary Charles, president ... Zonta Club of Kingston, a service organization for women executives, presents a check in the amount of $2,847 to Bernard Farrell, vice chairman of the Kingston Narcotics Guidance Council. The check represents balance of proceeds earned from the Zonta Walkathon held in May of this year. The Council had already received $5,000 from the Club earlier this year. The money will aid Friends of Renaissance to purchase and renovate Beck's Market on Broadway for the needed drug prevention center in Kingston.

World Has a Problem: Bringing Up Children!

EDITOR'S NOTE — The world has a common problem — how to bring up children. A survey shows parents around the globe are trying to bring up their children as they were brought up; or as they wish they were brought up; or as the government tells them to bring them up. The lesson is either nothing works, or anything works.

By CARL HARTMAN
(Associated Press Writer)

BRUSSELS (AP) — If, as Wordsworth said, the child is father of the man, then no wonder there are wars.

Look how children are brought up. All over the world there is one question common to the human condition: How do you bring up Ivan or Hans, or Pierre, or George, or Manuel, or Nils? Or all of the above?

And all over the world, an Associated Press survey finds total parental confusion. Parents try to bring up their children as they were brought up, or as they wish they were brought up, or as government tells them to bring them up. The lesson is either that nothing works, or anything works.

In West Germany, for instance, studies show that 50 to 80 per cent of parents think it is useful to beat their children.

When you find people believing in such stringent exercise of parental authority, you also find a counterpart in permissiveness. One West German professor has suggested that sex education ought to include intercourse as early as age 13. Under teacher's guidance, of course.

In Paris, too, it's a coin toss. Some think it normal for early teen-agers to strike against school authorities, while others are so strict they teach little boys the courtesy of kissing a lady's hand.

In the Soviet Union a child is taught to behave and not ask questions. Two parents were asked if they thought their children should be taught to acquire a mildly questioning attitude toward accepted ways.

"I don't know what you mean," said one. "I've never heard of such a thing."

The other replied: "I never asked any questions. It never occurred to me."

That this tradition is not 100 per cent effective is indicated by the fact that some dissidents have emerged from a purely Soviet education.

But the Soviet Union shows little of the public groping toward change that appeared in an inquiry among half a dozen other, non-Communist countries. Among them the U. S. level of permissiveness in raising children has not been reached. Muddle and uncertainty seem at least as prevalent.

The whole question, said a Dane, "is in a painful state of confusion."

Take sex education, for example, a subject which Europeans might be expected to accept more matter-of-factly than other parents.

Said one French parent:

"This is still a tough problem and we haven't found any ideal solution. It's considered a matter for parents, but 90 per cent of the parents in France seem to be at a loss as to how to go about it."

Said another: "Very few teachers deal with it. Books are rare and seldom used."

In one London primary school the headmaster insisted on regular sex lectures for all children from the age of 7 on.

In Italy there is no sex education in the schools. In Japan mention of the word "sex" in front of minors was taboo until after World War II. Even today sex education is called "chastity education."

The Danish government, at least, seems to know what it wants. Since last fall a law passed unanimously by parliament requires sex education in all municipal schools, from the first grade up. Some parents moved their children to private schools.

If sex education is an indication of the degree of permissiveness at large among the world's parents, then so, too, is the question of how a child should use his time.

In Brazil, at least among the well-to-do, parents feel the need to know where their children are and what they're doing at any given moment. Play time is usually supervised.

Class distinctions play an important part in Britain. For middle-class teen-agers, school takes up most of the day. Television may be rationed to an hour or two. The youngsters are under pressure to "outdo" their parents and climb another rung up the social ladder.

Jeanne Starr, a psychologist who works in southeast London, reports that life is a good deal different in working-class areas. It is not that the parents are poor. Children may get substantial amounts of pocket money to fritter away. But they are often left alone at home to watch TV and are rarely encourage to read books. Sport becomes almost an obsession, she says.

The French school day is long, too, and although the government has officially banned homework, a lot of kids have to do an hour or two anyhow.

Many French parents are ready to allow a good deal of freedom to children who do well in their school work. Grades are usually given on a strict zero to 20 scale and no teacher hesitates about making a child repeat a year if the grades are too low.

Frau Inge Lindner, a teacher in Frankfurt, finds some German parents so fond of homework for their children that they make it up themselves if they think the children don't get enough — much to the annoyance of teachers.

In West Germany pressure to achieve is applied early in life. At the end of the fourth grade there is a sharp division among children. Those who do not get into the Gymnasium, as the academic high school is called, find themselves in an educational stalemate.

Although parents can still put pressure on younger children, their authority over older ones seems to be on the decline everywhere in Western Europe.

In Japan, Sgt. Schoichi Yokoi was shocked when he returned after hiding out for 28 years on a small Pacific Island.

"We never had young people talk so rudely to their elders," he said.

Along with the decline in respect for age goes what many Japanese regard as excessive protection of children. Many high school graduates like to take their parents along with them to college campuses for entrance examinations.

Maria Faccini, a high school teacher in Rome, finds a schism in Italian education: inadequate classical teaching, inadequate technical teaching.

"In the United States," she thinks, "studies are more practical and they give students a more solid base for their life outside school or for continuation of their studies at a higher level. American youth probably studies less, but better."

In the Soviet Union there is a continuous attempt to transfer the parents' authority to the group, which means eventually to the Communist party and the Soviet state.

In schools and youth organizations they are kept in line by the threat of embarrassment among their peers. They are made to feel that if they behave badly, the worst thing about their conduct is that they are hurting the group. Wall newspapers in schools and clubs report on the progress of individuals in group activities.

Dr. Urie Bronfenbrenner, who has recently published a comparative study of American and Soviet methods, finds much to say in favor of the Soviet method and suggests that American education has exalted individuality to the point where the public welfare is endangered.

Miss Starr, the London psychologist, agrees that the tendency in the west to greater tolerance and less conformity may seem like a kind of anarchy to some of the older generation.

At any rate, the battle goes on, and the parent is caught in the middle.

Kahil Gibran said, "You are the bows from which your children as living arrows are sent out."

Donna Wells Weds

Old Dutch Church was the setting of the double ring wedding ceremony of Donna Marie Wells, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Wells, P.O. Box 66, Ulster Park, and Charles Arthur Buboltz, son of Mrs. Roland Maxin, 150 West O'Reilly Street, Kingston.

The maid of honor was Nora Haight, Locus Grove, Rhinebeck. Attendants were Diana Wells, sister of the bride, P.O. Box 66, Ulster Park; Kim Wells, cousin of the bride, Ulster Avenue, Ulster Park; Pamela Larkin, Rifton; and Marie Wells, Albany Avenue, Kingston.

All the attendants were attired in empress style lilac gowns of rayon chiffon. The gowns featured white lace-up vests. They carried bouquets of red roses, pink carnations and orchid pompons.

The best man was Allen Stingel of 52 Linderman Avenue Kingston. Ushers were Bernard Wells Jr., Albany Avenue, Kingston; Clarence Miller, Dominick Giamei, both of White Lands Road, Stone Ridge; and Steve Wojciehowski, cousin of the bridegroom, 25 Staples Street, Kingston.

Mrs. Buboltz was graduated in 1970 from Kingston High School and is employed by State University College at New Paltz as a typist. Her husband, a 1969 alumnus of KHS, is employed as a farmer by Christiana Farm, Stone Ridge.

Dickerson - Weishaupt Nuptials

Miss Patricia Ann Dickerson and SP/4 Michael David Weishaupt exchanged nuptial vows on Saturday, Sept. 23 at 5 p.m. in Church of the Holy Name.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Msgr. James A. Reynolds. Wayne Cusher, organist, accompanied Nadine Woinoski who sang, "First Time Ever I Saw Your Face," and "We've Only Just Begun."

The former Miss Dickerson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Dickerson of 83 A Fairmont Avenue, Kingston. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Weishaupt Jr. of 274 Manor Avenue, Kingston.

Herbert Dickerson gave his daughter in marriage. The bride selected a traditional gown of polyester satapeau featuring the total look. Scroll Venise lace trimmed the ring neckline, waist and cuffs of the Bishop sleeves. Her mantilla, bordered with matching lace, was attached to a Juliet cap. Mrs Weishaupt carried a sweetheart cascade of roses, carnations and fuji chrysanthemums.

Miss Terri Lee Martini of Kingston and Mrs. Karen Leone, sister of the bride, Catskill, served as maid and matron of honor, respectively.

Attendants were Mrs. Joanne Dickerson, sister-in-law of the bride, Rifton; and the Misses Barbara Smith, cousin of the bride; Julie Weishaupt, sister of the bridegroom; Joan Weishaupt, sister of the bridegroom; and Bonnie Bush, all of Kingston.

For her bridal party the bride choose a color scheme of maize and apricot. The sata-peau gowns were in the empire styling and floral motifs accented the cuffs of the semi bishop sleeves and encircled the waists. They wore juliet caps with matching colored veils and carried single yellow roses.

Miss Rena Fasano, cousin of the bride, Kingston, was flower girl in a maize crepe gown. She wore a crown of yellow roses in her hair and carried a basket of orange and yellow straw flowers. The basket was decorated by the bride's mother.

Best man was Dave Gillenwalters of Voorheesville. Ushers were John Dickerson, brother of the bride, Rifton; Dennis Leone, brother-in-law of the bride, Catskill; Charles Lay, Kigston; Peter Watzka, Montclair, N.J. : Jack Baltz, Shokan; and Tony Tourville, Plattsburgh. Peter Weishaupt, brother of the bridegroom, Kingston, served as ringbearer.

The bride, a 1971 graduate of Kingston High School, attended Chamberlayne Junior College, Boston, Mass. Her husband was graduated from KHS, class of 1967, and has attended Union State College, Schenectady, where he was a member of Delta Phi fraternity. He is an office clerk in the U.S Army, stationed at Bad Kissingen, Germany.

After a wedding trip to Cave Haven, Pocono Mountains, Pa., and Europe, the couple will reside in Bad Kissengen, Germany.

Guido-Sasso

The Rev. Msgr. T. R. Mullens officiated at the double ring wedding ceremony of Mary Louise Guido, daughter of Louis Guido of 206 Railroad Avenue, East Kingston, and Camillus J. Sasso, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sasso of Glasco. The bride is also the daughter of the late Teresa Guido.

The wedding took place on Saturday, Aug. 12 in St. Coleman Church, East Kingston. Wayne Cusher provided traditional wedding selections.

Louis Guido gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a gown of silk organza fashioned with a high sheer scalloped neckline and long full bishop sleeves, deeply cuffed at the wrists. Wide Venise lace and satin ribbon banding trimmed the empire bodice, sleeve cuffs and created a vertical illusion on the softly gathered A-line skirt. Matching lace edged the cathedral length mantilla which was shirred to a Camelot headpiece. Mrs. Sasso carried a bouquet of yellow roses and white carnations.

The cousin of the bride, Theresa Parise, Kingston, served as maid of honor. Attendants were Ann-Marie Chubb, sister of the bridegroom; Mary Jo Kime and Debbie Brocco, all of Glasco. Donna Parise, cousin of the bride, served as flower girl.

The bride selected a color scheme of pale maize and nile green for her bridal party. The skirts of the empire gowns were of embossed print organza. Ruffing of self-fabric created bib effects on the bodice fronts and edged the high necklines and cuffs of the full cavalier sleeves. The attendants wore picture hats.

The honor attendant and flower girl carried colonial nosegays of green carnations and yellow roses and the other attendants carried colonial nosegays of yellow carnations and green baby's breath.

The best man was Matthew DePoala of Glasco. Ushering were Steven Sasso, brother of the bridegroom; Rudy Mauro, and Frank Kime, all of Glasco.

A reception was held at Walnut Grove.

The bride, a 1970 alumna of Kingston High School, is employed by Metropolitan Records and Service Center. Her husband is a 1967 graduate of Saugerties High School. He served with the U.S. Army and is employed by Greco Motors, Glasco.

After honeymooning in the Virgin Islands and St. Croix, Mr. and Mrs. Sasso are now at home in Glasco.

Ferrari-Christman

Announcement was made today of the single ring wedding ceremony of Miss Ilena Marie Ferrari of Route 2, Box 145A, Accord, and Darrell Lee Christman of New Paltz Road, Highland. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edio G. Ferrari of Route 2, Box 145A, Accord, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Christman of 243 Erie Street, Galion, Ohio.

The Rev. Father Kearns of St. Peter's Church officiated at the ceremony, which took place in St. Peter's Church, Rosendale. He was assisted by the Rev. M. Luther Siever of St. John's Lutheran Church, Poughkeepsie.

Joseph Liguori was soloist for the occasion.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a traditional white gown styled with an empire bodice. Chantilly lace appliques and lace motifs accented the gown. The skirt was terminated by a gathered flounce. A pillbox cap held her two tiered mantilla which was bordered by Chantilly lace. She carried a nosegay of white pompons, spider chrysanthemums and yellow roses.

The maid of honor was Linda Arnold of High Falls. Attendants were Evette Ferrari, sister of the bride, Accord; and Mrs. Rosa Conners, cousin of the bride, High Falls.

The brother of the bridegroom, Larry Christman, Columbus, Ohio, was best man. Robert Ferrari, brother of the bride, Kingston, and Donald Terpening, Highland, were ushers.

Mrs. Christman was graduated from Rondout Valley High School. She attended Ulster County Community College and is employed as a secretary by Vocational Division of Ulster County Board of Co-operative Educational Services, New Paltz.

Mr. Christman, an alumnus of Galion Senior High School, attended Capital University, Columbus, Ohio. He earned an AAS degree in Electronics from Sams Technical Institute, Fort Wayne, Ind. and is employed as a systems test technician by IBM, Poughkeepsie.

Wedding Bells Peal for Kingston Area Brides

Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Predmore of North Babylon, L.I. announce the marriage of their daugher Sheila Rose of Kingston, to Christopher Beall of Hurley. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel O. Beall of Cincinnati, Ohio.

The Rev. Joseph Celentano of Our Lady of Lourdes Church officiated at the double ring ceremony which took place in West Islip, L.I. on Saturday, Sept. 16 at 11 a.m.

Mrs. Joseph Salvucci, aunt of the bride, Waltham, Mass., was soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white silk organza. Venise lace and lavender ribbon trimmed the bodice, high neckline and the ruffled calf of the bishop sleeves. Matching lace also edged the hemline and the cathedral train which fell from the natural waistline. Her fingertip tiered illusion veil fell from a cap of matching lace and ribbon. Mrs. Beall carried a cascade of white miniature carnations and stephanotis, centered with a lavender orchid.

The honor attendant was Elaine Predmore, sister of the bride, North Babylon, L.I. Attendants were Miss Judith Predmore, sister of the bride, North Babylon; Miss Alison Beall, sister of the bridegroom, Tarrytown; and Mrs. Joanne Haiby, Ithaca.

The attendants wore silk chiffon gowns fashioned with white bodices and pale lavender skirts. They also wore matching satin bow and streamer details in their hair and carried nosegays of white gladioli and lavender pompon chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Beall was graduated from North Babylon High School. She received a BA degree from State University of New York at Albany and earned a MS in Computer Science from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. He is employed as a programmer byIBM, Kingston.

Her husband, an alumnus of Walnut Hills High School, Cincinnati, Ohio, attended Lawrence University. He served four years active duty in the U.S. Air Force and is a programmer for IBM, Kingston.

The couple will reside in Hurley after returning from a wedding trip to St. Thomas, Virgin Islands.

Joan Ann Peischel, daughter of Mrs. Josephine Peischel of Rosendale, exchanged nuptial vows with Richard E. McManus of Ruby on Saturday, Sept. 16 at Old Dutch Church in Kingston. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McManus of Hillsdale, N.J.

The Rev. Arthur Oudemool officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Daniel Peischel Jr. She wore an A-line gown of imported silk organza over white satin embroidered with white roses and rose petals. The gown featured a mandarin collar and long Bishop sleeves. A matching headpiece accented with rhinestones held her imported silk illusion veil and she carried a bouquet of white daisies, carnations and baby's breath.

Janet Mohr of Hurley was matron of honor for her twin sister in an orange chiffon over taffeta A-line gown. Her headpiece was a cluster of orange petals accented with an orange veil and she carried a bouquet of bronze daisy pompons, yellow carnations, and baby's breath.

Douglas Keiser of Riverdale, N.J. was best man. Ushering were James Peischel of Rifton, brother of the bride; and John Walits, New York, cousin of the bride.

A reception was given at the Chalet Lounge in Rosendale.

The bride was graduated from Kingston High School and Ulster County Community College. She is employed as secretary to Dr. Edmund Reppert at Kingston Hospital. Her husband, an alumnus of Pascack Valley Regional High School and Rets Technical Institute in New Jersey, is employed by IBM .

When they return from a wedding trip to the Caribbean Islands, they will reside in Ruby.

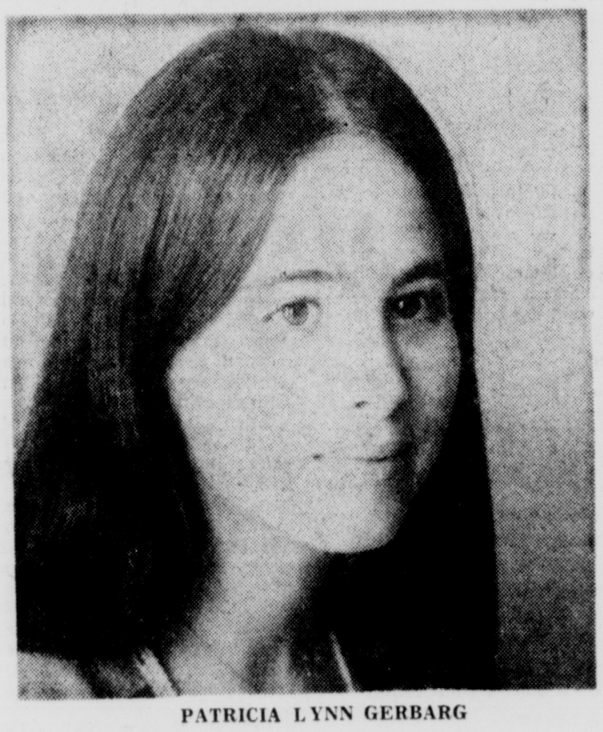
Miss Ham, a 1969 graduate of Rondout Valley High School and a 1970 alumna of Ulster County Community College, is employed by Green-Hall Insurance Agency, Stone Ridge.

Her fiance is a 1970 graduate of Rondout Valley High School. He is now attending Springfield College, Springfield, Mass.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Patricia Ann Gerbarg Engagement Told



PATRICIA LYNN GERBARG

Dr. and Mrs. David S. Gerbarg of Kingston announce the engagement of their daughter, Patricia Lynn, to Nelson Mark Braslow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Braslow of Philadelphia, Pa.

Miss Gerbarg was graduated from Pembrooke College, Providence, R.I., and her fiance is an alumnus of Albright College in Pennsylvania. They are both second year students at Harvard Medical School.

An April, 1973 wedding is planned.

Sharon Ann Perry Is Recent Bride

The Rev. Leo Ademski of Immaculate Conception Church, Kingston, officiated at the double ring wedding ceremony of Sharon Ann Perry, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Perry, 40 Madison Avenue, Kingston, and the late John J. Perry, and Lawrence J. Bujak, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bujak, 50 Crane Street, Kingston.

The wedding took place Saturday, Sept. 9 at 3 p.m. in St. Joseph's Church, Kingston.

Sam Perry, uncle of the bride, escorted her to the altar. She wore a gown of silk organza fashioned with a high neckline and long full Renaissance sleeves. Sculptured Alencon lace highlighted the collar, created a mock scoop effect on the sheer bodice, encircled the empire waistband and trimmed the sleeves and sleeve cuffs. Similar lace bordered the hem of the A-line skirt and swept back into the chapel length bult-in train. She wore a picture hat to which was attached a cathedral length lace edged veil and she carried a colonial nosegay of white roses and baby's breath with blue accents.

Francine Perry, sister of the bride, 40 Madison Avenue, Kingston, served as maid of honor, and Rosanne Bujak, sister of the bridegroom, 50 Crane Street, Kingston, was an attendant.

They were gowned in blue and apricot chiffon gowns, respectively. The gowns featured smocked bodices and long Renaissance sleeves. The attendants also wore picture hats. Miss Perry carried a colonial nosegay of white roses and blue miniature carnations with baby's breath and Miss Bujak carried a colonial nosegay of white roses, apricot miniature carnations and baby's breath.

The best man was Daniel Ellsworth of 168 Wrentham Street, Kingston. Ushers were Joseph Augustine, 74 Harding Avenue, Kingston, cousin of the bride; and W. Ronald Schmitz, Union Center Road, Ulster Park, cousin of the bridegroom.

The bride is a 1972 alumna of Kingston High School. She is employed by Ralph J. Carpino, Insurance and Real Estate, 220 Hurley Avenue, Kingston.

Her husband was graduated in 1969 from Kingston High School. He attended Ulster County Community College and is now self-employed.

Teen Writes to Abby Seeking Her Advice

DEAR ABBY: This is going to sound stupid, but I have to know. Can a girl who is not pregnant have milk in her breasts? I am 16 years old, not married, and I am a virgin, but I could nurse a baby with all the milk that's leaking out of me.

I discovered it when I was doing the routine monthly checkup for cancer or lumps in the breast. My cousin was with me and she was as shocked as I was. She thinks my mental condition could have something to do with it. No, I am not crazy, but my mother is pregant and so is the woman next door. I also have a cousin who is nursing her baby.

Can this be a mental thing? I don't know what to think, and don't know who to ask.

ANONYMOUS, PLEASE

DEAR ANONYMOUS: According to a documented article by J.D. Ratcliff (Reader's Digest, May, 1972), you don't have to be pregnant, married, or even going with anybody to have milk in your breasts. You don't even have to be a girl! (Yes, males have been known to have milk in their breasts!) Don't worry about it. It's temporary, and a bit of a nuisance, but it's not serious.

DEAR ABBY: Much has been said and written about careless brides who are late with their thank you notes — or worse yet — never get around to acknowledging their gifts at all.

How about the other side of the coin? I refer to people who say to a bride (or groom), "I've got a gift at the house — drop by and pick it up, will you?"

This happened to my daughter (at her wedding reception) believe it or not!

I think to ask a couple to go "pick up" a gift is the height of rudeness. What is wrong with people like that?

FATHER OF THE BRIDE

DEAR FATHER: In most cases, they are either ignorant, or they just don't care.

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Had It," whose husband's stock of old newspapers is overflowing her house

I can understand his reasons for wanting to save them. After all, he might want to re-read them sometime. But how would he ever find the item he is looking for? A city large enough to support two daily newspapers will certainly have a public library which will keep them on file, possibly on microfilm. Several libraries in the area might have complete files of the New York Times, with its excellent index, which can also serve as a clue to finding things in the local paper by pinning down the probable date.

Dear Abby
BY ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

The local newspaper offices themselves will have back issues and possibly various card indexes to help track down particular items. Perhaps "Had It's" husband is aware of all this, but perhaps he is not.

I know lots of erudite people who are unaware of the many different services the library can provide, and they are usually delighted and fascinated when they discover a new one.

I hope that when "Had It" does dispose of all those papers, she will get them to a recycling station. It sounds as tho they could save a whole forest! Good luck!

Bob Tries to convince Stan that it's only his imagination that makes him believe all women find him attractive, until the dashing tennis pro makes a startling revelation about Emily.

Anthony Newley, Tim Conway On The New Bill Cosby Show

Actor-singer-composer Anthony Newley and comedian Tim Conway are Bill Cosby's guest artists on the Monday, Sept. 25 (10:00-11:00 p.m., EDT) broadcast of "The New Bill Cosby Show" on the CBS Television Network.

Cosby's comic monologues deal with his mother's mania for using laundry starch, the problems of a deer in mating season, and Cosby's anxieties about safeguarding one of his beloved hats. In the "Wife of the Week" department Cosby copes with Mrs. Note-Leaver.

Raw Sugar... Basic Facts for Consumers

By MARGARET DANA

Currently one of the most often repreated requests from readers of this column is for more information about "raw sugar." Quite a lot of impressive things have been written and said about its rather magical nutritive qualities. It is not surprising that careful people who like their facts based on something beside enthusiasm are wondering what "raw sugar" has that ordinary sugar hasn't.

After checking a number of research reports, books, leaflets and speeches, I have some basic facts about sugar, both raw and refined, for consumers to add to their buying know-how.

What is raw sugar? Actually there is no such animal. But what is usually referred to as raw sugar is the product that comes from the first grinding substance that looks like sand. It is about 96 per cent sucrose and sweet to the taste. It also has a pleasant fragrance.

But at that stage, after just one treatment of the sugar cane, it also contains quite a lot of rather unpleasant stuff. It still holds bits of soil, sugar cane stalk fibers, molds, bacteria, lint and waxes.

The Food and Drug Administration considers raw sugar unfit "for direct use as a food or ingredient because of the impurities it contains. "But if raw sugar is washed once by a special machine under careful sanitary conditions, some of the dirt — not all — will be removed along with some of the solid matter and bacteria.

The product is then called "turbinado sugar" and if the FDA finds it has been made more sanitary it may pass the test and be sold as a food. Some nature food stores carry it under the name "turbinado sugar."

Is it any better than regular brown sugar or refined white sugar? Not according to the nutrition experts. Brown sugar does, however, contain microscopic amounts of nutritive elements not in white sugar. It has some vitamins, minerals, etc. But they are in insignificant amounts. Brown sugar, like refined white sugar is cleaner than the turbinado generally. Turbinado will contain about the same amounts of calcium, sodium, phosphorus, potassium and iron that brown sugar does — but no more.

It is important to recognize that it is the carbohydrates in any sugar and any other sweetener which give it its primary food value. You may hear talk of the "empty calories" in sugar. They are — in the sense that they are energy measures, not minerals and vitamins. But no one food can supply all the elements our bodies need for good nutrition.

We need a wide variety, as home economists and nutrition experts have been saying for a long time. Let's not kid ourselves that any one food can do it all. Nor is it fair to accuse any food, whether sugar or onions or orange juice or whatever, of failing to be the "perfect" food.

Unfortunately, however, there are people who have been persuaded that raw sugar provides a lot of extras that other sugars cannot. To answer this claim I refer to a recent statement made by the Federal Trade Commission. In May of this year the FTC charged that a company advertising and selling a product they called "Sugar in The Raw," was making false claims for its sugar. The FTC did not dispute the claim that "Sugar in the Raw" was unrefined and lacked chemicals and preservatives. But it said scientific research showed there was no nutritional advantage over regualr sugars. Moreover, the FTC pointed out it is not an organically grown food, but is processed to a point.

The company agreed to stop making the claims objected to by the FTC, but reserves the right to challenge the charge later.

You might ask: "Who needs sugar anyway — doesn't it just tempt us to get fatter and fatter? And doesn't the country already eat too much sugar, compared with other countries?" The nutrition experts at the United States Department of Agriculture answer these questions this way: sugar doesn't make us fatter — too much food and too little exercise makes us fatter. Actually, they say, sugar is one of the cheapest sources of food energy available and provides essential carbohydrates for the body. Moreover, the United States eats far less sugar per person than do citizens of quite a lot of other countries. Ireland, for instance, consumes 126 pounds a year per person, the Netherlands, 122 pounds, Australia, 115 pounds, United Kindom, 111 pounds, Denmark, 106 pounds, Israel, 105 pounds. The United States with 102 pounds per year per person is far down on the list.

(Margaret Dana welcomes opinions and questions on buying and will use them in her column as rapidly as research and space permit. Personal replies are impossible due to the large volume of mail from readers. Address: Margaret Dana Research Center, R.R. 1, Chalfont, Pa. 18914.)

By Marian Christy

NEW YORK — Most fashion designers are amateur psychologists.

Major decisions made on what women will wear are based on impressions hungrily gleaned from informal but incisive girl watching. The nebulous tidbits, carefully pieced together, become the designer's barometer.

Designers are aware that women everywhere dress casually for day and bypass trends to wear pantsuits or shirts and skirts. The reason is simple: Contemporary women with go-go schedules are too hurried for clothes complications.

But women are doing self-imposed turnabouts around cocktail time to become tastefully attired vamps. The standout fall-winter 1972 lateday dress, which is selling like mad, is dark-clingy-swishy and has an eye-boggling neckline that displays body epidermis uninhibitedly.

American hat designers, quick to grab a trend that looks as if it will rescue the flagging chapeau industry, are doing spectacular look-at-me hats geared to coax the nighttime gaze from the chin up.

Sleek close-to-the-head coiffures are being punctuated with endless interpretations of head-hugging cloches and turbans sparkled with opulent face jewels, glitter or feathers. Most are interpreted in shiny satins. All are being labeled hairdo substitutes.

Cuban-born Adolfo, darling of the jet set, is doing satin bandeaus that wrap the head and drip oversized rhinestones:

"Flamboyant little after-dark hats are an ego thing. Women don't dress excitingly during the day. Hats become a fascinating way to escape fashion boredom at night. Women want to amuse their audiences. They need an element of surprise. That's what the hats provide."

Frank Olive, young and enterprising, has created a dazzling collection of caps which he labels "dinner hats." He says they're definitely not for sleeping in the subway:

"Elegant women can't adhere nonstop to the concept of suburban living with station wagons, motor bikes and public transportation. Day-to-day dressing has to be casual. But lateday is becoming a special time. We all including women at home, work beyond capacity, and we need to know that we have moved beyond the system and are individualists at the end of an imperfect day."

The designers are, of course, gambling on the idea that a bit of fashion fantasy is a healthy escape hatch and, after five a women will be escorted rather than propelled.

Mr. John, an upper-echelon type who egotistically labels himself "Emperor of Fashion," is mad for the theatricality of snug turbans made from a fluff of feathers. Mr. John's orchestrations are not for side shows:

"Look, dear," he says majestically, "mob psychology has no place in fashion. I'm only interested in the individual's impact on her world. These days it takes a lot to stand out. Feathery turbans are right out of Swan Lake. After five a woman should look like a ballerina not a clown."

Designers agree that bulbous Mickey Mouse shoes with clutsy heels have done a fadeout and, as sexy high heels return, hats are making a related comeback. There is a visual reason. Dark cocktail dresses 'black out" the body. The focal points are the head and shoulders and, below the hemline, the legs.

Frank Olive, whose dinner-hat collection revolves around snug caps studded with smoked brilliants like crystal and amber, adds detachable veils that snap on and off at will.

"Veils represent a certain mystique — a kind of removable barrier between a women and a man. It's all very sexy. A woman can make a grand entrance in a veiled hat and, later, as salutations expand into intimate conversations — the veil is removed."

The well-timed gesture is considered dynamite.

Ali McGraw, the actress who made knitted caps her signature generally conceded to be America's best hat booster. Certainly, the young everywhere emulated her "Ali Hat" look last season. Recently, when attending black-tie affairs in New York, and Hollywood, Ali has punctuated her very simple gowns with dinner hats. She has upstaged her peers.

Fashion is catering to a select audience these days. Not everyone is going to go to great lengths to dress a la mode for small gatherings. A certain degree of flamboyancy is required.

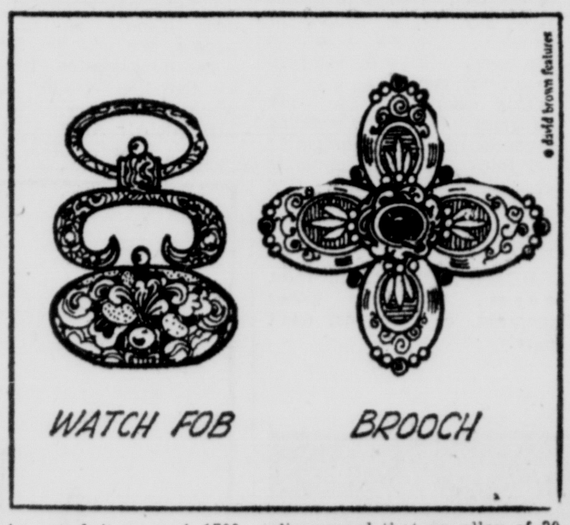
"It's also costly and time consuming," says Olive. "But dressing is a great outlet — if done even on a 'sometime' basis. There's a healthy cross-section of Mrs. America that can relate out there. If she relied on fashion a little more, she'd need to see her psychiatrist a little less."

About Antiques: Pinchbeck Jewelry

You don't have to be a collector to be interested in antique jewelry. Anyone lucky enough to inherit some hierloom jewelry will know the extra pleasure that a historic piece can bring. If you are a shopper with a taste for the unusual, a piece of antique jewelry can make a delightful addition to your everyday accessories, or a splendid gift.

And it doesn't have to be made of precious metals and mounted with exotic stones. Imitation jewelry has been made for average people of modest means for centuries, and many of the early pieces can be picked up today — if you can find them — for a reasonable price.

Some of the most popular early imitation jewelry was made of Pinchbeck, an alloy named for the Englishman who invented it around 1700. A London clock and watch maker, Christopher Pinchbeck discovered that an alloy of 20 parts copper and four parts zinc would produce a reddish-yellow metal closely resembling gold which was practically untarnishable. A wide range of jewelry was fashioned from the new metal, as well as many peddler's items of the day such as boxes, toilet articles, scissors, ornamental combs and chatelaines.



By the mid-18th century, Pinchbeck jewelry was so popular that most imitation pieces were being given the name regardless of their origin. Genuine Pinchbeck, however, is usually rather heavy, with fine workmanship. The chasing and engraving are charmingly executed, and some of the items are set with stone.

The sharp-eyed browser who spots a Pinchbeck watch fob like the one illustrated will find that it makes an ideal addition to a charm bracelet.

The Consumer's Question-Box

By MARGARET DANA

Q. I read in a newspaper column that color TVs emit a harmful radiation which can cause cancer. I believe brand names were mentioned. Will you please enlighten me as to which ones are safe and which are not? Why don't manufacturers have to put this information on their labels?

A. A Federal standard limiting X-ray emissions from TV receivers to 0.5 milliroentgen per hour was issued on Dec. 25, 1969. In three stages the sets had to be updated to meet that standard and every TV set made after Jan. 15, 1970, must carry a label or tag certifying the set complies with the Federal standard. Continuous inspection checks are made officially to insure a steady quality control that meets that standard.

However, any set made before Jan. 15, 1970, should be checked by a competent TV service technician to make sure that, through misuse or improper servicing, it does not exceed the safe radiation limit. Often this occurs when a service man has set the voltage up too high. Don't try to check the radiation yourself with a "do-it-yourself" gadget.

Q. I have found almost every time I buy lettuce that some leaves are unusuable because they have turned brown and old at the edges or at the core end. Can't the lettuce growers protect their lettuce heads better so as to avoid this waste?

A. The brown areas you find are not caused by age or deterioration but by a discoloration which is nature's "seal of protection." When the lettuce heads are first cut in the field, a milky substance comes from the stem which oxidizes and turns brown when the air hits it, and creates a "seal" over the cut end to keep air out and the lettuce fresh. It is a natural process that will happen each time the stem core is cut. It is not a sign of old lettuce and does not damage the leaves.

Q. I am planning to buy a new vacuum cleaner this fall and wonder what type is most efficient on a high-napped carpet which has a rubber pad?

A. The National Institute of Rug Cleaning says an upright cleaner with a beater bar usually reaches best the soil under a deep-napped surface. But there are models of some canister types of cleaners that also have a beater bar, although usually the nozzle is at the end of a hose rather than on the main section of the cleaner. This distance from the vacuum intake may possibly lessen the indraw of the beater bar, but if there is not too great a buildup of dirt, and the pile is not too heavy, it can work efficiently.

Q. Will you please tell us what kind of milk is used in yogurt? Even our dairy supplier can't tell me. Has yogurt more nutritive value than plain milk?

A. Yogurt, which is a mildly acid product, is usually made by combining skim or partially skimmed cow's milk with a bacterial culture. In this type of cultured milk the lactose has been converted to lactic acid. Otherwise, yougurt wil have about the same nutritive value as the fluid milk from which it was made. When fruit or other extras are added, there will be more nutritives added, of course. Many people find yogurt more easily digested than plain milk, and the flavors have more appeal.

Q. I use a good many packages of prepared mixes in my kitchen and am wondering how long I should expect to be able to store them before they get stale. Are there any rules regarding this?

A. The Department of Agriculture specialists say that mixes can be stored on your kitchen shelves for as long as a year if the conditions are right. That means the air must be cool. They do not keep at all well in extremely warm temperatures, and they do deteriorate with too long a storage time. But if you can set aside a cool cupboard and rotate them so as not to go beyond that maximum year, you should find them in good condition.

Pork Roast Stars in Fall

Get set for gemutlichkeit — good food, fellowship and fun! Bringing in autumn's bright bounty has been ample reason for feasting for centuries, "Demeter" in Greece, "Ceres" in Rome, "Harvest Home" in early England — all were harvest festivals of rejoicing.

The timing is perfect for feasting now. Fall's fresh produce peaks in quality and quantity just when pork is building in supply and bearing most attractive price tags. This happy situation makes for America's "October Porkfest"— today's version of traditional harvest celebrations and an echo of Munich's gregarious Oktoberfest with its rivers of beer and tables laden with favorite foods.

FEAST TABLES FEATURE PORK

Pork is no newcomer to the feast table. From early times hams, suckling pigs, roast loins and fresh legs of pork have been chosen to occupy the platter of honor in front of the host at holiday tables all over the world. Plan a Porkfest menu around one of these special-occasion favorites or select spareribs, chops, pork steaks, a picnic roast or a smoked boneless shoulder.

A pork loin roast weighing four to six pounds will provide an ample feast for the average American family. The meat will be at its tender, juicy and delicious best when roasted in a moderate oven to an internal temperature of 170°F.

STUFFING BALLS SHARE PORK PLATTER

Add a plus to the meat platter with spicy sausage stuffing balls that extend the savory goodness of the roast while making a flavor contribution of their own. Easy to make and quick to bake, the recipe for the balls can be doubled if desired as yield is not limited by available space for stuffing.

Give the meal an appealing German flavor accent with red cabbage cooked with autumn's tart red apples, onion and caraway seed. Present yet another taste treat — carrots garnished with bacon.

Pork loin roast — sausage stuffing balls — bacon-garnished vegetables! Variety, yes, but only the beginning of a long list of delightful dinner table offerings provided by the fresh and smoked cuts of today's lean and meaty pork that's packed with valuable protein, vitamins and minerals as well as flavor.

Pork Loin Roast

4 to 6-pound pork loin roast

Place roast, fat side up, on rack in open roasting pan. Insert roast meat thermometer so the bulb is centered in the thickest part. Make certain bulb does not rest in fat or on bone. Do not add water; do not cover. Roast in a slow oven (325 degree F.) until the thermometer registers 170 degrees F. Allow 30 to 35 minutes per pound for roasting a center loin; 35 to 40 minutes per pound for a half loin; 40 to 45 minutes per pound for an end roast (total time — 2 to 3 hours).

Note: Have the meat retailer loosen the chine (back) bone by sawing across the rib bones. When roasting is finished, the back bone can be removed easily by running the carving knife along the edge of the roast before the meat is placed on the platter to be carved.

Pork Gravy

One-fourth cup pork drippings
Three tablespoons flour
Two cups water
Salt
Pepper

Remove roast from pan and place on carving board. Pour off all but one-fourth cup drippings, leaving brown particles in pan. Blend flour and cook, stirring constantly, over low heat until mixture is lightly browned. Remove from heat. Gradually add water, blending well after each addition. Return to heat; bring to a boil, stirring constantly, and continue cooking until mixture thickens. Cook slowly 3 to 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

Red Cabbage With Apple

Two jars (16 ounces each) sweet-sour red cabbage
One medium-sized tart red apple, cut in thin wedges and halved
One medium-sized onion, halved and sliced
One-fourth cup raisins
One-half teaspoon caraway seed

Combine cabbage, apple, onion, raisins and caraway seed in frying-pan or saucespan. Bring to boil, over and reduce heat and cook slowly for 15 minutes or until apple is tender and raisins are plump. Drain if desired. 6 servings.

Sausage Stuffing Balls

One pound fresh pork sausage
One package (7 to 8 ounces) seasoned stuffing mix
Three-quarters cup hot water
One-half cup finely chopped onion
One-half cup finely chopped celery
One egg, beaten
One-half teaspoon baking powder

Combine stuffing mix with hot water. Break sausage into small pieces and add to moistened stuffing mix. Stir in onion, celery, egg and baking powder until evenly distributed. Shape into balls, using one-fourth cup mixture for each ball, and place in baking pan. Cover with foil, securing tightly around pan. Bake in a slow oven (325 degrees F.) 15 minutes. Remove foil; increase oven temperature to 350 degrees F. and continue baking 25 minutes or until sausage is done. 18 to 22 balls

PORK FALL FEAST

Food Tips for the Busy Woman

Add drained canned clams to fritter batter, drop into deep hot fat and fry until browned. Be sure to drain the clam fritters on absorbent paper.

Sprinkle canned peach halves with maraschino cherry juice and dot with butter; bake in a hot oven until heated through. Serve with poultry or pork.

Elizabeth Post: Doing the Right Thing

Dear Mrs. Post:

You have helped me once and perhaps you can again.

I have accepted an invitation to be in my brother-in-law's wedding as one of the bridesmaids. My husband's ex-wife may be invited, although my brother-in-law's fiance has never met her. Would it be impolite not to be in the wedding if my husband's ex-wife is invited? The relationship between my husband and his ex-wife is not very pleasant and I really don't think that I could tolerate it.

Since a child is involved, the relationship between my in-laws and the ex-wife is very close, which of course will always be there and I understand that, but since she is no longer the daughter-in-law, what is your feeling in this matter?

I do not want to hurt anyone's feelings and therefore I am seeking your help.

Greta

Dear Greta:

I do not think an invitation should be sent to your husband's ex-wife. If the child is old enough to attend alone or be brought by an aunt or uncle, he (or she) could be included. But to invite both you and the ex-wife (especially when you are to be an attendant) is sure to cause an awkward situation.

Even though she is close to your in-laws, this is not their day — it is the bride and groom's, and everything should be done to make it go as smoothly as possible.

Since you are close enough to the bride and groom to be a member of the wedding party, and the bride does not even know the ex-wife, there is no real reason to invite her.

Dear Mrs. Post:

My niece recently had a baby. She sent out birth announcements, and I sent her a gift for the baby. Now she has sent me an invitation to the christening. I don't intend to go because I live over one hundred and fifty miles away. Do I have to send a gift?

Mrs. Peterson

Dear Mrs. Peterson:

No — the gift you sent when you received the announcement is sufficient.

Dear Mrs. Post:

We are planning aNovember wedding, each of us being divorced for many years. I have been active civically in my community and would like to invite about fifty guests to the chapel for the ceremony and to an evening reception.

I am appalled at how very little mention is made in various etiquette books on planning second marriages. Certainly we have a right to happiness in the few short years left, but because we are divorced we are the "forgotten breed."

I plan to make my own handwritten invitations and would like to know the proper wording. Do I use:

Mrs. Mary Smith
and
Mr. Frank Jones
will be solemnized on Saturday, the eleventh of November at half past seven
Greenville Baptist Church
Reception following at White Horse Inn

Do I use my title of "Mrs."?

Also, may we have a champagne toast and wedding cake in pastel color? My son and his wife will be our witnesses. No ushers.

Mrs. Porter

Dear Mrs. Porter:

The answers to all of your questions are found in "Emily Post's Wedding Etiquette" — formerly "The Wonderful World of Weddings." However, in case you cannot obtain a copy, here are your answers:

Your invitations should read:

The honour of your presence is requested
at the marriage of
to
Mr. Frank Jones
etc.

You do use "Mrs."

You may have champagne, wedding cake, and all the other trimmings to make a memorable wedding reception.

Hints from Heloise

By HELOISE CRUISE

DON'T LET IT DAMPEN YOUR DAY!

Dear Heloise:

When my children were little and would wet their beds, I could never get the stain out of the bed.

One night, my little girl wet the bed and I couldn't change the bed right that minute, so I put a terry towel on the bed under the sheet next to the mattress and another on top. When I went back to change the bed, most of the stain was gone.

I thought it was because it was such a small wet spot, so I experimented by wetting the bed with a very wet cloth, (leaving the towel under the sheet) and then put a towel on top again, and it came up. And also: I found if I laid a small amount of weight on top, all the stain came up (that awful ring), and, best of all, you can wash out the odor and get the water stain out also.

Dear Heloise:

The aluminum frames for the storm windows and screens get very black and grimy in the city.

I have learned an easy method of cleaning the frames that I can recommend. It might be helpful to some who would like to try it out.

I apply vaseline with a small brush and then after an hour or so, I wipe clean with cloth or a paper napkin.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:

My mother-in-law (now a widow) wanted a garden spot redone and reseeded, so I helped her with the job.

We rototilled and raked and then we were ready to seed the lawn — I asked her where the grass spreader was and she hadn't thought about needing one. I thought a few minutes and asked her if she had an old flour sifter (the crank-handle type) — she had one — I put the grass seed in it and cranked away. Her lawn was seeded evenly and came up evenly.

We laughed as I sowed the seed. I said, "If your neighbors look out and see me walking around the yard cranking a flour sifter, they will think I'm ready for the 'Funny Farm' "!

Dear Heloise:

As a young married with a sewing hobby who has to do the weekly wasning at a laundramat, I came across an idea I'd like to share.

Most laundramats have long, high formica counters, built-in for sorting and folding laundry. I found these ideal for cutting out a patern while I wait for the clothes to wash and to dry.

Of course, I would use the counter space for cutting only when the laundramat isn't very busy (when it is, I take a book or write letters).

Letters of Laughter

Dear Heloise:

My husband and I have married off our three children. (I say he gave them away.)

Since then it has been so hard for me to get down to cooking for two instead of five or more.

I've learned to make up my same meat loaf recipe and just divide it three ways. Then I freeze or refrigerate two parts. I have the first one-third the first day, a few days later I get another third out and pour a can of undiluted tomato soup over it, heat it, and is it good. A few days later I take out the other third — pour a can of mushroom soup over it and heat.

My husband never knows he is eating leftovers, which he hates.

Uncle Harry Finds Nursing Exhausting On Here's Lucy

Bedridden fracture victim Lucille Carter arrives home from the hospital at last, and in a couple of days exhausted Uncle Harry is the one who's ready for an ambulance, on "Here's Lucy" Monday, Sept. 25 (9:00-9:30 p.m., EDT) on the CBS Television Network.

To eliminate the cost of a nurse, Harry arranges for himself and some of Lucy's friends to take turns at the job according to a schedule of work shifts. Harry draws the first shift, then discovers that the other volunteer Florence Nightingales have left him holding the bag.

NURSE ON DUTY - Uncle Harry (Gale Gordon) takes on the task of ministering to the needs of fracture victim Lucy Carter (Lucille Ball) and is soon ready for a nurse's care himself, on "Here's Lucy" Monday, Sept. 25 (9:00-9:30 p.m., EDT) on the CBS Television Network.

CONGRATULATIONS — Jay C. Colen, of RD 7, East Kingston, a senior majoring in journalism at Northeastern University, Boston, Mass., receives the Professor of Military Science Medal of Merit from Lt. Col. Robert D. Sullivan, honoring his leadership and scholastic excellence in Army ROTC. Colen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Colen.

Air Force Briefs

Two Ulster County men have completed their air force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex.

They were:

Airman Angleo V. Secreto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor P. Secreto of 384 First Avenue, Kingston. He studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs during his six weeks training period and received special instruction in human relations.

Airman Secreto, a 1972 graduate of Kingston High School, is remaining at the Air Training Command base in San Antonio for specialized training in the security police field.

Airman Allan M. Whitaker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orville W. Whitaker of Rt. 3, Saugerties, also is remaining at Lackland for specialized training in the education and training field.

A 1970 graduate of Saugerties High School, he received his associate degree in 1972 from Ulster County Community College.

Both Airmen Secreto and Whitaker begin their new phase of training as the Air Force is celebrating its 25th anniversary.

Sgt. Israel Rivera, son of Mrs. Luz M. Rivera, Benardo Apartments, R.D. 2, Wallkill, meanwhile, has arrived for duty at Fort George G. Meade in Maryland. Sgt. Rivera, a communications operations specialist, is serving with the 6970th Air Base Group of the air force. He previously served at Shemya Airbase in Alaska. The sergeant is a 1969 graduate of Food and Maritime Trades High School in New York.

SHIPMATES SOUGHT FOR EXPEDITION

MIAMI, FLA.

Capt. Mike Burke, the ex-Navy submariner who heads Windjammer Cruises, has begun forming a crew and a passenger list for the upcoming around-the-world sailing of YANKEE TRADER.

The ship, a 180 foot, steel hulled former Coast Guard oceanography vessel, famous as Hydrographer and rechristened Yankee Trader, will depart in January for Panama, Haiti, Jamaica, Galapagos Islands and a string of other intriguing ports.

A brochure for the trip and instructions on applications by prospective passengers are being sent out from Windjammer Cruises, P.O. Box 120, Miami Beach, Fla. 33139. The material lists more than 20 stops.

Among them are Pitcairn Island, where the H.M.S. Bounty mutineers started new lives where their descendants today live, and Easter Island, site of the giant and mysterious monoliths which so fascinated the explorer Thor Hyerdahl.

Other ports are Bali, Tahiti, New Guinea, Devil's Island, and Rio de Janeiro.

"The passengers we're seeking," Burke said, "are people who enjoy an informal atmosphere, are interested in new places and experiences, and who enjoy the companionship of interesting people.

"That's one reason why we're using applications system wherein the prospective passenger includes a brief autobiography."

Plans call for the some 100 travelers and 25 crewmembers to circle the globe in about nine months, but not on a rigid schedule.

"We've planned the excursion," Burke said, "so that we'll always be with trade winds and in warm weather. But we've also made sure that if there seems to be sentiment for staying somewhere longer than was expected we'll do so — no schedule."

Burke prefers to call the passengers "shipmates," since it is his policy on the sailing vessel journeys he offers in the Caribbean to give sailing lessons and seamanship instruction to those who wish it.

That policy will hold on the Yankee Trader, which is undergoing a $500,000 total renovation.

"Whoever wants to," Burke remarked, "can help with navigation, steering the ship and in its day-to-day care. But if taking things easy is what the shipmate wants, fine with us."

Aside from the sea lore aspects of the Yankee Trader's voyage, those who go with it in January will be offered a long and varied — but neither compulsory nor regimented program of fishing, skin diving, beach picnics, excursions ashore, and, in the African portion, big game hunting.

The reconditioning of Yankee Trader, which was purchased for $100,000, includes:

Bachelor and single girls quarters.

Radar and ship-to-shore radio.

Dispensary and operating facilities for the physician who will go on the voyage.

Burke said passage will cost $5,000 or about $18 a day, which includes all meals and an ample drinks allowance, as is the custom on his briefer Windjammer jaunts.

"Wine goes with every meal," he said, "and so do rum swizzles. There's champagne on Saturday and bloody marys on Sunday. It's been our experience that few passengers need to dip into their own pockets for drinks."

He described the type of traveler he is looking for this way:

"You can call them 'barefooters'. They are people without pretensions, who are perfectly content to leave their pearls, furs and smoking jackets at home. They are people who seek a relief — in comfort of course — from the self-indulgence and the luxury loaded schedules of so much modern travel.

"Like others we've guided around the world by sea, they want to see, do, learn and experience this voyage for themselves and by themselves.

Air and Sea Travel Combined

French Line Change of Pace

NEW YORK

Now the French Line has found a way to make your two weeks vacation feel like the most voluptuous month you ever spent. A complete change of pace is available in a new travel experience combining air-sea travel arrangements, organized land tours, and hotel accommodations. There are two special European Tour Programs which include a transatlantic crossing on the most luxurious liner in the world, the ss France, and flying on Air France.

The highly compact two-week vacation plans now offered by the French Line take two different directions and are the lowest priced packages in the company's history. The Paris Package will get you to Le Havre on the glamourous ss France. On board you can rest, luxuriate in the Left Bank (what other lines call tourist class), eat in the best floating restaurant on the seven seas, and see special films on France and England. After five days of fun on the world's longest and largest ship, you get to Paris refreshed and ready for sightseeing, all arranged for you. Hotels ranging from the Champlain, for economy budgets, to the Louvre or Lutetia, in the quality bracket, to the deluxe Royal Monceau, are part and parcel of Paris arrangements. Then, there is sightseeing around Paris for a whole day, half a day in beautiful Versailles, a two hour cruise on the Seine in a Bateau Mouche, and the rest of the time on your own.

If you feel a little lost, a local host escort service is available for the duration of the six-day stay in France to help you cope with language and customs. The return trip is on Air France. During peak summer traveling time the Paris Two-Week Economy Package can cost $658, or it can be as low as $525 if you go in September. Dates for this trip are Sept. 28, Oct. 12, and Nov. 18.

Then there is the second air or sea two week vacation idea: the Paris London Package. This trip starts out on an Air France jet to Paris, with two days and three nights in that city, then back on Air France, this time to London for three days and four nights. The return to New York on the ss France will allow you to rest from Paris and London sightseeing, have breakfast in bed, swim or just read in the library.

Hotels in Paris are still the Champlain, Louvre or Lutetia and the Royal Monceau. In London they vary from Bedford Corner for economy accommodations, to the Rembrandt and the Britannia. Local host escort service in both Paris and London will be available as well as organized touring of historical points of interest in both cities. The boat train from London to Southampton, all transfers to and from airports, baggage handling and porter's gratuities are part of the expenses included. An economy Paris London air/sea package can range from $681 to only $539 Dec. 7. Dates are Sept. 20, Oct. 12 and Dec. 7; all are in conjunction with westbound sailings.

For those anxious to travel more luxuriously, the French Line has many options in the choice of cabins; and of course the incomparable ss France's First Class would provide some extras. Going First Class would change prices to a still reasonable $805 to $1146 for a real VIP two-week vacation all the way. However, the French Line has based its package rates on jet economy class on Air France and the Left Bank on the France.

Israel's 25th Fete . . . 850,000 Tourists Due

NEW YORK

The Israel Ministry of Tourism is exploring every option in order to make room for hundreds of thousands of tourists expected during Israel's 25th Anniversary Year.

The 25th Anniversary Year, which got underway this month, is expected to attract nearly 850,000 tourists. An estimated 43 per cent of the total will come from the United States. To ensure sufficient room for the visiitors the Ministry of Tourism has called on the people of Jerusalem and Tel Aviv to make rooms in private homes available to tourists. More than 1500 persons have already answered the Ministry's call and 500 rooms have been approved. Additional rooms will be added to the Availability List as the 25th Anniversary Year approaches.

Under existing arrangements the rooms can only be reserved after a tourist has arrived in the country. Three offices serve as centers for the private home accomodations service. One is located at Lod Airport and is open 24 hours a day, the other two are located in the Municipal Tourist Information Offices at 42 Frishman Street in Tel Aviv and 34 Yafo Street in Jerusalem and observe normal office hours.

There are few countries in the world as varied in climate, topography and personality as Israel. To many who have visited the country for the first time, Israel seems to be a study in contrasts.

The three tourist views of the country effectively present just a few of the different aspects that comprise the mosaic that is Israel.

The universal appeal of the country has made it one of the world's most popular tourist destinations. Consult your local travel agent for details on joining Israel for its Anniversary Year.

Electronic Pen Pals

KINGSTON — A freshman social studies project at John A. Coleman High School startd a year ago has mushroomed into a multi-media cultural exchange.

What began with pen pals in Asia and Africa has now branched out to tape conversations across the oceans. Future plans call for a film exchange as well.

Under the direction of Robert Carroll, social studies teacher, freshmen boys and girls studying Afro-Asian culture were assigned pen pals, one on each continent. The activity proved so effective as an international experiment in understanding that a selected number of students extended the pen pal idea into sending live tape recorded messages.

Overseas contacts were supplied by high school teachers and missionaries in Africa and Asia who wished their students to have a broader understanding in America. Presently, messages are exchanged with young people in Korea, Hong Kong, India, Malawi and Uganda. It is hoped that the program can be further expanded to include Thailand, Phillipines, Pakistan and Kenya.

The next step will be a film of Coleman High School to show how American teens live and study.

Carroll explained that the important aspect of this experiment is direct personal contact between young people of corresponding ages on a voluntary basis. He was most enthusiastic about results to date noting that the students have benefited from the exchange in friendship and understanding.

Individuals and teachers wishing to participate in the program may contact Afro-Asian Center, CPO 399, Kingston, 12401, Carroll said.

Youth in the News—Re-Entry

Re-entry to the college scene has been completed by Youth in the News this week as reports of campus activities filter back from are students.

Karen Sparks, of Woodstock, a senior at State University College at Fredonia, designed the sets for the Mummer first production of the school year. Henrik Ibsen's classic A Doll's House was staged this past week at the College Theatre. Karen, a theater major was assisted in the set design by Robert Mellon, a junior from Portchester.

Richard Kaufman, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kaufman of Hurley Mountain Road, Hurley is one of 29 English majors at Hartwick College who is spending a 14-week term in England.

The students are staying with British families and will be studying English literature and its relation to British history and culture.

Lucinda Rae Richardson, 17, daughter of Mrs. Leona M. Richardson of 15 Snyder Avenue, Kingston has entered the Robert Packer Hospital School of Nursing, Sayre, Pa.

A graduate of GAR Memorial High School, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., she was active in marching and concert bands and served on the Boston Store Fashion Board.

Mary Jane Freer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Freer of Box 362, Ulster Park, is entering Marymount College, Tarrytown as a freshman this fall. She is a graduate of Kingston High School.

A Kingston girl, Charlyn Herdman of 20 Derrenbacker Street, is now a member of the junior class at Montclair State College, N.J. She is a June 1972 honor graduate of Ulster County Community College and is studying for a degree in music therapy at Montclair.

Miss Herdman is well known in the Kingston area having served as organist in the Church of the Comforter, Lutheran Church of the Redeemer and the First Church of Christ, Scientist.

Fall is graduation time too Elizabeth A. Eakins of Village Arms Apartments, New Paltz received a Bachelor of Science degree in consumer related studies at Pennsylvania State University this past week. Approximately 1,450 graduates received degrees at commencement exercises at the University Park, Pa., campus.

Elizabeth Kruszenski of 419 Delaware Avenue, Kingston, was among 20 students who successfully completed the one year course of study at the Albany Medical Center School of Medical Technology and received Bachelor of Science Degree from the State University of New York.

Students of medical technology must complete a four-year course of study, spending the last year of the 12 consecutive months in laboratory training at Albany Medical Center. Upon completion of their studies, graduates qualify to take the national examination, which this year will be conducted by the Board of Registry of Medical Technologists, Friday, Nov. 17.

Two Ulster County girls participated in the Honors Convocation last week at College of Mount Saint Vincent, Riverdale. Diane S. Bosco, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ignazio A. Bosco of 80 Roosevelt Avenue, Kingston and Mary K. Wilsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Wilsey of 156 Market Street, Saugerties, were honored for dean's list ratings during the past year. Diane is a senior and Mary a sophomore.

Two Kingston youths were named to the dean's list at Colgate University, Hamilton, for the past semester according to reports received this week.

They are Louis J. Salzmann son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Salzmann of 166 Wrentham Street, and Douglas H. Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert P. Jones of 115 Henry Street.

A senior, Salzmann is concentrating in political science and is a member of Phi Delta Zeta fraternity. He is a 1969 graduate of Kingston High School.

County 4-H Has Finest Year

KINGSTON — One of the finest years in the history of the Ulster County 4-H came to an end with the conclusion of the recent New York State Fair in Syracuse. Besides the many exhibitors and actual 4-H participants, two busloads of 4-H'ers and chaperones also made the trip to Syracuse.

Tractor Driving Contest — For the first time, Ulster County has the State Tractor Driving Champion. Ron Van Aken of Stone Ridge zig-zagged his way around and through the obstacle course at Syracuse to place number one over 50 other county contestants. Ron will now go to Richmond, Virginia in late September to drive in the Eastern Regional Operators Contest. Jim Barnhart, also of Stone Ridge, will be making the trip to Richmond as a spectator as a result of his 11th place finish in the state contest.

Horse Program — Ulster's 4-H horse group, in its finest year, took four championship rosettes, 13 blue (excellent), six red (good), and two white (worthy) ribbons in the State 4-H Horse Show. Representing this group were Paul Beesimer and Sharon Fox of Olive Bridge; Barbara Benicase, Jack Clancy and Mary Ann Scism of Kingston; Star Berzal and Jo Ann Layman, Saugerties; Martha Buchner and Lisa Chabót of Stone Ridge; Maureen Kelly, Accord and Denise Trahan of Lake Katrine. The horse judging team consisting of Paul Beesimer and Sharon Fox of Olivebridge; Jo Ann Layman of Saugerties and Barbara Benicase of Kingston placed 24th in the state. Ulster County again placed very high in the herdsmenship, coming in second only to Orange County.

Vegetable Judging Team — Ulster County's defending champion vegetable judging team of last year, maintained its high standards by placing third in the state this year. Marie Sande of Lake Katrine, fourth, Bruce Elmore of High Falls, 11th, Claudia Jenkins of Rifton, 20th and Cathy Sauer of Mount Marion, represented us this year. Marie, Bruce and Claudia will be attending an advanced training program at Cornell at which time the state vegetable judging team will be selected. Due to age restrictions, this will be an experience training program, only, for Bruce.

Dog Program — Ulster's biggest representation at State Fair this year was in the dog field. The 16 man drill team placed second, while the county had a fitting and showing champion to go along with 24 blue (excellent), 12 red (good) and six white (worthy) ribbons in the state 4-H dog show. All Ulster County second year members were in the blue category. Representing the county's biggest and best dog group were: Lisa Chabot, Patty Jansen, Michelle Miller, Debbie Morgan, and Kathy and Susan Stokes all of Stone Ridge; Steve Coddington, Accord; Terri Colucci, New Paltz; Ann Manganiello and Laurie and Jonathan DeWitt of Ulster Park; Katherine Goodrich, Gardiner; Eric, Maura and Matthew Kates of Kerhonkson; Theresa Neumann, Rosendale; Nancy Warren, Christine and Maureen Ryan of High Falls and Leigh Semilof of Hurley.

Dairy and Beef Program — In the beef area, Lance and Lee Nelson of Mt. Marion received red awards of good with their two Charolais-Hereford crosses. They also placed seventh in the state in the herdsmenship contest, receiving a blue award of excellent.

In the dairy field, George Barley, Margaret and Toni-Lynn DeWitt and Stephen Rider of Accord; Margaret Davis, Kerhonkson and Joseph and Richard Sauer of Saugerties captured one blue, five red and two white awards in the 4-H Dairy Show, and placed third of 39 county teams in the herdsmenship contest, receiving a blue award of excellent. The Dairy Judging Team placed 26th out of 40 teams with Rocki DeWitt of Accord placing 25 individually and receiving an award trip to be taken later this year.

Horticultural Judging — Ulster County's first 4-H Senior (14 and over) Ornamental Horticulture Judging Team consisted this year of Marie Sande of Lake Katrine, Cathy Sauer of Mount Marion and Terri Colucci of New Paltz. Although there were no official team placings in this first contest, individual; Marie placed seventh, Cathy ninth and Terri 18th. The first two girls have been awarded an educational trip to be taken next year.

Dress Revue — Four girls represented the county in the State 4-H Dress Revue. Doing a real, fine job this year were Jennie Kaufman and Sue Johnson of Hurley; Paula Robinson of Kingston; and Cheryl Thompson of Flatbush.

Teen Leadership — Seventeen Ulster County 4-H'ers participated in the Teen Leadership Program this year at the State Fair. This is usually a result of outstanding 4-H work being done locally by these 4-H'ers during the preceding year. While at the Fair, they had varied experiences from working in booths, helping judges, announcing shows, to setting up displays. These hard working teenagers were: Bonnie Barton, Leslie Homan, Karen McClurg, Cathleen, Christine and Karen Ruther of Kingston; Elizabeth and Eric Kates of Kerhonkson; Diana Netzley, Accord; Marie Sande, Lake Katrine; Sharon Fox, Olivebridge; Melinda and Todd Widmark of Gardiner; Susan Raymond, Stone Ridge; Joy Rogers, Milton; Christine Ryan of High Falls; and Sue Scott from Saugerties.

TRACTOR CHAMPION — Ronald Van Aken (C) Stone Ridge, Ulster County's first state 4-H tractor driving champion gets last minute tips before leaving for Eastern Regional 4-H Tractor Operator's Contest to be held Sept. 26 in Richmond, Va. Conferring with the champ are Bob Davenport (L) of Davenport Implement Co., who has assisted the 4-H program for many years and James Barnhart of Stone Ridge who placed 11th in the state contest and will go to the regional meet as a spectator.

TEEN SCENE

Re-Runs, Also Rans

The school year and the new TV season start out about the same time, and in much the same spirit.

Students are sure that this year they won't find math nearly as hard as it was last year, somebody will remember to ask them to the class dance, and nobody will steal their sneakers out of the locker.

And the television producers are sure that this year, the audience will laugh in the right places, that the actor who flopped last year will do better this year in a different (though almost identical) series, and none of the critics will have heartburn on premier night. Lotsa luck.

Every once in awhile there will be a "Laugh-In" or a "Get Smart," or an "All In The Family" that will merit the high hopes everyone had for it the night before the first show. Fortunately or unfortunately, it doesn't happen very often. That is proved by the number of new shows that will be coming in around the first of the year to fill in for the ones that fell with the first snow.

Who will be the winners this year? If we knew that, we'd be television promoters. There are some noteworthy trends, though. One seems to be the "Let's-Turn-A-Hit-Movie-Into-A-Series-Syndrome."

Nearly fifteen years ago, Yul Brynner hit what was definitely the high point of his career playing the King of Siam in a film, "The King And I." He made a very handsome despot. As we said, that was fifteen years ago. Since then he has aged at least ten years, but for the TV series "Anna and the King" his leading lady, Samantha Eggar, is at least ten years younger than Deborah Kerr, who played the schoolmistress role in the film. This wouldn't matter, but since the story hinted at a romantic attachment between the King and Anna, it does seem rather strange when she's young enough to be his daughter—or granddaughter. In addition, with the state of Southeast Asia today, isn't there something a little escapist about the whole idea? In 1958, when the film was so popular, at least we weren't bombarded in the newsreels with pictures of victims of the war in Thailand.

The same situation exists in the series M-A-S-H. We are promised that it is just like the film, only without the gore, smut, and cursing. If the producers keep that promise, it ought to be completely unlike the film. What next—a weekly series based on "The Godfather," without sex, blood, or swearing?

If the producers can't find a film to make into a series, they make a series out of another series. Hundreds of girls swooned over Dr. Kildare, so since Richard Chamberlain, the original in the series, has gone on to better things such as playing Hamlet, we now have "Young Dr. Kildare." Since we chuckled guiltily at the images of ourselves in Archie Bunker, we now have his opposite, Maude Findlay. Trouble is, if people aren't mad about Maude, they may decide Archie is bunk, too.

Will people like old phones and old cars and old plots as well if they belong to the good guys, as they did when they belonged to those mobsters in "Bonnie and Clyde" and "The Godfather?" One sure way to find out is to start shooting—and we don't necessarily mean with cameras. That's Banyon for you—a film that not only boasts accessories, but also a genuine relic of the era—Joan Blondell. Of course, if you want to watch old movies, there's always the late-late show.

They must be running out of old, old movies to show, because now they're starting to show new old movies. Like "Cactus Flower," "The Andromeda Strain," and, so help us, "Love Story." No, no, you didn't tune into "Mary Poppins" by accident, that's Julie Andrews on her new series.

If you miss Richard Chamberlain as the original Doctor Kildare, get well quick, and you can see him play King Edward VIII in December in a special movie, renouncing his throne for the woman he loves. Love, of course, means you never have to say you're sorry, but to be or not to be, that is the question. It isn't everything, but it's a little bit of everything. . . .

The fellows who plan the telly shows, fail to grasp the fact that a situation comedy is still a situation comedy, whether it deals with the hilarious(?) misadventures of American soldiers in a prisoner-of-war-camp, or the rib-tickling antics (?) of a madcap hospital crew. Trying to revive "The King and I" as a Siamese "I Love Lucy" does not make it original. Until real innovators are ready to come up with really new ideas instead of new twists to old ideas, many viewers will be glad that televisions come with a small non-optional attachment known as the "off-knob."

Fool mother nature if you want to, but don't try to fool the television viewer!

Another First at RV

KYSERIKE — When members of the junior class at Rondout Valley High School order their school rings on Tuesday, Oct. 3, it will be another "first" in Rondout history. The class of 1974 will be the first to have rings of a new design, created by a student-faculty committee last spring.

The committee was made up of seniors Walter Zaharchuk and Bonnie Ludlow, Class of 1972, juniors Bill Taylor and Linda Coler, sophomores Connie Stank and Eric Kates, and faculty members Mrs. Gloria Starling, Mrs. Marion Eckert, Mrs. Ann Russnow, Ronald Mapstone, and Christopher Westover. They met with representatives of several ring companies, discussing design and price, and finally awarded the contract to the Balfour Company.

The new design was finalized on June 7 and 8, when committee members were the invited guests of Balfour at their facilities in Attleboro, Mass. They were honored by firm at Holiday Inn, and given a tour of the plant and the printing facilities. At the latter, they saw Rondout announcements and diplomas printed. During their visit, they met with artists and settled on the final design of the ring.

Rondout Valley's new ring is designed specifically to represent the school's individual character. One side of the ring shows a flying goose and the name "Ganders"; the other side depicts the lamp of knowledge and other symbols. As in the past, students will have their choice of stone.

College Ways and Means

STONE RIDGE — Ways to finance a student's college education will be the subject of a three-week credit-free course to be offered in the evening this fall by Ulster County Community College.

Paying for College will meet from 7:30 to 9 o'clock on three Tuesday evenings at the Stone Ridge campus starting Oct. 3. There is no registration fee.

The course should be of interest to many people in the community since financing a student's college education is one of the prime concerns of parents today.

Through the course an effort will be made to acquaint parents with all the types of fnancial aid available and to illustrate how a college arrives at the amount of aid for which each student is eligible.

The instructor will be Mrs. Jean Robertaccio, director of Student Financial Aid at UCCC. She earned a B.S. Degree from Mississippi State College for Women and an M.A. Degree from New York University.

Further information about the course can be obtained by calling the Office of Continuing Education at the College.

Area Happenings

Voice of Democracy

KINGSTON — The annual Voice of Democracy program sponsored by Joyce-Schirick Post 1386, Veterans of Foreign Wars will start Oct. 1 and continue through Nov. 15.

Theme will be My Responsibility to Freedom. Local winners will have a chance to be state winners and state winners will go on to the national contest.

Further information may be obtained by contacting Henry Diehl Jr., chairman or Karen Utley, co-chairman.

Onteora Junior Class

BOICEVILLE — Members of the Junior Class at Onteora High School will conduct a magazine subscription drive throughout the week of Sept. 26.

A goal of $4,000 has been set by the class to meet its senior year expenses. The subscription drive is the major fund raising effort and residents are asked to make their renewals and new magazine sign ups with Class of '74 members who will be canvassing the area.

Those Garden Tools... Put 'Em Away Clean

By MR. FIX

The shape in which you leave your garden tools this fall is the shape you will find them in come next spring. The wear and tear you gave them this past summer is nothing compared to the damage that neglect will cause during the winter months.

What happens in the basement, garage or tool shed is that small rust spots turn into big ones, corrosion sets in, rubber decays and wood rots.

Easiest way to prevent problems is to put everything away clean. A wire brush will get rid of dirt that has accumulated on hoes, spades, rakes and other tools.

Use steel wool to clean off rust spots. A little oil will help. Once metal surfaces are clean, wipe with an oily rag to prevent rusting while the tools are in storage.

Cutting edges of spades and hoes should be sharp. Use a file to do the job now and the tools will be ready to use without preliminary work next year.

Pruning and grass shears generally have a coating of sap from the plants that have been cut. Since this is corrosive, clean it off the blades. Kerosene is all the solvent you need. Use steel wool on stubborn spots and on rust spots.

Oil the working parts and coat with oil after sharpening.

Check wooden handles for rough spots, splinters. Sand them smooth and then coat the wood with linseed oil to keep it from drying out. Small cracks can be glued and clamped.

Loose handles should be tightened. A large split or a break calls for replacement of the handle. Never paint a wooden handle since this will hide cracking.

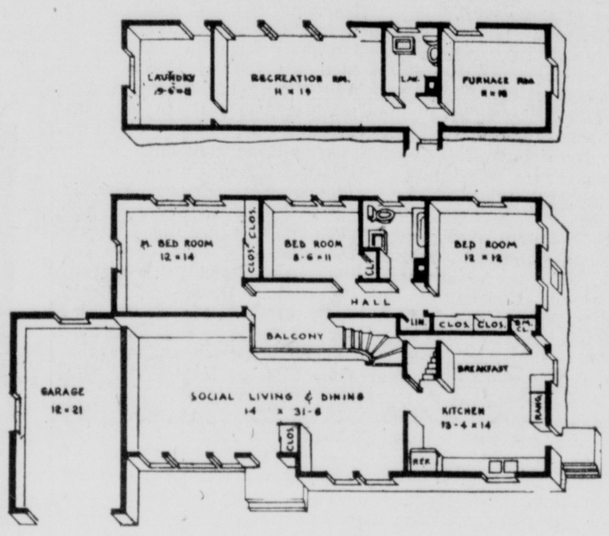
Drain the garden hose and allow it to dry before storing. Coil it on a reel or hang it over a hose bracket or a piece of pipe.

A hose with water in it may burst during freezing weather. Coiling a hose in cold weather is almost impossible since it is so stiff.

Washers in hose fittings, nozzle and sprinklers should be replaced every year. It's a good idea to throw the old ones away and insert new washers.

Tools should not be left standing in a corner or tossed into a loose pile. Put up racks so they can be hung neatly. Odds and ends of gardening supplies — fertilizer, seed, potting soil — should be stored in plastic bags or glass jars or coffee cans and labeled.

Painted surfaces that have become worn or chipped should be sanded and repainted. Use a rust-preventive paint.



Joining Wood... Nails the Best

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Even though adhesives, screws and other fastening agents are widely used, nails continue to maintain their position as the top-selling equipment for the purpose of joining together two pieces of wood.

If there is any trend in the fastening field, it is in the use of threaded nails to increase holding power and reduce the chances of wood splitting.

The nails with which most of us are familiar are known as common nails. They are the kind that have round, flat heads and diamond-shaped points. Ten penny nails (designated as 10d) are 3 inches in length; 8 penny nails are 2½ inches; 6 penny are 2 inches; 3 penny are 1¼ inches; and 2 penny nails are 1 inch in length.

Similar to common nails, but thinner, are box nails. Casing and finishing nails have small heads and can be driven below the surface. Brads are much the same, but smaller. Wire nails, which have regular heads, are very tiny. For nails for use in wallboard, floors, wire lath, roofs, shingles, masonry and many other kinds of materials, there are specialty nails. Since they often are not on display, as the other types are, you have to ask for them.

Here are some tips about nails that may enable you to make better use of them:

1. When nailing two pieces of wood together, the general rule is that two-thirds of the nail should go into the second piece. While this is not always possible, remember that the more of the nail that goes into the second piece, the better the fastening.

2. When nailing into hardwood, splitting can be avoided by drilling a pilot hole slightly smaller than the diameter of the nail.

3. Starting nails is done by holding it with one hand and tapping it with the hammer.

4. When extracting a stubborn nail, place a piece of wood under the head of the hammer close to the nail. Pull the handle of the hammer toward you.

5. If a nail bends while hammering it, it can sometimes be straightened by striking it compensating blows in the opposite direction, but most of the time it is better to withdraw the nail and start a new one.

6. Keeping two or three sizes of nail sets on hand is wise. When a nail is to be driven below the surface, use a nail set for the last two or three blows. If you withhold use of the nail set until the nail is flush with the wood, you may damage the surface.

7. In doing rough work where strength of the joint is of the essence, clinch the nail. This means driving a long nail through both pieces of wood, then hammer the excess down into the second piece.

8. When you clinch a nail with the grain of the wood, it can be hammered down until it goes slightly below the surface.

9. When you clinch a nail across the grain of the wood, the joint has maximum strength.

Laminates All Over

On through the rest of the house —black onyx fireplace wall in the living room; marble in the powder room; gleaming wood table tops and serving counters in the dining room; bright, colorful built-ins in children's rooms —it's all likely to be plastic laminate these days.

No longer limited to utilitarian use in kitchen and bath, the laminates are showing up all over the house in just about any guise, offering decorating freedom with ease of maintenance that the originals too often cannot claim.

And one of the biggest uses for the laminates these days is in remodeling, says J. Allen Montei, director of design for Formica Corp., Cincinnati. The laminates have a beauty that stays beautiful, shrugs off wear, remains clean and fresh with minimum care and maintenance.

The family planning a do-over, no matter what the room, might find it worthwhile to consider possible uses of the laminates —the new moisture-proof wall systems that go right over old tile in bathrooms, for instance, or wall paneling, especially for rooms that get hard use. Scuffed and worn surfaces on tables and cabinets can be replaced. Built-ins of laminate in children's rooms, laundries, mud rooms, stay clean with occasional wiping up —no periodic repainting or refinishing necessary.

In kitchens, of course, the laminates are paractically the rule on work surfaces. New kitchen cabinets may look like wood, or enamel, or just about anything, but increasingly they are of plastic laminate.

Many companies these days are specializing, too, in a remodeling service for kitchen cabinets. Shabby or outdated, but basically sound, cabinets can be reclaimed with new door and drawer fronts of laminate at a cost well below that of replacement, Montei said.

The laminates, Montei explained, consist of layers of heavy kraft paper, which has been impregnated with phenolic resin. A pattern sheet of opaque paper, impregnated with melamine resin, in solid colors or printed in woodgrain or pattern design, is placed on top of the kraft "filler stock". Then, a clear top surface —or overlay sheet —is added to the laminate build up.

Each laminate sheet is pressed with its finished surface against a meticulously prepared steel plate at enormous pressure and high temperature. There are special processes for thinner decorative sheet materials, for dimensional laminates, the metallics and other specialties.

Versatile as they are, Montei cautioned, the laminates are not, generally, a project for do-it-yourselfers.

Economy Front to Back Split Has a Five Bedroom Potential

By JACK McELENEY

PROVIDENCE, R.I. Simple but imaginative designing has produced a modern, ranch type dwelling of unusual planning in today's house feature, called "The Atlast." The designer held almost strictly to straightline conception, yet the result is not in the least what you would call routine outline. The outstanding feature of today's front to rear split is the creation of three distinct living units.

The three bedroom sleeping area is raised four feet above a rear walk-in family room. "The Atlast" has three levels in all: — living level, sleeping level and family room level. Seven steps lead up to an attractive wrought iron railed balcony from the combination living-dining area to an open hall, full bath and three better than average size bedrooms. Stairs to the family room start down at the kitchen level.

The area below the front level is unexcavated and joisted for a two foot crawl space. However, this area could be easily revised for a full basement, should this be a requirement, simply by extending the concrete basement wall to seven feet high and installing steps from the family room down, which would make four levels.

In the event the front cellar is installed, the laundry room and the furnace room could be moved to this area, leaving the walk-out level a potential for two additional bedrooms which would make this unique design a five bedroom dwelling with two baths and a large family room all in an area of 1,354 square feet. The overall dimensions of "The Atlast" are 49 feet by 27-29 feet with an overall, including the garage, of 61 feet 6 inches. Exterior walls use common wood shingles, vertical siding and stock windows throughout.

GRIM HARVEST - Richard Boone and Patty Duke star in "Deadly Harvest," suspense drama of a man whose past, as Freedom Fighter defected from an Iron Curtain country, catches up with him, on "The New CBS Tuesday Night Movies" Tuesday, Sept. 26 (9:30-11:00 p.m., EDT) on the CBS Television Network. Miss Duke portrays a "peacenik" who befriends the man, played by Boone, being pursued by an unknown enemy.

Patty Duke Gets To Sing

Oscar and Emmy-winner Patty Duke, having accomplished about everything as an actress, has often wanted to express herself as a singer.

She has recorded an album, but it has yet to be released.

In "She Waits," a movie she did last season for the CBS Television Network, she was required to hum a music-box tune. But a studio singer was hired to dub her voice because Miss Duke was out of town wen the film was scored.

In "Deadly Harvest," Miss Duke's upcoming television movie, she is cast in the role of a wandering "peacenik" caught in a web of suspense with Richard Boone and Michael Constantine. Her character is that of an amateur songwriter, but there's no place for a song in the mood movie.

Yet, Miss Duke does get to sing -- off-camera -- in the soundtrack of the film, which will be broadcast on "The New CBS Tuesday Night Movies" Tuesday, Sept. 26 (9:30-11:00 PM, EDT) on the CBS Television Network.

"We needed a sort of bookend song at the beginning and at the end of the movie," said Wilson. "We wanted a natural sounding voice, rather than one of a trained studio-type singer. We mentioned it to Patty and she was eager to do the song herself.

"Coincidentally, the song we picked happened to be one she'd recorded in her unreleased album."

Stevens, who composed and conducted the score for k"deadly Harvest" (as well as for "She Waits"), says: "Patty did the song in one take. Her voice has good pitch and the natural quality we were looking for. And she's such a complete professional as an actress that she gave us just the non-professional sound we wanted in a singer."

Your Horoscope - - Today and Monday

Sunday, September 24

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have an opportunity to get important tasks finished so don't waste time with the frivolous. Good friends can be most helpful now, so listen to what they have to say.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A good day for meditation so that you raise the level of your consciousness as high as possible. Devotion to closest ties is mot important now. Make plans for the future.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Ideal day to be with persons you like at recreations of common interest. Join a social gathering that can be most interesting and helpful to you in the future. Be wise.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can get the backing of an influential person by showing your finest abilities. Make important calls that will get you right results while others are relaxing.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A good day to visit new vistas and get a new outlook on life after being in a rut. Study your newspaper well for ideas and information you need. Show that you have wisdom.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make sure you handle responsibilities well. Take your mate along on any trips you may want to make. Come to a far better meeting of minds. Show that you are devoted.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Come to a better agreement with associates and make it truly ideal. If you want to let others in on your plans, this is a fine day to do that. You can gain the support you want.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Show others you are capable of working diligently at your particular work and gain the benefits therefrom. Find right methods for improving your appearance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Doing whatever will please those you like the most is wise now. Put that creative plan you have to work and success will follow. A wider circle of friends is fine.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Harmonious relations at home can be attained if you improve your surroundings. Close ties will be glad to assist you at this time. A bad habit you have should be eliminated.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are thinking clearly and can now handle difficult problems easily. A good time to go back to that sound philosophy you had abandoned. Become a much happier person.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study the practical side of whatever plan you have and become a more successful and happy person. Put your fine intellect to work. Talk to experienced persons and benefit thereby.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A wonderful day for you to renew a glowing spirit. Your judgment is excellent and it is a good time to expand in other directions. Make necessary changes vital to your welfare. Let everyone know that you think constructively.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those fascinating young people who has a fine mind and should definitely go to college. Philosophical thought will come in handy throughout the lifetime. Teach early to complete whatever has once been commenced in order to make this a really successful life. Give musical and ethical training.

Monday, September 25

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Discussions with a clever business person can yield excellent results of a practical nature for you now. Then make the improvements to property that are necessary. Make a better budget for yourself as the new week starts.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take the right treatments that will make you look your best before keeping that appointment of importance. You can benefit a great deal from the social side of life now. Avoid one who is crabby.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Corner that expert and get the right advice to make your future more satisfying and affluent. Try to be of assistance to one in trouble. Teach how to be more self-reliant in the future.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Have a happy exchange of ideas with good friends instead of trying to force your own exclusively on them. Get out to that fine group gathering and make new acquaintances. Seek your own kind for best results.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) If you use your talents to help those from whom you want backing, you get fine results now. Be particularly charming with others. Use that persuasive way you have with the opposite sex.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have excellent ideas for getting ahead and now is the time to collect the facts, figures, data you need for so doing. New associates can be most helpful in this. Put them to work early.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 2) Begin the week properly by getting all those obligations behind you efficiently which others exepect from you. Then improve conditions around you. Mate would appreciate some thoughtful act from you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Sit down with associates and give them the benefit of your fine ideas for greater advancement. Have more harmonious relations. If you are forceful, you find you meet with real opposition. Use tact instead.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get right at all that work you have to do as the new week opens up and clear it off quickly and well. Find new articles for your wardrobe that will enhance it. Show you have good taste.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) This can be a fascinating day and evening at hobbies such as photography, music, culture, or whatever else most appeals to you. Your creativity is at a new high. You can have many financial benefits, too.

Stamps in the News

The "Cosmos" series — a set of three new stamps saluting man's exploits into outer space — has been issued by the Republic of Indonesia. One of the adhesives hails Indonesia's own efforts in space exploration.

The lowest value stamp shows an international weather satellite in space, the ESSA-8, which provides information on the world's weather in a matter of seconds and has enabled areas to be warned of impending storms as they develop.

Another depicts an American astronaut descending from his landing capsule on the moon's surface. The dates "1969-1972" mark the first three years of lunar exploration.

The highest value in the set features Indonesia's own "Kartika I" rocket and the dates "1964-1972" which signify that country's rocketry program.

Also issued by Indonesia, according to the World Wide Philatelic Agency, is a stamp to honor the 10th anniversary of the famed Hotel Indonesia as part of its Tourist series.

Collectors are now in the midst of seeing a deluge of stamps from various countries paying tribute to Olympic Games. Since the end of World War II this outpouring of stamps has been a regular thing every four years. However, many nations producing such stamps are more interested in the revenues from the sale of the stamps rather than the athletic events themselves.

To help warn the public, The American Philatelic Society's "Watchdog Committee" is setting guidelines to determine what nations were honoring the games because of their actual participation. The determining factor by the committee is the participation by the country, or at least having a recognized national Olympic Committee.

This may not deter topical collectors from getting any and all Olympic stamps but it is a creditable attemp' to give stature to the hobby of philately.

If you think a local Bermuda fisherman designed the stamps, you are wrong. The designer was Maynard Reece of Des Moines, Iowa.

Israel's four latest stamps highlight four of the 42 torah arks brought to that country from Italy. The designs depict an ark from a long-closed synagogue in Ancona, from a synagogue of the Soranga community near Parma, a 17th century ark from the Sephardic Synagogue of Padua (1729) and the 1756 Ark from Reggio Emilia.

A report from the Israel Philatelic Agency in America indicates that a beautiful set of six stamps will be issued early next year showing Chagall windows.

DID YOU KNOW THAT . . . Dutch New Guinea, which is now part of Indonesia, has not issued any stamps since 1962 . . . East Germany, not to be outdone in world diplomacy, issued a set of stamps honoring its friendship for the Peoples Republic of China — at the very moment that President Nixon was meeting with Mao-Tse-tung . . . the U.S. Postal Rate Commission has approved the largest postal rate increase in history — a total of $1,900,000,000 (1 billion 900 million) a year.

Canada's latest two stamps feature artifacts and the way of life of that country's Plain Indians. These are the first in a series of 20 stamps which will be issued over the next three years.

Hand 25 of the Olympiad fund game illustrates a paradox of bidding. South can stretch his values a trifle and open with a forcing two-bid. After that start, South will want to pull in his horns and the partnership will stop at a safe four hearts.

If South elects to open with just one heart, North will raise him to two. South will revalue his hand and will be quite likely to get to five or even six hearts.

Six hearts is a hopeless contract, five hearts a very poor one. But some players will make it.

If West opens a spade, East may play his ace on dummy's 10, which will automatically give South his 11th trick. If East makes the correct play of the jack, South should plan to execute a strip play by ruffing out dummy's diamonds and his own last spade.

If either defender plays a club before this is accomplished, South will have a fairly easy play for the 11th trick; if the defenders leave clubs alone, South will have to play that suit himself.

The line of play to hold his loss in that suit to one trick is to lead low toward dummy and play the eight. East will win and be caught in an end play.

This is the winning play this time, but many Souths will play ace and one club in the hope that one opponent will have started with king or queen-small and will be thrown in without a third club to lead.

ACTOR-COMPOSER Anthony Newley (left) sings "Candyman" and joins in comedy sketches with host Bill Cosby when he guest stars on the comedy-variety series, "The New Bill Cosby Show," Monday, Sept. 25 (10:00-11:00 p.m., EDT) on the CBS Television Network.

Friend's Wife Pleases Archie

The wife of Duke Loomis, the Air Force buddy who saved Archie's life, is coming to spend the night with the Bunkers, and everyone is thrilled. But when she arrives, they are surprised at what they see, on "All in the Family" Saturday, Sept. 30 (8:00-8:30 PM, EDT) on the CBS Television Network.

It seems Duke has remarried, and Archie is very pleased with the new Mrs. Loomis, but Edith is worried.

Russan Film To Make American Television Premiere

"Tymancha's Friend," an award-winning Russian motion picture filmed in color in the desolate Evenki area of the U.S.S.R. with a cast oflocal inhabitants, will premiere on American television on "The CBS Children's Film Festival" Saturday, Sept.30 (1:00-2:00 p.m., EDT) on the CBS Television Network.

This extraordinary 1970 film received widespread critical acclaim in Russia. Entered in the Monte Carlo Film Festival, it won awards for the Best Children's Film and Best Direction.

"Tymancha's Friend" is the tender story of a boy who tames a wolf cub and must then release the grown animal in the forest. The film comes to a touching climax when, after the two meet again, the animal sacrifices his life for his human friend.

Sascha Barbasenko, who plays the title role of the boy, is the son of a nomadic deer herdsman. The rest of the cast are also non-professional actors.

Serious Side Of Comedy

"Laughter, Hurt of Heal," a conversation in Archie Bunker's living room with Normal Lear, executive producer of "All in the Family," on the use of satire and comedy in dealing with bigotry, will be presented on "Look Up and Live" Sunday, Sept. 24 (10:30-11:00 a.m., EDT) on the CBS Television Network.

(Editor's note: Please check local station log for air time.)

Rehab Center . . . A Big Step

KINGSTON — The Children's Rehabilitation Center, now located on Webster Street, has come a long way since 1950 when Dr. Henry L. Bibby founded the United Cerebral Palsy of Ulster County.

The clinic was housed in the Ulster County Tumor Clinic for the next 19 years, starting off with 25 children. During 1971, this figure jumped to more than 700 children being served at the rehab facility.

The Center, which in 1956 expanded its patient care to all handicapped children, serves in addition to Ulster County, children in Greene County as well as parts of Dutchess County.

Extensive services to the children are provided at the Webster Street facility including physical, speech and hearing therapy; brace and appliance service; nursery, medical evaluations and consultation. The consultants include orthopedic, speech pathologist, audiologist, brace maker and clinical psychologist.

In lower photo, therapist works with little girl with leg braces through the appliance service. At the Center, an orthopedic consultant recommends the proper type of treatment or appliance for the child. A full time physical therapist began at the Center this month.

The Center is a member of United Way.

New Principal at Coleman High

KINGSTON — Sister Catherine Gormley, S.U., although newly appointed to the office of principal at John A. Coleman High School, is not a newcomer to Kingston, nor to the school.

Born in Phoenicia, Sister Catherine is a graduate of the Academy of St. Ursula in Kingston, where she later taught Mathematics, French and Religion. She was chairman of the Mathematics Department at John A. Coleman High School, where she taught from its opening until 1970, and so knows the school and many of its students. She was principal at Notre Dame School in New York City from 1970 to 1972.

Sister Catherine is a graduate of Marquette University in Milwaukee, and holds a Master of Arts Degree from Manhattan College. Her other professional qualifications include Graduate Studies in Education, Mathematics and Theology at Notre Dame University, Fordham University, C.U.N.Y. at Hunter College and S.U.N.Y. at New Paltz.

Happy to be back in Kingston, Sister looks forward to continuing the fine and growing tradition of John A. Coleman High School by working with its faculty and students in helping to create an atmosphere where the school community can work together, and with the parents of the students. Together, they will use every means to help the students develop intellectually, socially and spiritually so that they may make their contribution to the local communities in which they live, and ultimately, to society, a school spokesman said.

New Housekeeper Frustrated On Maude

Maude Findlay hires Florida, a black housekeeper, played by Esther Rolle, and, to prove her liberalism, insists that they become close personal friends when all Florida wants is to be left alone to do her work, on "Maude" Tuesday, Sept. 26 (8:00-8:30 PM, EDT) on the CBS Television Network.

Maude helps Florida shop for groceries, mixes her martinis for lunch, and insists Florida use only the front door, even though the back door is more convenient. When the frustrated lady threatens to quit, Walter and Carol step in to try to save the situation from becoming a disaster.

ALL IN THE POINT OF VIEW - Maude (series star Beatric Arthur) and the Findlays' new maid, Florida, played by Esther Rolle, disagree about Florida's duties, in this scene from the third episode of "Maude," the new Norman Lear-created comedy series, to be seen Tuesday, Sept. 26 (8:00-8:30 p.m., EDT) on the CBS Television Network.

Tropical Drama

Jim Brown and Academy Award-winners George Kennedy and Fredic March star in ". . .tick. . .tick. . .tick. . .", powerful topical drama concerning the explosive results of a political change in a southern community, in color on "The CBS Friday Night Movies" Friday, Sept. 29 (9:00-11:00 p.m., EDT) on the CBS Television Network. Lynn Carlin and Don Stroud co-star.

After a deep southern county goes to the polls for the first time since the black community has been enfranchised, without getting a single white vote, a black man, Jimmy Price (Brown) is elected sheriff. But, facing the antagonism of whites who refuse to accept a black sheriff, and blacks who seek to foment racial hatred, Price finds himself on the rim of an explosive volcano.

Kennedy plays the deposed white sheriff trapped between honor and duty and the reality of conditions. March portrays the town's iron-willed mayor, who becomes the caustic catalyst for a formidable alliance.

Lola Albright In Medical Center

Guest star Lola Albright plays Madeline Harris, a jet-set mother whose ailing, delinquent son learns new values from the critically ill boy who is his roommate, on "Medical Center" Wednesday, Sept. 27 (9:00-10:00 PM, EDT) on the CBS Television Network.

Sophisticated teen-ager Jack Harris (Sean Kelly) impresses his roommate Davey Campbell (Stephen Hudis) with his devil-may-care attitude, but Dr. Gannon knows that Jack is upset because his mother is so anxious to return to her fiance in Europe that she shows little concern for her son's condition.

LADY LUCK - Elaine Stewart, the pretty dealer on "Gambit," shows us just how good a winning hand can look. "Gambit," a new daytime series, is broadcast Mondays through Fridays (10:00-10:30 a.m., PT) on the CBS Television Network.

Too Many Thives

Peter Falk and Britt Ekland star in "Too Many Thieves," a mystery film in color about the theft of a priceless national treasure from its shrine in Macedonia, on "The CBS Late Movie" Friday, sept. 29 (starting at 11:30 .m., EDT) on the CBS Television Network.

Three weeks after the treasure is stolen by four daring thieves (Miss Ekland, Pierre Olaf, George Coulouris and David Carradine), attorney Daniel O'Brien (Falk) i s retained in New York by a Macedonian official to help ransom the treasure.

O'Brien is quickly contacted by three of the thieves - each with his own plans and motives - and it becomes clear that the four have turned on each other. Tempted by the beautiful Claudia (Miss Ekland), O'Brien finds himself in the middle of a cat-and-mouse game for very high stakes.

McCenna's Gold

Gregory Peck and Omar Sharif head a glittering cast of stars in "Mackenna's Gold," stirring Western drama that co-starts Telly Savalas, Julie Newmar, Camilla Sparv, Keenan Wynn and Ted Cassidy, in the tough, turbulent story of man's lust for gold, on "The CBS Thursday Night Movies" Thursday, Sept. 28 (9:00-11:20 p.m., EDT) in color on the CBS Television Network. This is the first television presentation of this film.

Others appearing include Lee J. Cobb, Raymond Massey, Burgess Meredity, Anthony Quayle, Edward G. Robinson and E. Wallach.

As the Apache Indians rampage, 17 men and four women, all but one sharing a greed for gold, seek a legendary lost canyone in the Southwest during the 1870s. Among them, only Mackenna (Peck), the Hadleyburg town marshal, knows the way. Thus, Colorado (Sharif), an outlaw chief, realizes Mackenna must be kept alive at any cost. Also lusting for treasure are Sergeant Tibbs (Savalas), a cavalryman turned renegade; the Indian beauty Hesh-ke (Miss Newmar); Sanchez (Wynn) and Hachita (Cassidy), two cold-blooded killers; an editor (Cobb); a preacher (Massey); a storekeeper (Meredith); and Old Adams (Robinson), a prospector who, after seeing the Valley of Gold, was blinded by vengeful Apaches.

CONTROVERSIAL DOCTOR - Richard Basehart guest-stars as a doctor suspected of performing unnecessary surgery, and Dorothy Malone plays his wife, in "Is This Operation Necessary?", to be colorcast on NBC Television Network's "The Bold Ones" Tuesday, Sept. 26 (9-10 p.m., NYT).

Western Comedy

Buddy Ebsen, Keir Dullea and Lois Nettleton star in "Mail Order Bride," Western Comedy abut the attemps to harness the unbridled spirits of a handsome uoung man by getting him married, on "The CBS Late Movie" Monday, Sept. 25 (starting at 11:30 p.m., EDT) on the CBS Television Network.

Warran Oates, Barbara Luna, Paul Fix and Maire Windsor play featured roles in this color film, which was originally broadcast on this series on May 4, 1972.

In the story, ex-lawman Will Lane (Ebsen) comes to the town of Congress in 1890 to tame Lee Carey (Dullea), the wild son of his dead friend. They clash, but Lane has the deed to the half-built Carey ranch, which is not to be surrendered until Lee shows signs of maturity.

As the first step, Lee unwillingly marries Annie Boley (Miss Nettleton), who agrees to let it be a union in name only. But Lane sees through the deception and sets off a succession of events that brings unexpected results.

Richard Boone is going back to school -- as a teacher. The veteran television actor, who stars in "Deadly Harvest" on "The New CBS Tuesday Night Movies," arranged his acting schedule this season so that he can teach a six-week course in acting at Flagler College, St. Augustine, Fla. The course also allows him plenty of time for one of his favorite hobbies -- fishing in the Atlantic Ocean, off the coast of St. Augustine, where he now makes his home between acting assignments. "You can't really teach acting," says Boone, "but you can help someone with talent discover it."

TENSE SITUATION - Academy Award-winner George Kennedy (left) and Jim Brown star in "...tick...tick...tick...", explosive drama about the results of a political change in a southern community, to be presented in color on "The CBS Friday Night Movies" friday, Sept. 29 (9:00-11:00 .m., EDT) on the CBS Television Network.

Burt Lancaster in Venegance Valley

Burt Lancaster, Joanne Dru and Robert Walker star in "Vengeance Valley," a taut drama in which a woman pits brother against brother, on "The CBS Late Movie" Wednesday, Sept. 27 (starting at 11:30 PM, EDT) on the CBS Television Network.

Sally Forrest, John Ireland, Hugh O'Brien and Carleton Carpenter have important supporting roles in the color film, which was previously presented on this series on May 22, 1972.

Owen Daybright (Lancaster) gets his foster brother Lee Strobie (Walker) out of one scrape after another. So, when Lee gets involved with Lily (Miss Forrest), a local waitress, Owen tries to prevent Lee's wife Jen (Miss Dru) from finding out about it. But Lee, jealous of the friendship between his wife and Owen, deliberately puts his foster brother's life in jeopardy to satisfy his own petty suspicions.

In the Fall a Young Girl's Thoughts Turn to Cave Crawling — and What Better Place than these Still-Standing Cement Kilns of Another Century at Binnewater near Rosendale?

THE DAY LINER "Robert Fulton" had her troubles with the great hurricane of 1938. In this photo, she's bound for Albany on a late season trip and is off Four Mile Point north of Athens. She was the last Hudson River steamboat to use the once common walking beam type of engine — and on Sept. 13, 1948, was the last Day Liner to make a regular landing at Kingston Point.

BY CAPT. WM. O. BENSON.

Today, probably due to better detection, tracking and reporting of their movement, hurricanes seem to be more prevalent. Years ago it seemed hurricanes were something that only occurred in the tropical regions and rarely caused damage in the northeast. One exception was the great hurricane of September 1938.

The eye of that hurricane passed directly over Rhode Island and caused millions of dollars of damage in New England. The edges of the great storm brushed the Hudson Valley on September 21, caused extensive flooding at Albany, disrupted the schedule of the Hudson River Day Line, and almost ended the career of the Day Liner "Robert Fulton."

On that day — Wednesday, Sept. 21, 1938 — the "Robert Fulton" was the regular down steamer for New York and the "Alexander Hamilton" the up boat for Albany. During the day there were periods of driving rain and gusty, high winds.

Hawsers Parted

At mid-afternoon the winds were at just about their peak of intensity as the "Robert Fulton" approached Bear Mountain. In attempting to make the landing, two mooring hawsers parted. Because of the broken lines, the "Fulton" in a matter of seconds was at an untenable angle to the pier and pulled out into the river in an effort to make a second approach. As she got crossways in the river, the wind reached its peak and caught her broadside, heeling her over on her starboard side and blowing her sideways down the river towards Iona Island.

At that part of the river, the Hudson is very narrow and the "Fulton" was unable to get headed either upstream or down. The steamboat "Clermont" was tied up at the middle pier at Bear Mountain and her crew, seeing the "Fulton's" predicament, thought sure they were watching the end of the "Robert Fulton."

There was little the "Fulton" could do except to go ahead when her stern got too close to the west shore and astern when her bow got too close to the east shore. She was blown sideways in this fashion for nearly three miles until she reached the broader expanses of the river off Peekskill. There, the pilots were finally able to get the "Fulton" headed into the wind. She then went back to Bear Mountain where a successful landing was made, the lines doubled up and the steamer secured for the night. The passengers — about 180 of them — continued on to New York by train on the West Shore railroad.

DR. RAMMURTI MISHRA, guru, and his disciple, Lahiila Lai, dedicate Kingston's new Yoga for Life Institute as a center for helping humanity, irrespective of age, class, creed, race, color or religion in the true tradition of Yoga. Dr. Mishra came to Kingston earlier this month to dedicate the Institute; has since gone on to other duties in California.

PERFORMING AN INAUGURATION DANCE to bless the local Yoga for Life Institute, Lahiila Lai wears costume of her native Calcutta, India, in new studio here bedecked with peacock feathers and portraits of gurus and their gurus.

Chanting and Meditation To Reach Ultimate 'Goal' At Yoga for Life Institute

KINGSTON

Earlier this month, one of the most exotic subcultures of Kingston life came into being. For those who have already learned the Cobra Pose and the Sun Exercise; who have inhaled draughts of air that smells of incense; banished all traces of the lower Ego from their minds; and sat cross-legged on the floor while chanting mantras, the scene was familiar.

But for those who know nothing of the Fire Ceremony, incorporating the use of butter (the "cream" of the milk) and so used to symbolize the essence of the soul, the dedication of Kingston's new Yoga For Life Institute was an event of exotic trappings.

Under the direction of Lahiila Lai, the Institute will function in the Burgevin Building, 243 Fair Street. Guest of honor at the recent dedication was her guru, Dr. Rammurti Mishra, who presided over the ancient Vedic ceremony with its repetition of mantras and its use of camphor (the only substance to burn completely without leaving residual ash) as symbolic of the total destruction of the lower Ego in the fire of Supreme Consciousness.

Now officirally dedicated in the service of the highest values, courses in all aspects of Yoga will be taught in depth by Lahiila Lai beginning Oct. 9. Those interested should call 338-7808. Once enrolled, they'll find the colorful, new studio and India-oriented spiritual center a chairless room bedecked with peacock feathers and portraits of gurus, where mesmerizing chants and the sound of cymbals and bells blend with hand clapping — a cheery and busy place in which to exercise, chant or meditate and, through these ancient disciplines of mind and body, hopefully reach the ultimate goals of peace and bliss.

COLORFUL and newly-decorated studio in Burgevin Building on Fair Street here is home of Kingston's most exotic subculture. Dance performed by Lahiila Lai and the ancient Vedic ceremony with its repetition of mantras is an integral part of inaugural occasions, says the Yoga teacher, at marriages, theatrical openings and institute dedications.

IN ANCIENT VEDIC CEREMONY, fire (in pot in front of Dr. Mishra) is a symbol of purification, with power to burn up all impurities, as well as a symbol of the Highest Consciousness. The guru, his disciple Lahiila Lai, and others participated in the Fire Ceremony during dedication of Institute here.

SITTING CROSS-LEGGED on the floor, disciples of yoga participate in Fire Ceremony, offering the senses and mind as oblation so they may become "pure instruments of Divine use." Fall courses in all aspects of yoga will be taught in depth by Lahiila Lai at the Kingston Institute, beginning Oct. 9; are open to all interested. (Freeman photos by John Kruh)

It's Raitt in 'Kate,' And 5 More Big Shows

JOHN RAITT, long popular Broadway musical star, will be featured in Cole Porter's rambunctious classic, "Kiss Me Kate," on the night of Oct. 1 at Middletown High School.

MIDDLETOWN — Greater Middletown Arts Council will feature six major productions on its 12th Great Performance Series. Boasting something to please everybody, the 1972-73 season opens with two Broadway musicals during the month of October at Middletown High School.

For those who crave nostalgia, Broadway musical star John Raitt will be featured in Cole Porter's musical classic "Kiss Me Kate" with its score second to none, in the favorite based on Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew." It plays for just one night on Sunday, Oct. 1 at 8 p.m.

"Godspell" the NOW, "best off-Broadway musical currently playing to sold out houses across the world, will be presented on Sunday night, Oct. 15. The exciting score is based on the Gospel according to St. Matthew and has been cited by critics as a "joyful burst of jubilation that rattles the soul like a tambourine." "Godspell" which is rock, jazz, ballad, and blues, is currently playing in New York, London, Paris, Toronto, Boston and at the Ford Theater in Washington D.C. It promises to outplay "Jesus Christ Superstar" judging by its skyrocketing box office everywhere.

Two Performances

The Arts Council, expecting a large surge of adults and students, has booked two performances of "Godspell." An all-reserved 8 p.m. evening showing, and a non-reserved afternoon 2:30 performance.

Subscribers have a choice of one of the October musicals on their series of five productions.

The well-known and acclaimed Juilliard Acting Company under John Hosueman's direction, had a winner at Saratoga Performing Arts Center, where it was the resident theater company at the 1972 summer festival.

The Arts Council has booked its "School For Scandal" Sherrdan's hilarious, and brilliant comedy, for Saturday night, Nov. 18. Its New York performances of the "School - For Scandal" were all highly praised by critics. It also plays at Middletown High School that Saturday night.

Taylor Featured

The Paul Taylor Dance Company, one of America's finest modern troupes, will perform Saturday night, Feb. 17, with Paul Taylor featured in a varied and exicting program. At the end of a recent European tour, the Company came in to Edinburgh for a week. "All tickets were gone long befoere opening."

Two Sol Hurok attractions promise to be season highlights. Virtuoso violinist Isaac Stern, one of the world's top-ranking artists, performs Saturday night, March 10. He will be a certain sellout.

More music will follow with the Houston Symphony under distinguished conductor Lawrence Foster. A special feature of the evening will be 23-year-old Cuban-born painist Horacio Gutierrez, performing with the orchestra Saturday night, March 18. Gutierrez won the Fourth International Tchaikovsky Music Competition (which skyrocked Van Cliburn to fame). The same program will be presented the following evening at Carnegie Hall. Gutierrez will play the lovely Brahms' First Piano Concerto. The rest of the program includes "Six Pieces For Orchestra" by Webern and Shostakovich's "Symphony No. 1."

Season tickets are being filled at this time. The $24 subscription is a $6.50 savings over single ticket prices. Single tickets are $6, $4.50, and $3 for students for "Kiss Me Kate" and "Godspell." The non-reserved "Godspell" matinee is $3.50. "School For Sandal" and Paul Taylor Dancers are $5.50, $4, and $2 for students. Tickets for Isaac Stern are $7.50, $5.50, and $3.50 for students. And the Houston Symphony is $6, $4.50, and $3 for students.

How to Order

Checks should be sent to Greater Middletown Arts Council, 40 Mulberry Street, along with a self-addressed stamped envelope. Phone information may be obtained by calling 342-2133. A colorful brochure describing the entire season as well as the Arts Council's film series for adults and children may be obtained upon request.

A grant from the New York State Council on the Arts assistants the Council's costly program. Patrons at $50 each receive prime seats and are invited to receptions and other benefits. If you would like to become a patron, contact the Greater Middletown Arts Council.

Aquario Gallery Featuring Koff

WOODSTOCK — Paintings by artist Ethel Haytin Koff, of Lake Hill, take over the walls of Aquario Galleries, 6 Tannery Brook Road, Woodstock, today for one-man show to run through Oct. 7.

The gallery invites the public to attend this afternoon's opening (Sunday, Sept. 24) from 2-6 p.m., or to stop by during the two week run of the Koff show.

The autumn offering at Aquario will feature recent canvases by the artist which resulted from her studies at Mexico's San Miquel de Allende Instituto, as well as other paintings.

An Award Winner

Painter Koff has previously exhibited her sculpture work at Ann Leonard Gallery in Woodstock; has studied at New York City's Fashion Institute, Cooper Union Art School, Art Students League, and Brooklyn Museum. A native New Yorker, she has been the recipient of two Guggenheim Awards; has had one-man shows abroad and in various Manhattan galleries; has traveled extensively through Europe studying old and modern masters; is an established photographer as well as painter and sculptress.

A member of the Woodstock Artists Association, she now teaches private art classes in Woodstock and New York City, having previously taught and exhibited in the west, midwest and east. Interested in casting in bronze, she is currently concentrating on wax and wood sculpture. Her show at Aquario promises much of interest in view of her wide experience and lengthy career in art.

Bing's Boy

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Lindsay Crosby, Bing Crosby's youngest son by his first wife (Dixie), has been added to the cast of "Santee" starring Glenn Ford and Dana Wynter.

RECLINING CHAIR, designed by Stephen Robin, was exhibited at Brooklyn Museum Art School. Robin, who lives in Woodstock, is a parttime instructor for Ulster County Community College; teaches a UCCC credit-free course in his art colony in Furniture Design and Woodworking. He also teaches a similar course at Columbia-Greene Community College.

Furniture Designing Rates High Locally

Students sign up with alacrity and work with a will in his credit-free course in Furniture Design and Woodworking for Ulster County Community College. When Robin was invited to California this month to lecture at the California Craftsman's Guild, the start of three sections of his UCCC course had to be postponed; will now start this week, beginning Sept. 25. All three courses will get underway at his Woodstock studio for eight weeks, one meeting Tuesday nights, another Thursday nights, and a third from 11:30 a.m.-2 p.m. for mid-day sessions.

So impressive is Robin's work that the Brooklyn Museum Art School has just launched its fall semester with a show devoted to his recent pieces, putting on view in its gallery a vanity with mirror and stool, a church, reclining chair and lounge chair — all of solid hard woods, laminated and shaped to give them their distinctive free-flowing forms. Reminiscent of art noveau in their sweeping lines, Robin says the shape and design of his pieces have been influenced by modern sculptor Henry Moore.

Robin also teaches a "Furniture Design & Woodworking" credit-free continuing education course at Columbia-Greene Community College. The classes by the youthful furniture designer, who has already established a national reputation through gallery exhibits and via articles in major publications, begins Wednesday, Sept. 27 for eight weeks at Catskill High School.

Those interested in the UCCC course should call 687-7621, Ext. 48. For the Columbia-Greene classes, call (518) 945-1850.

Preview of Marbletown Art Fair in October

PAINTINGS CREATED by students in the free Art Class series held in Marbletown Park during the summer attracted visitors to the park pavilion earlier this month. Those who attend the admission free Marbletown Artists' Association Art Fair in High Falls from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m. on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 7 and 8 will also see the works, done under the instruction of MAA members. (Bertha Goodman photo)

LEATHERCRAFTER PHIL CANTANIA works on a pair of handmade sandals, one of the crafts he exhibited in this year's Ulster County Fair Art Show. Cantania is also a talented young artist and member of the Marbletown Artists' Association; will be exhibiting again in MAA's Art Fair in the old Schoolhouse at High Falls the first weekend in October.

Movie Classics Set In Library Series

KINGSTON

Here's a program of MOVIE CLASSICS that deserves your rabid support.

Starting Oct. 3, the Kingston Area Library will offer a Tuesday night film series at 7:30 p.m. in the Children's Library, Broadway. Admission is free.

The film classics selected for the series are known for their lasting appeal to audiences all over the world and have been acclaimed by movie lovers and film critics alike. Films to be shown are: Oct. 3, "The Idiot"; Oct. 10, "The Pearl;" Oct. 17, "Hiroshima Mon Amour"; Oct. 24, "A Nous La Liberte." Those who wish to hear more abut these films may also stay for discussions afterwards to be moderated by Sam Berger and Neil Poley.

"The Idiot" is a 1958 adaptation of Part I of Dostoyevsky's great novel. Dialogue is in Russian, with English subtitles. Set in the corrupt aristocratic society of St. Petersburg during the mid-1800's, the tale involves the efforts of a nobleman to rid himself of a fascinating but burdensome mistress by offering a large dowry to the man who will marry her. Contrasts between the competing suitors highlight the conflict between good and evil in a decadent society.

Engrossing Steinbeck

Based on John Steinbeck's widely known novel, with a screenplay by the author himself, "The Pearl" was made in 1947 by director Emilio Fernandez. Dialogue is in English. The story centers on the finding of an immensely valuable pearl by a simple peasant, Kino. The effect the pearl has on Kino, his family and neighbors, the greed and violence its finding cause, make this a very engrossing film.

"Hiroshima Mon Amour" was part of a new wave of exciting films by innovative younger French directors of the late 1950s. In French, with English sub-titles, the film tells of the love affair between a French actress and a Japanese architect. Through extensive use of flashback this affair is related to another the actress has had with a German soldier during World War II. The fluid counterbalancing of ideas and images illuminates Alain Resmais' views on war and peace, madness and sanity, love and death.

"A - Nous La Liberte" was described by noted American film critic James Agee as ". . . among the most inspired screen comedies ever made." Directed by Rene Clair in 1931, it appealingly treats men caught up in a world of machines and industrialism to which they cannot quite conform. Funny, with serious undertones, this classic is in French with English subtitles.

So, check off the dates on your calendar and take this opportunity to see — or see again — some of the best movies of the past few decades.

Art for Art Event Marathon Benefit

WOODSTOCK

ART FOR ART is the name of a two-day marathon benefit exhibit and sale to aid the Woodstock Artists Association building expansion fund.

Because WAA wants to add a permanent collection museum of the works of past and present local artists to its present site, dozens of WAA members are contributing paintings, drawings, sculpture and prints to the ART FOR ART event.

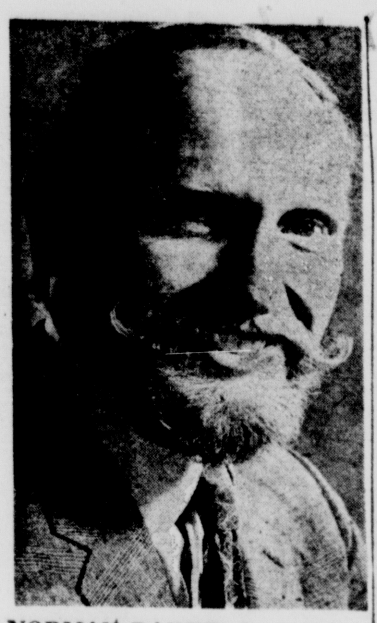
It'll be held at the Association's Gallery, 28 Tinker Street in the art colony on Saturday, Sept. 30 and Sunday, Oct. 1 from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. both days.

Both Gain One Half

Artists are contributing to the worthy cause by exhibiting work and by forfeiting half of the selling price of works sold. Buyers will become companion-contributors to WAA's building fund, with the added incentive that half of the purchase price becomes tax-deductable.

The event is a rare opportunity for collectors and connoisseurs to select from an unusual assemblage of works by fine artists, some with nationally and internationally known names. Astute bettors have a chance to try to detect who among the lesser known names show promise of future prominence. Collectors and housewives alike can afford the price range — and even browsers are invited along for the fun.

For any information regarding WAA activities and the ART FOR ART fund raiser in particular, contact coordinator Jean Gaede at the Gallery.



NORMAN BAKER, famed explorer-navigator and radioman of the voyages of Thor Heyerdahl's celebrated RA, will present an intriguing program Thursday, Sept. 28 at 1 p.m. at Poughkeepsie's Dutchess Community College. He'll review the RA project, highlighting the ecological findings made during the journey, under the topic title of "Thor Heyerdahl and the Voyages of RA." Baker will also narrate the official film of RA's voyages, a trek that has been the subject of many magazine articles.

Colonial Craft Day 'Spins' on

VAILS GATE

The Corps of Guides of New Windsor Cantonment on Temple Hill Road near Vails Gate is again presenting demonstrations and exhibits of 18th Century domestic and military crafts today, Sept. 24 from 1 to 4 p.m.

The Cantonment is the site of the last great winter (1782-1783) encampment of General Washington's northern troops of the Continental Army during the last years of the American Revolution.

The program this afternoon will include such crafts as spinning, dyeing, quilting, needlecrafts, cooking, painting in the manner of the itinerant Colonial artist, rug hooking, and wood carving.

Military crafts such as the making of bullets and the construction of uniforms and accoutrement will also be demonstrated.

No Rain Date

Participants will be members of the Brigade of the American Revolution, the 1st and 3rd New York Regiments, and the Corps of Guides and other local craftsmen. These exhibitions will take place in and around the buildings of the encampment regardless of the weather.

New Windsor Cantonment is operated by Palisades Interstate Park Commission for the New York State Historic Trust and is open daily from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. except Monday and Tuesday. Picnic areas, Snack Bar and Gift Shop are available at the site. There is no charge for parking or admission.

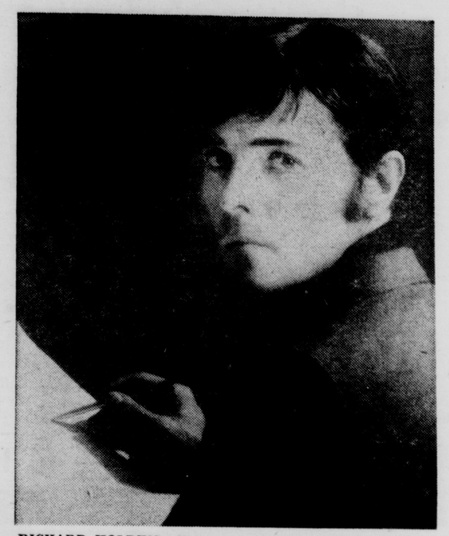
ANN LYNN MILLER, one of the most talented of all young American pianists, will demonstrate her excellent technical ability in the first concert of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic's Fall Series. To look at her at her instrument is a pleasure, and music lovers will be able to do so Monday, Oct. 2 at Kingston Community Theatre.

CLAUDE MONTEUX, conductor of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic, will be the man behind the directorial baton for most of the concerts in both the Fall and Spring Series. For the special Vivaldi, Ramsier and Bach program slated in Kingston on Nov. 13, however, he'll be guest flutist—while assistant conductor Edward Simons directs.

HIROKO YAJIMA, a petite Japanese musician, has been said "to play the varnish off her violin." In appearance, she's miniature and feminine, but she has the tone and musical personality of a robust virtuoso, as the Philharmonic audience here will find when she appears April 30 in an all Brahms concert promising singing sound.

LUIS GARCIA-RENART, talented cello recitalist and soloist, long a favorite with area Philharmonic audiences, returns to the local stage in the Spring Series. He will lend his acclaimed and prize-winning talents to the April 30 concert at Kingston Community Theatre for Brahms' "Concerto in A minor for Violin and Cello, Op. 102."



RICHARD HOLDEN will appear as "Dr. Coppelius" when the Eglevsky Ballet Company brings its production of "Coppelia" to Kingston for a Hudson Valley Philharmonic concert on Monday, Oct. 23. Holden is also a member of the Harkness Ballet Company; was with the Metropolitan Opera Ballet, Polish Ballet, and International Ballet of St. Petersburgh.

Hudson Valley Philharmonic Fans Book Their Seats Weeks... Even Months in Advance... for Thrills

LONG HAIR FLOWING, Marina Eglevsky, featured dancer of the Eglevsky Ballet Company, is living testimony to the accolades showered on this troupe. Clive Barnes of the New York Times applauded them for a "dazzling display of dance," and the Philadelphia Enquirer urged its readers to "see them if you can." Ulsterites can in a Philharmonic program Oct. 23.

KINGSTON

Listening to the finest in music may be compared to watching a precision watch unwind.

Every note is distinct, clear and crisp, regardless of the tempo. Many of today's greatest musicians programmed themselves long before the era of the computer — and their readouts are flawless.

That explains why fans of good music book their seats weeks and months in advance for the Hudson Valley Philharmonic's annual series in Kingston. Philharmonic concerts play to enthusiastic audiences, lured by the promise of magnificent voices, balanced productions, operatic costuming, and realistic stage direction.

The 1972-73 Subscription of the Philharmonic promises all the traditional emphasis of the past with some additional and provocative innovations. Two big series — Fall and Spring — offering eight concerts in all, will make up the yearly offering. Based on countless, popular requests, the upcoming season will highlight convincing acting and visual emphasis along with the vocal and orchestral side of music. And it's an exciting program including ballet, opera, oratorio and concerti.

Quality performances can be expected from all visiting artists, and so accomplished is the area orchestra itself that many of its members can now hold their own as featured solists.

But no group of players, no matter how accomplished, can do very much without a major conductor to spark the music. The Philharmonic has that in music director Claude Monteux. He is the coordinative force who put together this year's program, and he will be the inspirational baton for most of the concerts.

Beginning its 14th season early next month, the Philharmonic's opening concert at Kingston's Community Theatre on Broadway — where all programs will be performed — features guest pianist Ann Lynn Miller. An exceptional, talented, sympathetic and attractive artist, she will be heard Oct. 2 at 8:30 p. m. in Beethoven's Piano Concerto and Stravinsky's "Le Sacre du Printemps." She returns here after a two year absence; will be remembered for her outstanding benefit performance then.

Eglevsky Ballet Company, too, is coming back — this time to do the delightful folk ballet, Coppelia." As the second concert, it will be performed on the night of Oct. 23; promises to dazzle and charm all ages.

November 13 will bring a not-to-be-missed program of Vivaldi, Ramsier and Bach. Matthew Raimondi, violinist in residence at Vassar College, will be featured along with director Claude Monteux, who will relinquish his baton to assistant conductor Edward Simons to perform on flute. Also featured Nov. 13: Kenneth Fricker, general manager of the Philharmonic, on contrabass, and orchestral soloist Sylvia Suzowsky on harpsichord.

SYLVIA SUZOWSKY, pianist and harpsichordist, has appeared as soloist with such orchestras as the New York Philharmonic Pops, National Orchestral Association and Norwalk Symphony; has been a recitalist in this country and abroad. She'll be the featured harpsichordist here for the Nov. 13 concert of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic.

The climax of the Philharmonic's Fall Series will come on the night of Dec. 4 when The Community Mixed Chorus, under the direction of Albert G. Hunter Jr., brings the trills of oratorio to its performance of Honegger's "Le Roi David," backed by the artistry of the Philharmonic. More than 60 voices strong this is an outstanding group with talented soloists and narrators.

To fill the gap between the Fall and Spring Series, HVP plans a Winter Chamber Music Series, based on the success of last year's programming and with complete details and dates to be announced later.

The Spring Series opens fittingly with the winner of the Young Artists Competition, which means that cellist Steven Doane will perform in an all Russian program, on Feb. 26. The 21-year-old Doane will play Rimsky-Korsakov's "Caprico Espagnal," Tschaikowsky's "Rocco Variations," and Prokofief's "Symphony No. 5."

Homage throughout the world has been accorded pianist Mieczyslaw Horszowski, who will be featured in the second spring concert of Austrian music on March 19. His concert career has made him a household word all over Europe and, in a memorable concert here, he will play Schubert's "Fierrabras Overture," Mozart's "Concerto in D Minor for Pano," and Haydn's "Seven Last Words of Christ."

All the color that accompanies opera and opera only will come with the only Tuesday offering (all others are Monday) in the two-part series. Set for April 10 with John Ryan conducting will be the Metropolitan Opera Company — an all-time favorite with Philharmonic subscribers. The company will perform Puccini's sad but beautful "La Boheme," backed by the Hudson Valley Orchestra.

Climaxing the entire season will be one of the finest young violin soloists of today. The April 30 all Brahms "Homecoming" concert will offer violinist Hiroko Yajima, winner of the 1967 Young Artists Competition. Featured with her, behind the conducting of Claude Monteux, will be HVP cellist Luis Garcia-Renart, also a Pablo Casals International Competition winner. Together, they will fill the Community with the sounds of "Concerto in A minor for Violin and Cello, Op 102," Symphony No. 3 in F Major, Op. 90," and "Hungarian Dances."

Audience participation will play a part in the HVP season this year, too. At some concerts, listeners will receive ballots; pick favorite encores with the most popular selection to be performed at evening's end.

Such a superlative season warrants capacity houses — so, let's have them! For series subscriptions, write Hudson Valley Philharmonic, Box 1, Uptown P.O., Kingston 12401, or call Mrs. Amos Newcombe or Mrs. Roy Ickes in Kingston for information on how to purchase subscriptions from committee members in your community.

FEATURED DANCERS Marina Eglevsky and Salvatore Aiello will prove why their talents have received unanimous critical acclaim when they appear here in "Coppelia" in late October. Stars of the Eglevsky Ballet Company, they are equally at home in programs of classic or modern ballet; have had audiences cheering everywhere.

'Views of the Hudson' Rediscovers a River

NEW YORK CITY

Paintings by an artist who has a strong feeling for the Hudson River and its environs went on view at Graham Gallery, 1014 Madison Avenue, New York City, in an attention-attracting show this week.

Kinderhook-born artist Alexander Martin will offer his "Views of the Hudson" at Graham from now to Oct. 14.

From Martin's early childhood in Kinderhook, he has drawn upon rich memories of the boat rides, train trips and motorboat races on the Hudson. He first began to paint the river in 1966 when he taught painting at the State University at New Paltz and was living in a house overlooking the river.

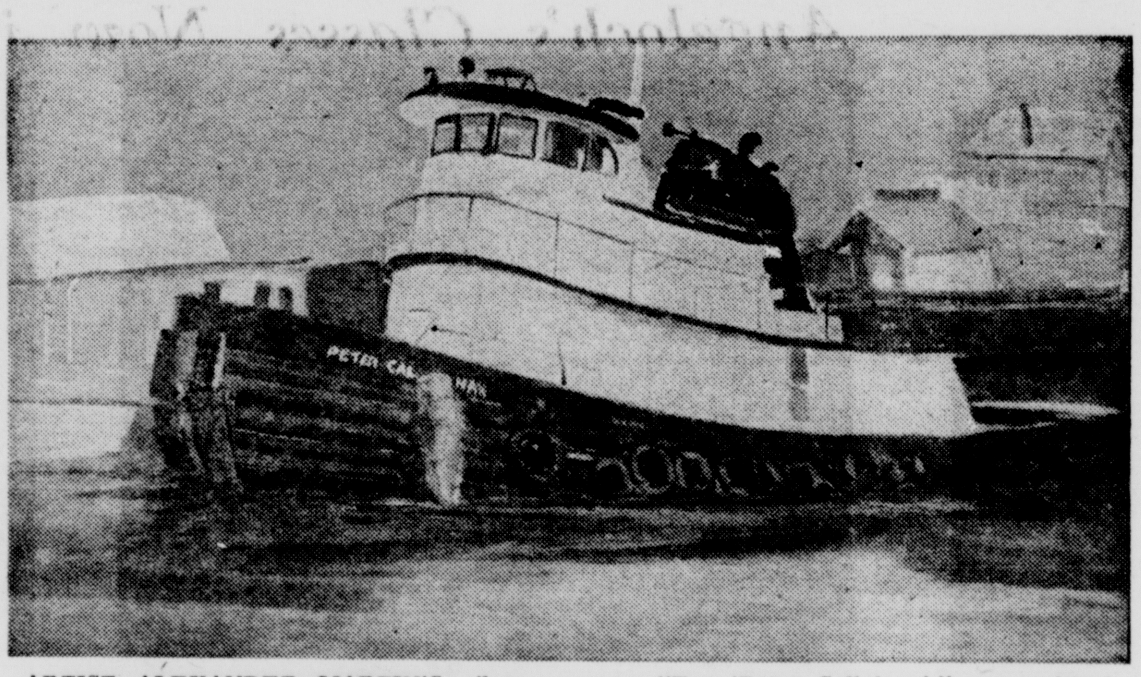
In Every Season

His canvases show the river in every season, along with the river traffic and its tugs. In the Graham Gallery exhibit are paintings of the "Peter Callanan," the last tugboat moored at Kingston; the Highland Station before its renovation; the Rondout Creek and Esopus Meadows lighthouses; and the Breakneck in the morning mists. All reflect the sense of place and nostalgia along the river's banks, and many memories are evoked in the buildings.

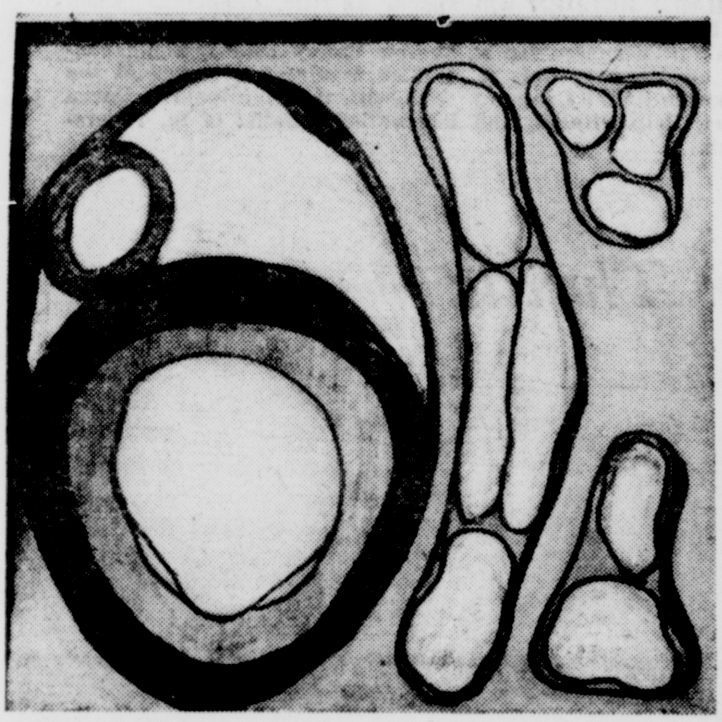
Joshua C. Taylor, director of the Smithsonian Institution's National Collection of Fine Arts, has praised Martin's paintings as "luminous vistas" and "unmistakable evocations of the Hudson."

Adds Taylor, "To explore one of his paintings is to rediscover the Hudson."

The Graham Gallery show will also be contributing to a worthy cause. In recognition and appreciation of the Scenic Hudson River Conference's work, the gallery and Martin will donate a portion of the proceeds from the exhibit to the conference to further its work in preserving and improving the beauty of the river.



ARTIST ALEXANDER MARTIN'S oil on canvas, "Tug 'Peter Callahan,' " was painted this year; is being exhibited in a one-man show of his works at Graham Gallery, Madison Avenue, New York City, in a September-October display.



HUMANESQUE SHAPES dominate this oil painting by Christopher Medved, now on view through the month of September in an exhibition of his works at Rondout National Bank in Woodstock. Medved's oil is applied darkly, then rubbed—in layers—to achieve smooth, subtle shadings of color. In this work, and in others, heavy dark lines and vibrant spots of color compliment the gentler effect created by the rubbing. Medved, who has been painting since his Army days, has previously exhibited in several Woodstock galleries.

Legendary movie director D. W. Griffith's 1908-11 Biograph films, including "The New York Hat" and "Musketeers of Pig Alley," along with "Broken Blossoms," featuring Lillian Gish, Richard Barthelmess and Donald Crisp, will be shown on the Bennett College campus at Millbrook this week.

Sponsored by the college's Art Department, the screenings — to which the public is invited, will take place in Matthison-Kennedy Auditorium beginning at 6 p.m. The earlier silent films will be shown on Tuesday, Sept. 26, and the 1919 classic is slated for Thursday, Sept. 28.

Another interesting attraction at Bennett will be Juanita Dugdale's "A Photo-Document of an Art Workshop," sponsored by Project Upward Bound in cooperation with the college's Art Department and Offce of Community Service. The show will be on exhibit in Alumnae Hall Gallery from Friday, Sept. 29 to Friday, Oct. 13. With the public invited, the showing opens at 8 p.m. on the 29th, when a reception for the artist will be held, and from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. thereafter.

Photographer Dugdale, a June graduate of Bennett, is now a baccalaureate degree candidate at Connecticut's Wesleyan University, where she is continuing her major in the fine arts with emphasis on photography.

Angeloch's Classes Now in Eleventh Year

WOODSTOCK

One of the best-known artists of the Hudson River Valley, Robert Angeloch, is beginning his eleventh year as a teacher of painting and drawing in the area.

In 1962 Angeloch started the Woodstock Landscape Classes, continued with them in 1963, and in 1964 was invited to teach at the internationally famous Art Students League Summer School in Woodstock, where he has taught every summer since.

In 1968 he and several other local artists formed the Woodstock School of Art which for three years offered year round classes in painting, drawing, printmaking and sculpture on the banks of the Sawkill in Woodstock.

Stays Close to Home

During the past decade he has been invited to teach at such diverse locations as Dutchess County Community College, Bard College, Syracuse University, University of Idaho, and Key West Community College, but except for teaching at Russell Sage College in Troy during 1971-72, he has remained in Woodstock.

Currently he holds small classes of from four to six students at the Speare Road studio of the Woodstock School of Art. During September and October the classes are outdoors, weather permitting. In November and during the winter, work will be from still life and from the model — painting, drawing, and modelling in clay. Instruction in fundamental principles of art and basic techniques is stressed, along with stimulation and encouragement of personal conceptual approaches. Students enroll for four week periods on a one, two, or three day per week basis. These classes are scheduled to continue throughout the fall, winter and spring.

Outdoor Sculptors Move Indoors at Storm King

MOUNTAINVILLE

The fall exhibition at The Storm King Art Center — OUTDOOR SCULPTORS INDOORS — has just opened. The exhibition consists of indoor sculptures by 25 sculptors who have large works in the Storm King Art Center gardens, and seven sculptors who have works on loan to the art center.

There is a special gallery of small works by the much honored David Smith, and several examples of works by Max Bill, Anthony Caro, Barbara Hepworth, Sol Lewitt, Alexander Liberman, Henry Moore, Eduardo Paolozzi, George Rickey, and Fritz Wotruba.

Other well-known sculptors in the exhibition are David Annesley, Woodstock's Manuel Bromberg, Kenneth Campbell, Sorel Etrog, Emilio Greco, Charles Ginnever, Hans Hokanson, Jerome Kirk, Joseph Konzal, Forrest Myers, Ancram's Tony Padovano, Michael Steiner, David Von Schlegell and Isaac Witkin. All of the forementioned have large sculptures permanently installed in the Storm King Art Center sculpture gardens.

Sculptors who have large sculptures in the gardens on loan included in the exhibition are Robert Adzema, Roger Bolomey, Gilbert Hawkins, Arthur Secunda, Richard Shore, Betty Klavun, and Ruth Kobler Dyer.

Also being exhibited in the fall show are nine relatively new acquisitions to the Storm King collection. These works are by Darby Bannard, Jack Bush, Bernard Childs, John Hoyland, Jules Olitsky, the famed Louise Nevelson, Karl Schrag, David Simpson, Don Judd, and Catryna Ten Eyck.

OUTDOOR SCULPTORS INDOORS WILL be at the Art Center through Nov. 19. The museum galleries are open Tuesday through Sunday from 2 to 5:30. There is no admission charge.

Theatre Calgary For Baldridge

WOODSTOCK

Back to Calgary in his native Alberta goes Harold Baldridge, long-time Artistic Director of the Woodstock Playhouse, and the once active Hudson Valley Repertory Theater. Baldridge has just been appointed Artistic Director of Theatre Calgary, one of Canada's major professional theaters.

Baldridge says his prestigious appointment does not signal an immediate exodus of his family from Woodstock, since he hopes to live some six months or more each year in the art colony. He does, however, find an ironic overtone to his new position, since he originally left Canada to pursue his professional work at a time when such opportunities were virtually non-existent in the provinces of his country. Now he is leaving Woodstock and New York for much the same reason.

During his years at the Woodstock Playhouse, Baldridge has directed a remarkable total of 70 productions to high critical praise. The result has been that both Baldridge and producer, M. Edgar Rosenblum, have been credited with bringing theater that is far above the usual standards of summer stock to Ulster County.

Actor's Director

Now, Baldridge goes to Calgary, backed by further praise as a result of work there this summer. In the few weeks he served Theatre Calgary, he was hailed there as an "actor's director" and "as a breath of fresh air to Canadian theater."

TEMPO wishes him well in his new post; hopes his association with Woodstock will continue in the future.

Della-Volpe Art Covers 23 Years

"Twenty-three Years of Painting," a retrospective show of the works of Ralph Della-Volpe, is on exhibit in the Art Gallery of the Agricultural and Technical College of the State University of New York at Cobleskill through Sept. 30.

The third one-man show by the painter, artist-in residence at Dutchess County's Bennett College since 1949 and chairman of its Art Department since 1958, to be given at Cobleskill offers viewers the unusual opportunity of observing the development and change that an artist experiences over a long period.

The Hurricane of '38

Turning the Wheels

The "Fulton" had a walking beam type of engine, a piston from a large vertical cylinder being connected to one end of the walking beam and a connecting rod on the other end beginning connected to a crank shaft which turned the paddle wheels. An engine of this type was started by a "starting bar" — a long lever which was moved up and down by hand to let steam into the cylinder at the proper second at the bottom and top of the cylinder at each end of the stroke of the piston.

Normally, this was done for only a short period until sufficient speed was achieved, at which time the engine would be "hooked up" and the steam then let into the cylinder mechanically.

During the "Fulton's" period of trial and continuous starting, stopping, backing, stopping and then going ahead again, the engineers were never able to get up enough speed to "hook her up" and constantly had to operate the engine by hand with the starting bar. Since the starting bar was moved almost from the deck in one position to overhead in the other position, it was somewhat like doing touch your toes deep bends continuously for nearly an hour. Afterwards, it was rumored one of the engineers went to bed for two days!

"The Alexander Hamilton" on the other end of the river was also having her tribulations because of the high winds. One mooring line was broken while landing at Kingston Point and three lines parted at Catskill. She continued on to Hudson and Albany, however, arriving about 25 minutes late. When she landed at the capitol city, the water was almost even with the top of the dock. Over a dozen mooring lines were used to securely moor the steamer.

Over the Dock

During the night, the river continued to rise and by morning the water was well over the dock. At the regular departure time of 9:20 a.m., the river was still rising and since it was impossible for passengers to board the steamboat, the down trip was cancelled and the "Hamilton" remained at Albany. By the early evening of Sept. 22, the waters crested and were some six feet over the Albany docks.

Although the "Hamilton" floated serenely on the crest, there was some fear her guards might go over the tops of the spiles and get hung up when the waters receded. She was, however, safely breasted off the pier to prevent such an occurence.

The "Alexander Hamilton" finally left Albany on Saturday morning, Sept. 24, two days late. The "Robert Fulton," in the meantime, had left Bear Mountain for New York before dawn on Thursday, Sept. 22 and on that day and Friday made two round trips to Poughkeepsie. On Saturday she went as far as Catskill and the next day, Sunday, Sept. 25, left there for New York to bring to an end the season of 1938 on the upper river. The great hurricane of 1938 may have disrupted the Day Line's service but it took more than a good blow to stop it completely.

THE SPORTS SCENE in N.Y.C. centers around the new Madison Square Garden, a magnificent $100 million sport and entertainment mecca located between 31st and 33rd Streets and 7th and 8th Avenues. At home in the new Garden: basketball, hockey, boxing, tennis, as well as ice, dog and horse shows.

BASEBALL BUFFS find each and every exhibit at the Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum in Cooperstown interesting, fascinating and colorful. Bronze plaques honor the game's greats, and old uniforms, gloves, and lockers refresh sports fans' memories of past triumphs on the diamond.

'Must Sees' for Sports Fans in Fall Offerings

Sports fans looking for leisure-time enjoyment this fall can refresh their memories and add to their knowledge on visits to sports-oriented museums and other sites in New York State — all within easy driving distance from the Kingston area.

A 'must see" for baseball buffs is Cooperstown -- home of the National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum, and site of the annual Hall of Fame Baseball Game and induction ceremonies of past diamond greats into the Hall of Fame.

Among items exhibited in the Museum are uniforms and equipment of former baseball players, oil paintings, trophies, and a replica of the U.S. Capitol crowned by a huge baseball and supported by 16 baseball bats (each bat representing one of the teams in the National and American Leagues before baseball's "expansion").

In the Hall of Fame are bronze plaques honoring Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb, Ted Williams, Dizzy Dean, Bob Feller and other baseball greats. Exciting moments from the sport's past have been preserved through motion pictures, television and tape recordings, and are available to visitors.

Open Daily

The National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum is open daily 9 a.m.-9 p.m., now to Oct. 31; and daily 9 a.m.-5 p.m. after Nov. 1. Adult admission is $1.50, children 40 cents.

Baseball fans who see a game at Yankee Stadium in New York City this autumn should visit the Telephonic Hall of Fame, in section 23 of the Stadium's lower lobby. Open when baseball games are scheduled, the Telephonic Hall of Fame features the recorded voices of great names in the Yankee past — Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Joe DiMaggio, Mickey Mantle and others — as well as playing tips from members of the current Yankee team.

Also of interest to New York City sports-minded visitors are the 1¼-hour guided tours of Madison Square Garden Center — home of the New York Rangers (hockey) and New York Knickerbockers (basketball). This sports and entertainment complex also is the site for boxing, track and field, wrestling, motorcycle and mini-car races, rodeos, roller derbys and many other events throughout the year. Guided tours are scheduled Monday — Saturday at 11 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Admission is $2 for adults, $1.50 for students, and $1 for children under 14 years of age.

Two places where visitors may linger at the conclusion of the tour are the Gallery of Art of the National Art Museum of Sport and the Madison Square Garden Hall of Fame. Besides its own collection of sport sculpture and oil paintings, the Gallery schedules exhibitions that change approximately every three months. The Hall of Fame honors 88 men and women who have given the Garden some of its greatest moments. They include Joe Louis (boxing), Sonja Henie (figure skating) and Gordie Howe (hockey).

Sport of Kings

Museum of Racing attractions include the Hall of Fame with its tributes to outstanding horses, jockeys and trainers, numerous trophies and racing cups including the Triple Crown won in 1937 by War Admiral, paintings and sculpture of great thoroughbreds from Eclipse to Kelso, famous American racing silks, and a special exhibit devoted to the late James E. (Sunny Jim) Fitzsimmons, the "grand old man of racing," a trainer who had more than 250 stakes victories to his credit.

The National Museum of Racing is open year-round Monday-Friday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Saturdays (except February) noon to 5 p.m., and every day from 9:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. during October's harness racing season. There is no admission, but children 12 years old and under must be accompanied by an adult.

Popular with harness racing devotees is the Hall of Fame of the Trotter in Goshen, open Monday-Saturday 10 a.m.-5 p.m. and Sundays and holidays 1:30-5:30 p.m.

The Hall of Fame of the Trotter is a free museum housed in the former Good Time Stables, once the property of Hambletonian Stakes promoter William H. Cane. Visitors can see many harness racing items including the tack worn by Lou Dillon who in 1903 became the first trotter to cover a mile in two minutes, and displays devoted to two great horses: Dan Patch, a pacer who, following the turn of the century, earned more than $2 million in races and exhibitions, and Hambletonian, whose 1,331 sons and daughters have passed his blood lines on to about 90 per cent of today's pacers and trotters.

POTPOURRI

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

Nobody upstages Dot and Bob Short of West Hurley when it comes to throwin' a soiree. And the one they hosted at Beekman Arms one recent September-Saturday outshined most. But then, it happened to be the 50th anniversary of Dot's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Schick . . . . . both livin' proof that where marriage is concerned, it takes two-to-tango.

As for scores of well-wishers, would you get a better picture if we said the Arms (Beekman, that is) stretched so w-i-d-e, they embraced guests from next door neighbors HERE to those from Tucson, Ariz.? When the Shorts stage a shindig, they don't settle for-less-than-guests-from EAST-and-WEST!

Central Hudson was well represented; after all, Mr. S. worked there over 40 years. His former boss, Willard Walsh of Poughkeepsie, put in a cameo appearance, as did Gentleman Joe Benjamin who was wearin' his special "Monty" Lisa smile, makin' everybody wonder what he's been up to.

As for Knobby Keator, that's another story. A cut-up from-the-word GO, Knobby somehow manages to throw himself headlong into the swim of things (even if he drowns). But Knobby's such a prime asset at any party, that no matter what he's cooked up, everybody forgives him his trespasses. (Incidentally, in case you didn't know, he's now raisin' chickens.)

Dr. Sid Wolff, lookin' pleased as a Jewish altar boy, announced his retirement from dentistry. Understand half of Kingston is shocked (the other half already switched to Crest). As for Gerry McCabe, he's started back to school, studyin' for his masters degree at Marist; every Dad should set such example for his son. Right? Of course.

It came to light at the party that Pete and Jean Gates have a secret ambition to sink their vocal chords into a Coach House musical. With their talent, we know they'd excel. All we can say is: do watch for them on stage . . . and maybe even wave . . .or throw flowers?

Harry Edinger—whose grandfather was the last hand-printer at The Freeman years ago — was tellin' us he took Eleanor fishin' recently at a fish hatchery. The trout must've really been bitin' 'cause Eleanor was catchin' 'em left 'n right. What she didn't know was you had to pay-by-pound for what you caught. In her case, $45 worth. Good natured Harry doesn't believe in gripin'. He just smiled: "I think it'd be cheaper to take her out to dinner."

Also havin' fun were Margaret Mellert (Sheriff Martin's secretary); the Schick's grandchildren, Elaine and Bob Short; Fred Reinhardt, Elaine's sixth grade teacher; Edna and Alvin Fontaine. Al, who is choreographer for MGM Studios in Tucson, taught Mr. Schick to ride horseback last year. Either Al was a good teacher or Mr. S. an apt student 'cause Mr. S. received a citation in Tucson parade which is supposed to be the longest, non-mechanical parade in the world, viewed by more than 250,000 and led by John Wayne. Incidentally, Mr. Schick was 73 at the time and had never ridden before.

Bill Williams was hero at the Hammond. Enjoyin' oldtime favorites were Mrs. Marion Hudler, Fred DuBois, Mr. and Mrs. Lou Maines, the Rev. and Mrs. David Gaise, Rose and Bob Hanson. By the way, next time you see the Hansons, ask them (separately if you please) 'bout their trip to Jamaica. In fact may we suggest you ask Bob first, Rose second . . . . then DUCK!

T-SIXTEEN

Half of her went to her mother. Half to her father. And all the king's horses and all the king's men couldn't put Susie together again.

The emotional wound cuts deep and heals slowly. The scars can last a lifetime.

Susie is hurt and confused, but mostly she's afraid. Afraid her parents will stop loving her the way they stopped loving each other. Afraid somehow she's to blame for the whole mess. Afraid of tomorrow.

As long as there are marriages there'll be divorces. We can't save them all. But with your help, we can save a handful.

There are people in trouble all over this town.

Poor people, sick people, old people, disturbed people need your help and need it fast.

D.J., The Country's Top Show Dogs!

For two years in a row, D. J. has won the most important dog show in the country, the Westminster Show held in New York each February. D. J. is an English Springer Spaniel. In one year he won more Best In Show ribbons than any dog in history.

D. J. often goes to school with his owner, Dr. Milton Prickett who teaches at the University of Kentucky, at Lexington. He was a birthday gift to Dr. Prickett. He is a housedog when he is not in the show ring. He used to go on paper route with Dr. Prickett's son. Since he has won everything a dog can win, he will retire from Best in Show contests, but Dr. Prickett plans to enter him in obedience competition.

National Dog Week

National Dog Week is held the last full week in September. It was started in 1928 by a dog lover named Captain Will Judy. The purpose of the week is to encourage pople to own dogs and to take better care of them. The slogan is: Deserve to be your dog's best friend.

Top Ten Registered Dogs

When some puppies are born, the owners send the notice to the American Kennel Club. The club keeps a list of the total. There are over 30 million dogs in the country. About one million are registered. Here is a list of the top ten registered last year.

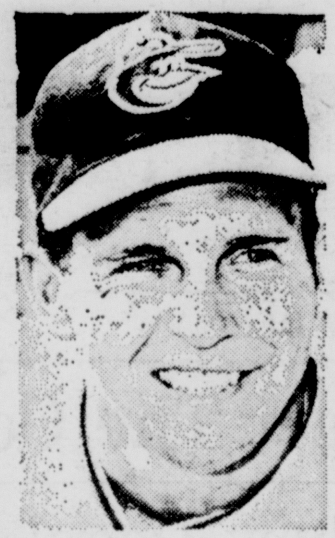
Super Sport: Brooks Robinson



Brooks Robinson is the ace third baseman of the American League champion Baltimore Orioles. Some think he is the best who ever played that position.

A native of Little Rock, Arkansas, Brooks set a major league record by leading third baseman in fielding nine times. He was voted the most valuable player in the 1970 World Series.

Brooks has been with the Orioles for all or part of the last 13 years. He owns part of a sporting goods store in Baltimore and also a restaurant in Baltimore. He has four children.

Guess What!

Three Dogs Live At the White House!

Pasha, Vicki and Tim on the White House lawn!

Guess what the President keeps in the top right hand desk drawer in his office!

Dog biscuits for his dog, Tim! Tim's real name is King Timahoe, he is a four-year old Irish setter who was a birthday gift to the President in 1969. He is the President's favorite. Though dogs are not usually allowed in the upstairs living quarters, Tim does get into the president's office in the Oval Room.

Guess who the other dogs belong to!

Guess where they live!

The dogs live in a white dog house just behind the White House. The White House electrician takes care of them. The dogs go with the Nixons on some trips and are quite used to riding in helicopters and jet planes.

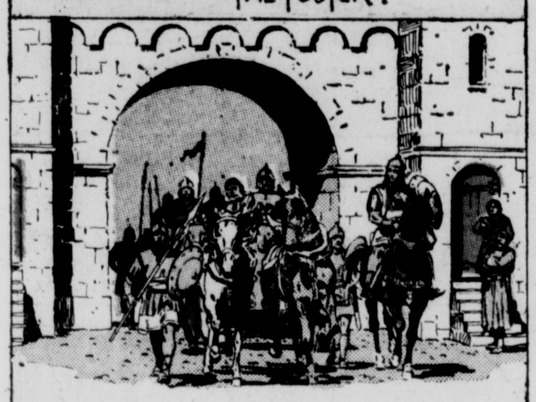
Prince Valiant®

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

BY HAL FOSTER.



Our Story: KING DASHAD ENTERS ATHELDAG WITH HIS SMALL BODYGUARD, WONDERING IF, DURING HIS ABSENCE, TREACHERY HAS HAD TIME TO FOMENT.

IT HAS, BUT DISTRUST AMONG THE NOBLES HAS PREVENTED A REVOLT. THEN TRUMPETS SOUND AND THE GREAT CURTAINS ARE SWEPT ASIDE....

.....AND KING DASHAD MARCHES TO THE THRONE. NEVER HAVE THE CHEERS OF THE COURTIERS BEEN LOUDER OR LESS SINCERE.

HE MOUNTS THE THRONE IN SILENCE, BUT HIS ANGRY EYES SEARCH THE FACES OF THE THRONG, AND NOT ONE OF THEM MEETS HIS GAZE. AFTER AN UNEASY SILENCE, HE BECKONS TO VAL AND JASEN, AND LEAVES.

"HE WHO COMMANDS THE LOYALTY OF THE ARMY RULES THE CITY," SUGGESTS JASEN. "I KNOW FROM EXPERIENCE THAT THE COMMANDERS ARE TRUE ONLY TO THE HIGHEST BIDDERS, AND SOLDIERS OBEY THEIR COMMANDERS."

SO THE COMMANDERS ARE INVITED TO THE PALACE WHERE THEY WILL BE SAFE FOR THE TIME BEING. NOT EXACTLY JUSTICE, BUT IT WILL KEEP THEM FROM INTERFERING WHILE A PLAN TO AID DISABLED WARRIORS IS BEING FORMULATED AND NEW OFFICERS APPOINTED.

IT HAS BEEN REPORTED THAT NOW SPIDERS SPIN WEBS IN THE DISUSED TORTURE CHAMBER. THE GALLOWS ARE NOT OFTEN USED, AND ONCE, JUST ONCE, THE KING WAS REFERRED TO AS "DASHAD THE GOOD."

VAL LEAVES ATHELDAG, SURE HE HAS REFORMED THE TYRANT, FEELING VERY VIRTUOUS AND A TRIFLE SMUG.
